Softly ...

can you hear the whispers of willow and birch,

Shaded path that other peoples shall never walk;
path that you will never tread again.

Rustling leaves, quiet pools, trembling reflections of hills, great mountain banks brimming with a new day before the dawn.

A creed unfurled to tempestuous winds -
a different spirit that thunders and echoes.

Then . . .

a broad campus green, monuments to reason -
but too . . .

a sacred legacy:

perception, discernment; groping fingers,
selfish brotherhood,
and hence,

the acorns fall, determined fertile,
to strengthen, and to gather . . .

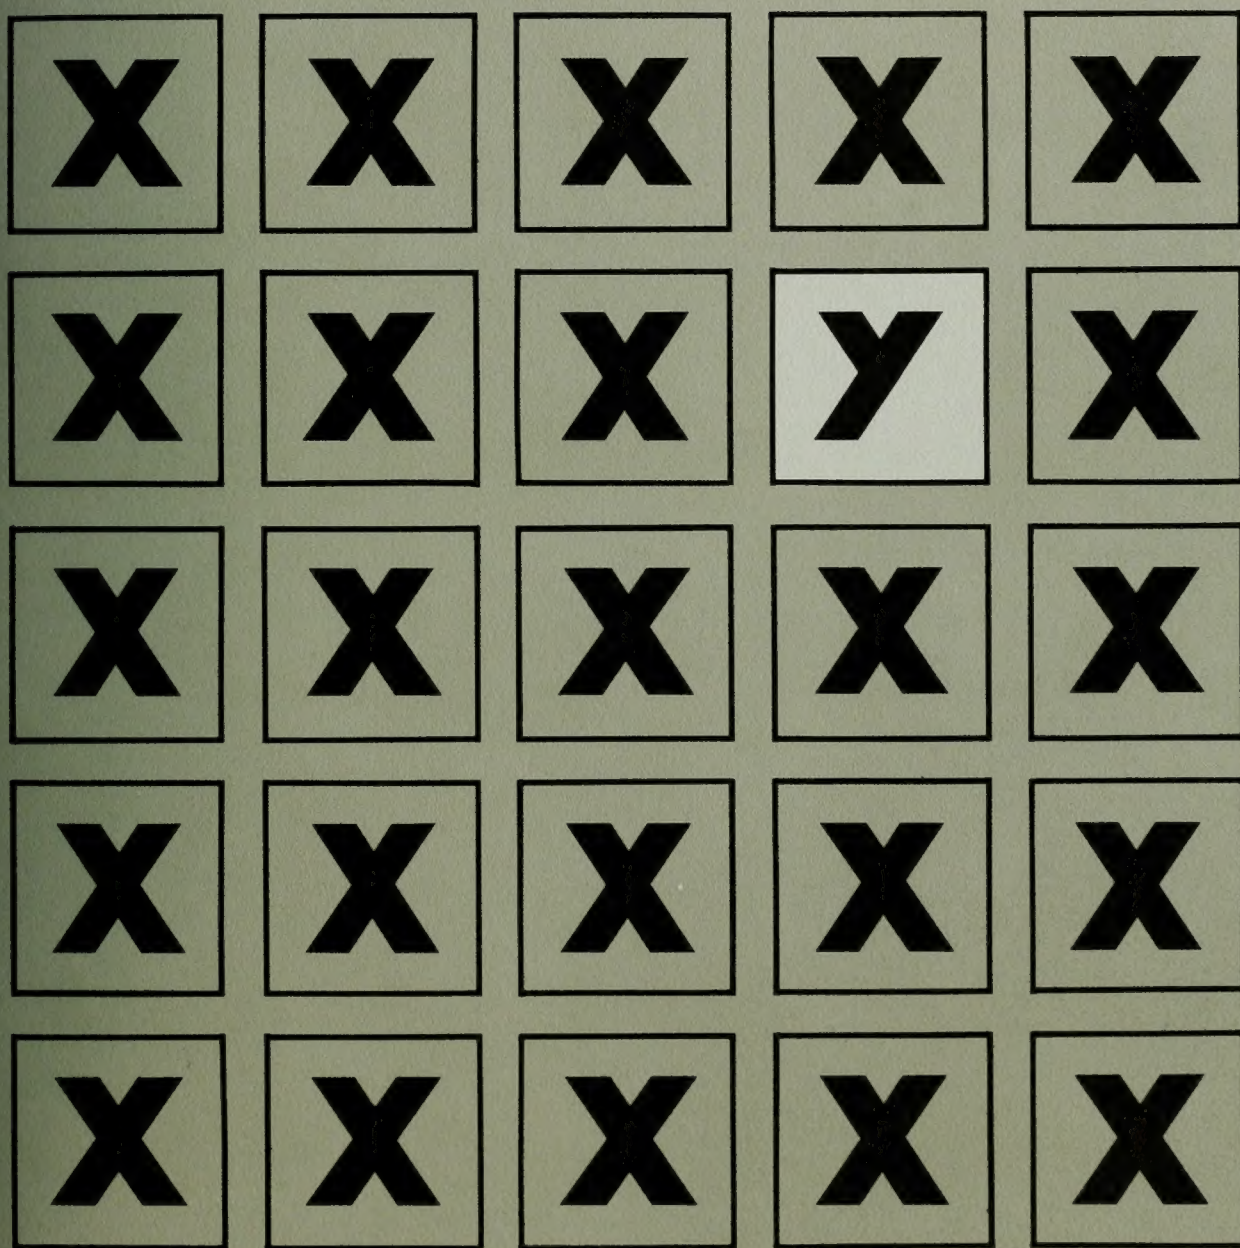

but, such is all, others are this;
we walk with them, even the best,
but our thoughts, our dreams, rise up, and beyond, and

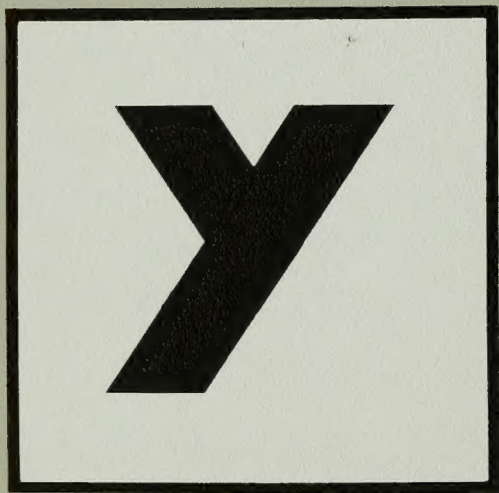

A dramatic photograph of a volcanic eruption. A massive, billowing plume of dark smoke and ash rises from a mountain, filling the upper two-thirds of the frame. The plume has a bright, glowing core at its base where it meets the mountain. The sky is a deep, dark blue-grey. At the bottom of the image, the dark, silhouetted ridges of the mountain range are visible. The word "away!" is printed in a white, serif font in the upper right quadrant of the image.

Prophet David O. McKay is greeted by conference-goers on Temple Square.

LDS President David O. McKay Leads Board of Trustees

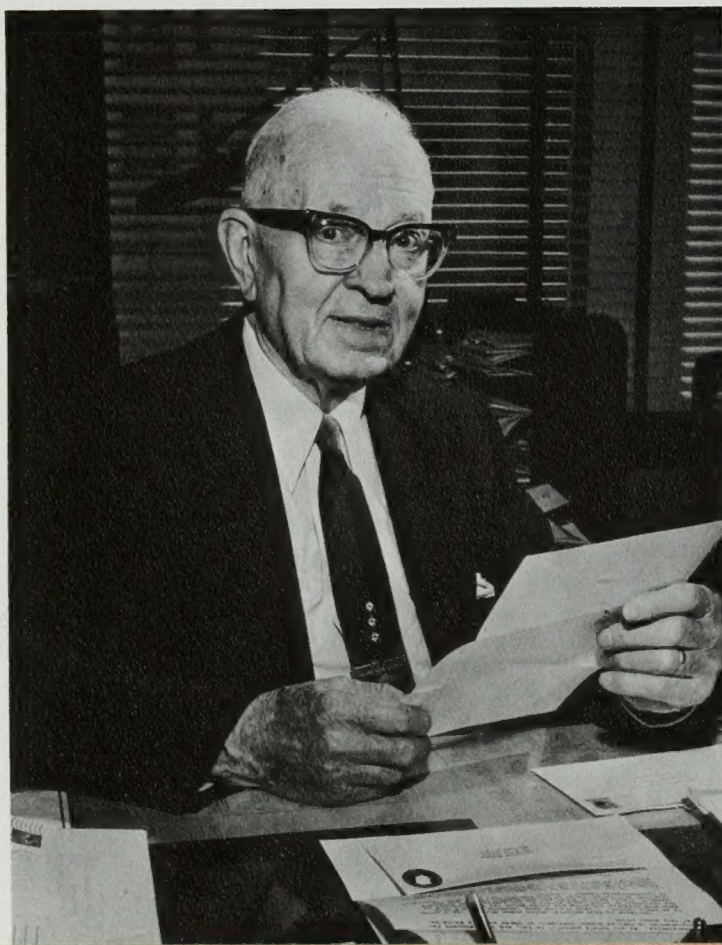

Over two million Mormons around the globe love and honor David O. McKay, Prophet and President of the LDS Church. In as much as BYU is church owned, President McKay also acts as President of the Board of Trustees. Education in the Church was established by revelation and for a religious organization that holds as a cardinal tenet "the Glory of God is intelligence," one of its largest disbursements is for education of its youth. Of the more than 100 permanent buildings on this 614-acre campus, 80 have been completed since 1951 when President McKay took office.

Hugh B. Brown, First Counselor

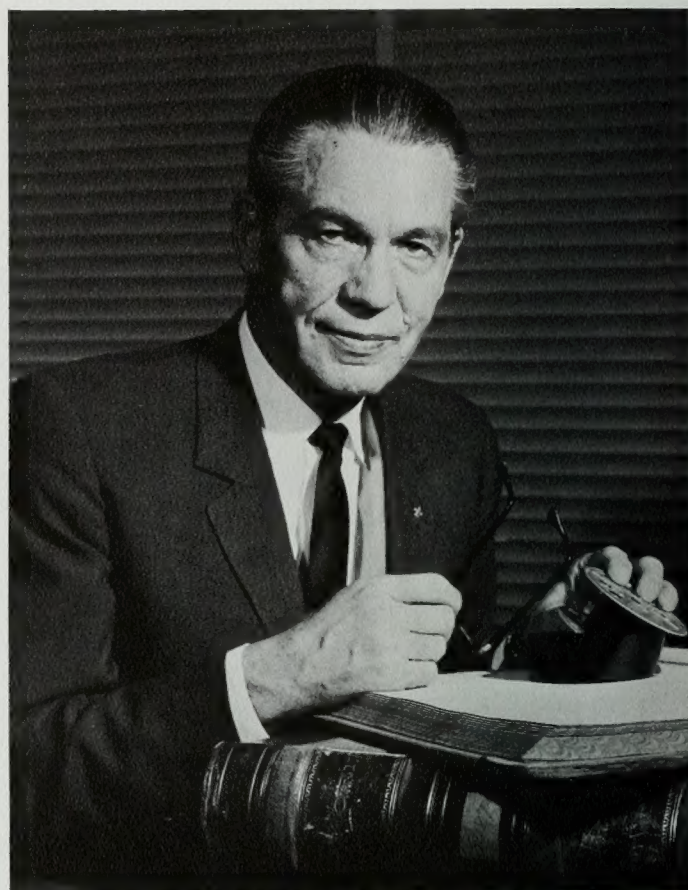

Founded in 1875 by order of Brigham Young and with the admonition that not even the "alphabet or the multiplication tables be taught without the spirit of God," BYU enrollment of more than 20,000 students makes it the nation's largest church-affiliated university. The Church educational institutions are combined under the direction of the Board of Trustees. The board consists of the First Presidency of the Church, the Council of the Twelve Apostles and other leaders. Students have opportunity to hear them speak weekly.

President Wilkinson Spearheads University Progress

President Ernest L. Wilkinson has led an active and productive life dedicated to service. He has contributed to his profession as a lawyer, to his Church as a leader and to BYU as an educator and friend. In 1950 Dr. Wilkinson was selected by the Board of Trustees as the new President and this year under his leadership a number of record breaking events have been achieved. "The number one project of the Brigham Young University administration this year will be the assurance of good teaching," were the words of President Wilkinson in a speech to the faculty at the beginning of the year. He added, "The question is not how many students have gone through the university, but how many students have had the university go through them."

Earl C. Crockett, Academic Vice-President

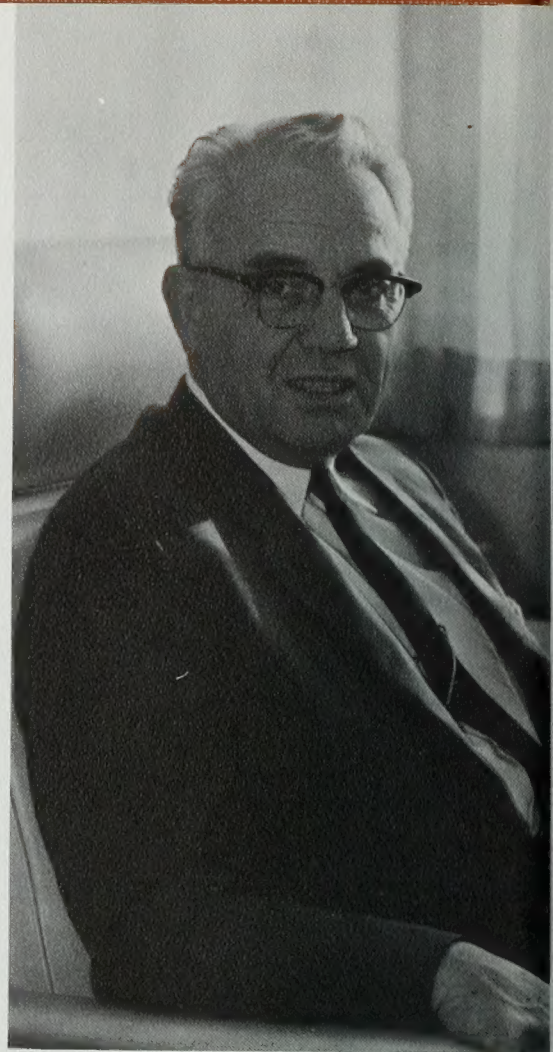

Clyde D. Sandgren, Vice-President and General Counsel

Emphasis shifts under administrators

During President Wilkinson's term as the seventh president of the university, BYU has grown from 5,000 to this year's 20,000-plus; the faculty has tripled; the number of faculty members holding doctorates has risen to over fifty percent; the number of colleges has increased from five to thirteen; and an Air Force ROTC unit has been organized. During 1965 nearly half a million dollars was given to BYU by donors of the alumni, corporations, foundations, businesses, and friends of the university. Under President Wilkinson's administration the physical campus has grown markedly with the completion of over eighty major buildings, including the newly dedicated Stephen L. Richards Physical Education Building and the new entrance to the campus which includes large signs, planters and the university seal with an information building to assist visitors. BYU's future promises a new Life Science Building, while restrictions will be placed on new applicants and the growth of the studentbody will be slowed down. Emphasis will be in seeking out the best of faculty and students.

Growing College to Receive New Building

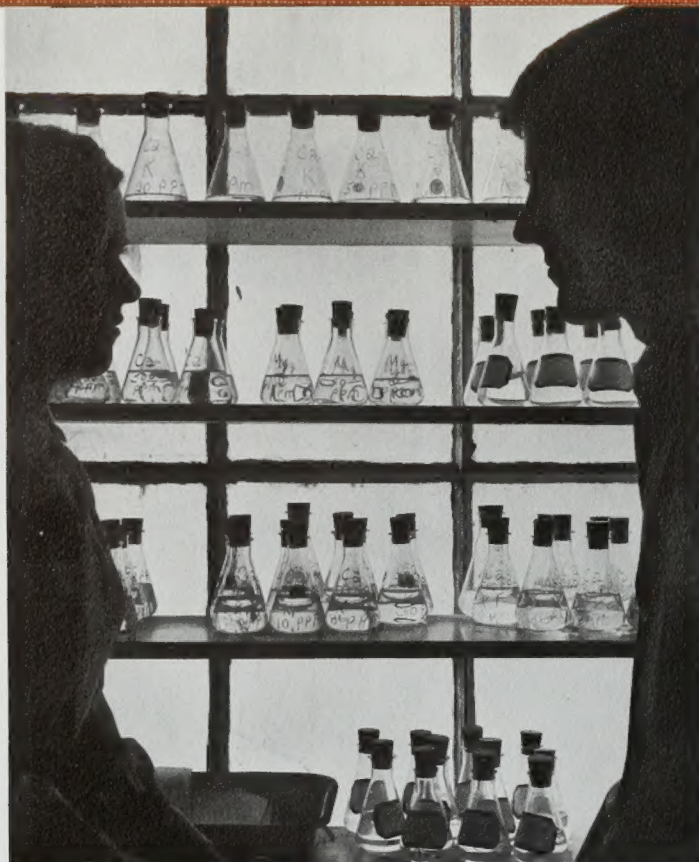

A 520% increase in enrollment in the last 15 years has made the College of Biological and Agricultural Sciences one of the fastest-growing on campus. This tremendous growth rate naturally has called for more buildings and more equipment. At the present time, the college's facilities are spread all over the campus and its students attend classes in the lower campus buildings, the old Brimhall and Grant buildings and even Page School. Still, the college is short of space and equipment. This year, a solution to the problem was announced when the Board of Trustees approved the construction of a Life Sciences Center which will house the college and provide it with the latest equipment available for classroom work and advanced research.

Enrollment in agricultural fields increases

Although the enrollment in the field of agriculture is declining throughout the country, the number of students in the departments of Agricultural Economics, Agronomy, Animal Science and Horticulture is increasing at BYU. Dean Rudger H. Walker attributed this increase to the competence of BYU's departments in these areas and also to the excellence of the university as a whole.

Business College is Highly Rated

The College of Business at Brigham Young University is considered by employers to be among the nation's best sources for helping meet the increasing need for superior young men and women in the massive business world. To earn this reputation the college has been a pioneer since its organization in 1921, keeping constantly responsive to the demands imposed by frequently changing business theories and practices. It was among the nation's first colleges to use the now nearly-universal case-study method of instruction. Under the direction of Dr. Weldon J. Taylor, Dean, the college has continued to grow both academically and physically. More than 1500 BYU students are served by the five departments of the college: Business Management, Accounting, Economics, Business Education and Statistics.

Five departments train students to meet demands

Among the five departments in the College of Business, the largest department, Business Management, prepares students for work in such specialized areas as marketing, finance and production management. Professors emphasize leadership techniques giving insight into working with employees and consumers. Accounting is a fast growing field demanding capable people. The Accounting Department of the college trains students to meet these demands in diverse fields—as a controller of an industrial team, a public accountant, or a mathematician in one of government's many departments. Students often follow the accounting course as a stepping stone to Law School. Qualifying students for openings in business and government, the Department of Economics also provides excellent preparation for a law career.

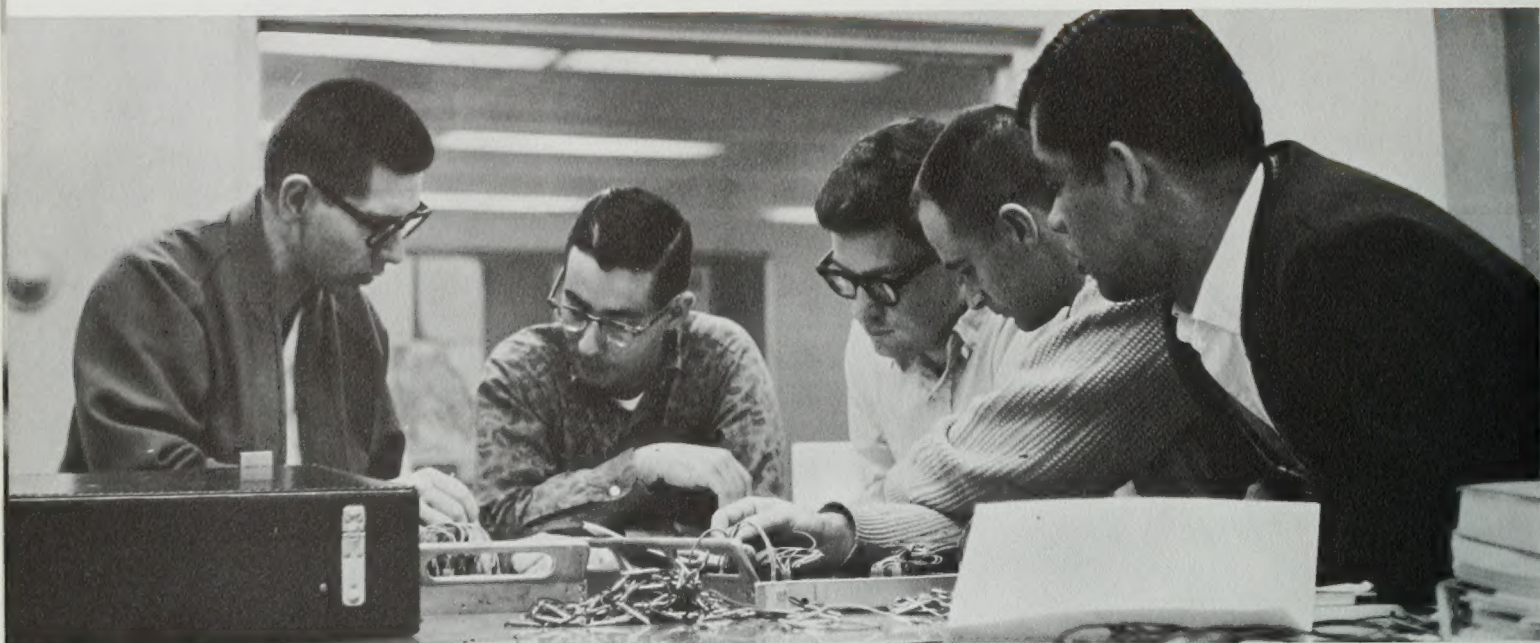

Business classes require review of the instructional factors.

Students learn to contribute

As our society daily becomes more technical, there is a growing need for professional statisticians who can increase the efficiency of business and government by reducing the risks of decision making. The statistician's work often saves money, time, equipment and lives. Preparation for careers in both teaching and stenographic and secretarial work is the goal of the Department of Business Education and Office Management. Regular class and departmental work in the college is supplemented by such things as the Executive Lectures Program when some of the top business leaders of the nation are invited to speak on campus. The goal of the College of Business is to prepare students for a livelihood, give them an understanding of economic factors, how they might develop a desire to contribute to a better standard of living.

Future Teachers Try New Methods

An education student acts as teacher of his class while real teacher and classmates stage a simulated classroom situation.

The College of Education is one of the largest in the West, having certified as teachers 51 per cent of the graduating seniors in the last seven years. Not only is the college one of the largest, but one of the most progressive as well. New programs are constantly being experimented with to assure that students may be experienced in the latest teaching developments. Since the college recognizes that there is no substitute for practice, the students are introduced to classroom situations as early as possible. Before student teaching, the students face simulated classroom situations created to test the future teachers' ability to control a class. A new program this year was teacher internship, which will permit student teachers to actually take a job and receive half the salary of a regular teacher. This gives them responsibility for the class even though they are still supervised by a master teacher in their work.

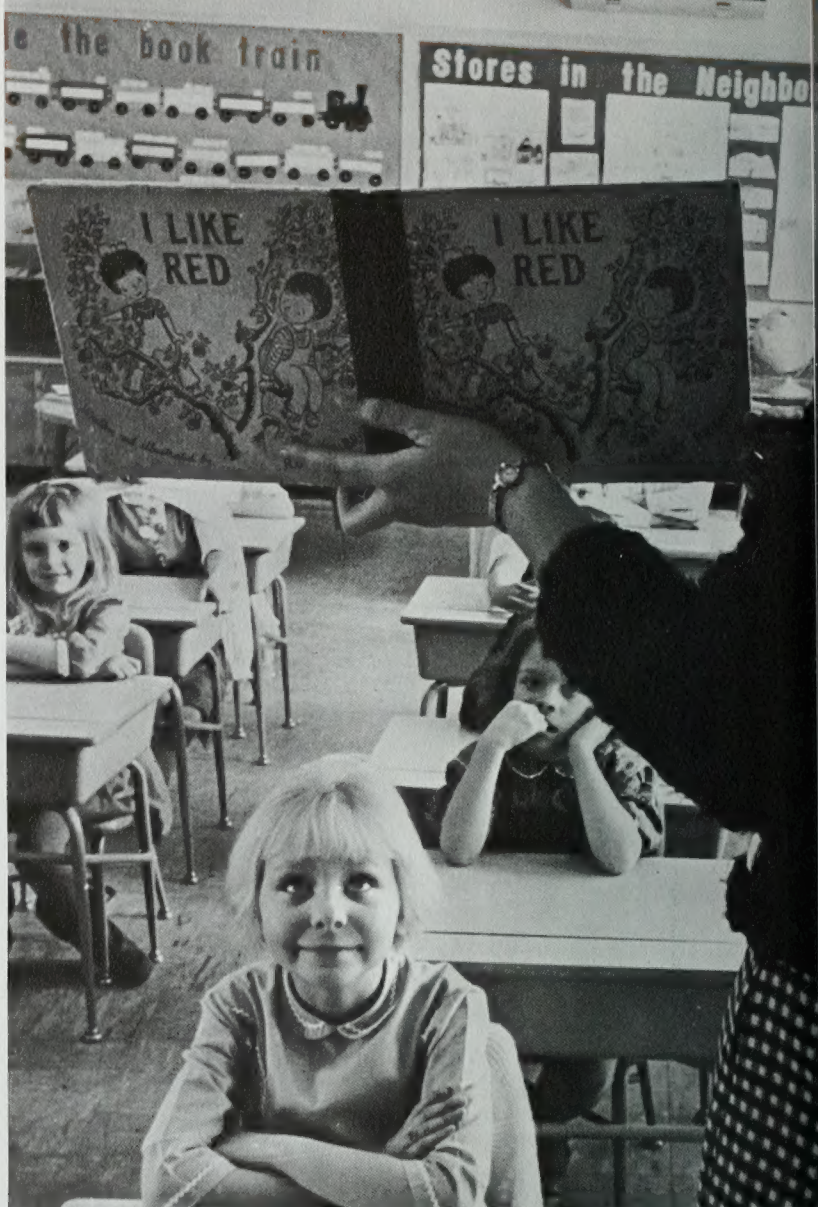

Antone K. Romney, Dean

Student teaching programs revamped

The College of Education has revamped both the elementary and the high school student-teaching programs. Sixty per cent of the elementary teachers now student teach during two separate six-week periods at different grade levels and schools, alternating with their education courses on campus. The secondary program, just started this year, involves taking five weeks of education courses, doing nine weeks of student-teaching and then finishing the semester with two more weeks on campus. These two systems compress both course work and student teaching into one semester.

Family Living Students Learn Through Practical Experience

Virginia F. Cutler, Dean

Students in the College of Family Living are offered a variety of practical experiences to enrich their course work. Majors in food and nutrition, run the Elizabeth Dining Room in the Family Living Center and thus gain valuable training in quantity meal preparation and dietetics. Campus Couture gave clothing and textiles students the chance to do hand sewing, and HDFR majors gain experience in working with small children through the Nursery School. In addition, seniors in home economics education are able to work as consultants assisting the girls in Heritage Halls with problems in laundry, budgeting, and meal planning. So many girls are majoring in this field that the demand for student teaching positions far exceeds the supply of places; however, under a new program students may now student-teach in Idaho, California and Nevada.

College serves the campus and the community

Many services for the campus and the community are offered by the college. Several students and faculty members are deeply involved in Project Headstart and the Women's Job Corps; the college also trains leaders for these programs. Dean Virginia Cutler herself assisted with the Job Corps in Omaha last summer. A program in the experimental stage is a women's seminar in which several faculty members travel to various communities to participate in seminars with the local housewives. In each community leaders gave demonstrations in the fields of clothing and textiles, housing and home management, food and nutrition and home furnishings.

Artists Prepare for Careers In Many Fields

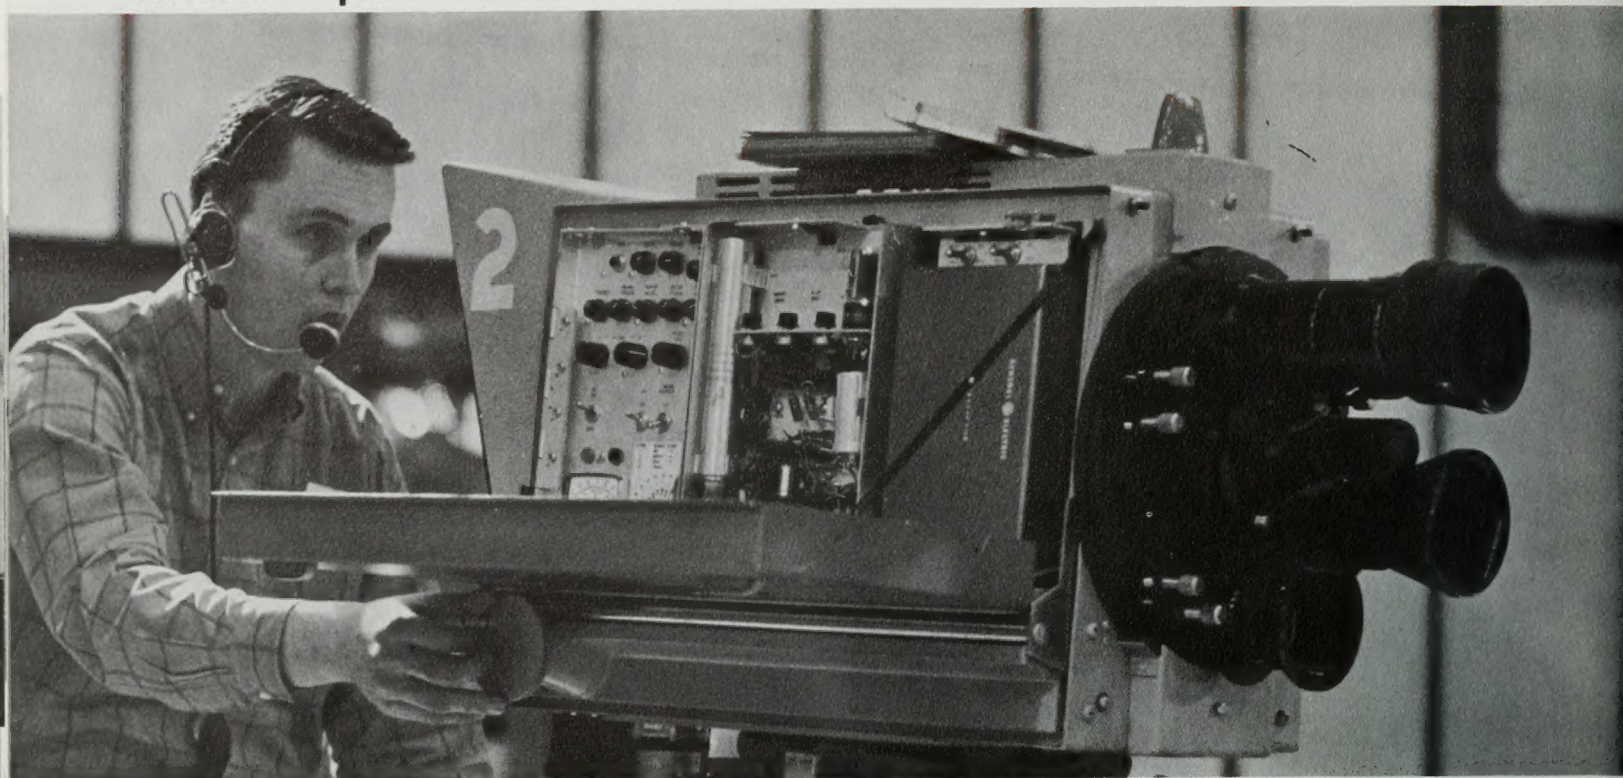

Art in our modern world has expanded from painting and sculpture of the Renaissance to include such fields as advertising, photography, television, and news production. To meet the growing needs in the widening art field, the College of Fine Arts and Communications has developed a broad program to help students prepare for careers from speech therapy to commercial art. With 73 faculty members and 1,415 students, the five departments of the college were engaged in an immense variety of activities. New facilities in the Franklin S. Harris Fine Arts Building helped artists in their training. Thespians performed for the first time in Phillip Margetts Arena Theatre. Television and radio facilities were provided through new KBYU TV and FM studios.

Students get a chance to practice

The Department of Communications is one of the largest between the Midwest and the Pacific coast. It trains students for careers in journalism, advertising, and radio and television. In these fields, students gain practical experience by working with the Daily Universe, the Banyan, and the BYU radio and television stations. The Department of Speech trains students for careers in the fields of public address, speech education and speech and hearing. Students in the department supplement their classroom work by teaching and by working in the department's clinic treating speech and hearing cases under supervision.

General College to Start

Two-Year Program

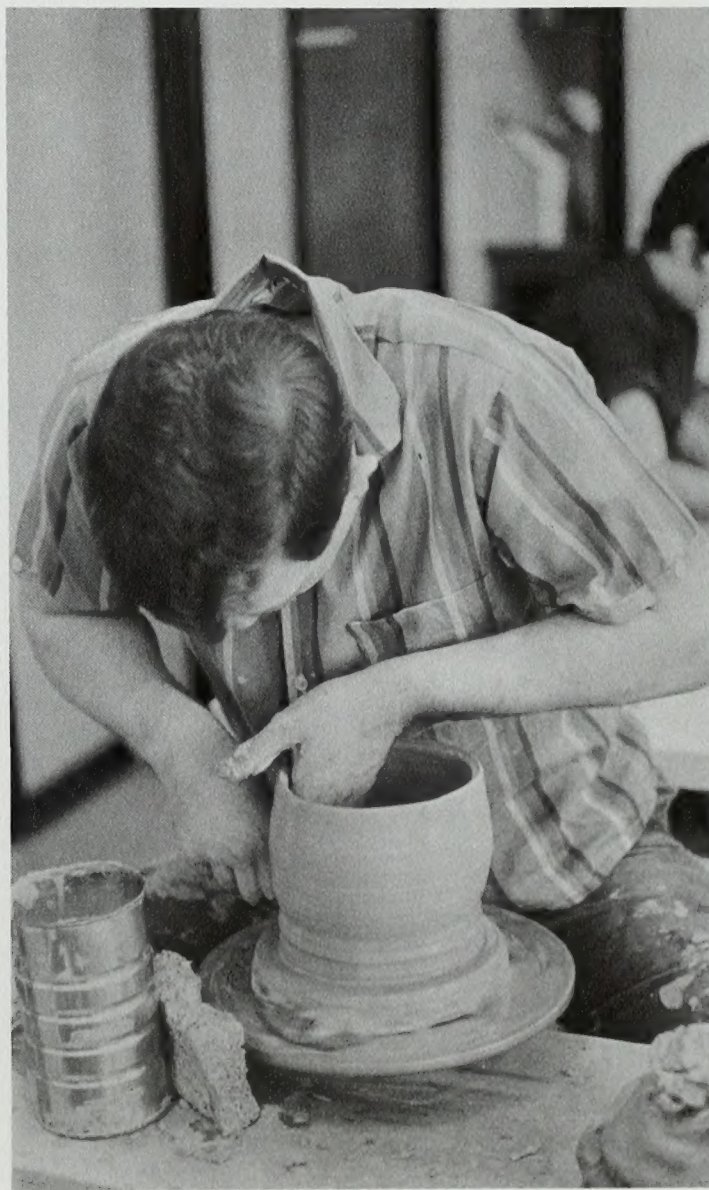

Students who think that four years is too long a time to spend in college, will be able to obtain a general education degree in two years beginning next September. The new program, instituted by the General College, will include the concentrations of biological sciences, physical sciences, and social sciences, as well as others. According to Lester B. Whetten, dean of the college, special classes will be created for the new program and faculty members from other departments will transfer to the General College to teach them. Approximately 18 teachers will participate in the program, 8 of these will be new teachers. Dean Whetten indicated that the program will be especially helpful to students who lack the money or the time to attend BYU for four years or more, but who still want to get a college education. He cited as an example American Indian students who are anxious to return home and help with community development projects.

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences divided in two at the end of last year and both halves were recognized as independent colleges this year. The humanities half became the College of Humanities with Dr. Bruce Clark as dean. The new college consists of two departments: English and Languages, and three inter-departmental areas: Humanities, Latin American Studies and Linguistics. 1,137 majors were enrolled in the college.

One of the jobs of the college is to oversee the Semester Abroad program. The Department of Travel Study is actually responsible for the program, but the college supervises it. Students and faculty participating in the program traveled to Salzburg, Austria last year; this year, students were able to go to Grenoble, France, as well. While in Europe, students take courses from BYU professors who accompany them and also study in the university in the area. The program has been highly successful and such places as London, South America and Norway are being considered and may be tried in future.

Many programs revised, classes added

Many of the college's programs have been amplified or revised. The creative writing program has been expanded under Dr. Clinton Larson, and a newly formed advanced writing class was offered this year for the first time. In addition to this, English 218, creative writing, was divided during the second semester into two classes: one in fiction writing and the other in poetry. Also for the first time, the college offered a Ph.D. degree in English and a Chinese minor. A new linguistics program, under the direction of Dr. Robert Blair, was started and a master's degree in linguistics was also offered.

Old Beginning For New College

Although the College of Industrial and Technical Education stood as a separate college for the first time this year, it had a beginning back in 1875 when President Brigham Young expressed his wishes that each young man should be trained in mechanism and each young woman should learn domestic arts. During the Spring semester of this year, 849 students were registered in the college majoring in such fields as building construction technology and computer programming. The college includes three departments: Industrial Education, for those wishing to teach; Industrial Technology, which offers degrees in design and drafting as well as in tool and manufacturing technology; and Technical Institute, which offers training in over twelve different fields through two-year terms.

Nursing Starts a New Program

A new program initiated during the spring semester of this year by the College of Nursing, will permit diploma graduates—students who have completed a hospital diploma program—to graduate in the baccalaureate program in approximately two years. The baccalaureate program leads to either a Bachelor of Arts degree or a Bachelor of Science degree. Students in this program attended classes at BYU and also receive extensive training in Salt Lake City hospitals. This year, 41 girls will be graduated. The associate degree program is another program in the college and it is designed to graduate technical nurses in five semesters, 44 girls will graduate in August.

Four-Year Engineering Program Approved

Well qualified high school graduates entering the field of engineering will be able to obtain a bachelor's degree from BYU in four years following a new program approved in 1965-66 by the College of Physical and Engineering Sciences. Up to this year, engineering students have been required to attend BYU for five years in order to qualify for a bachelor's degree. The new program will benefit those students who have prepared in high school to enter the field of engineering. According to Dean Armin J. Hill, the program is in line with a nation-wide movement to emphasize the master's degree as a primary objective for students. Under it, engineering majors will be able to obtain a master's degree in as little as five years.

The college is composed of the following departments: Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Geology, Physics, Mathematics, Statistics, Chemistry and Air Science. All these departments, with the exception of Air Science, offer both a bachelor's and a master's degree. More and more students are being encouraged to work towards a master's degree. "We want to get the students away from the idea that a bachelor's degree is enough," says Dean Hill.

No students are being turned away, yet

Professor Ronald D. Jamison corrects students' math papers.

The tremendous growth rate of the university has affected the college greatly. To make room for more students than the facilities of the college are built to handle, careful planning and scheduling, as well as the cooperation of other colleges, have been necessary. But although the college is short of space and facilities, no students were turned away this year. The 1,748 undergraduate majors registered in the college accounted for nearly 10 per cent of the student population at BYU.

Athletes Get a Whale of a Building

The new Stephen L. Richards building, dedicated last November, is really a whale of a building. But then again, the largest whale known is the Blue Whale and it only measures up to 100 feet in length. So, the College of Physical Education now has a building as long as six of these whales put together. To be exact, it measures 620 by 280 feet. It contains four gymnasiums, three swimming pools, a large laundry, classrooms, offices, two dance studios and eighteen laboratories in 198,520 square feet of floor space. The swimming pool area is probably the most spectacular. It includes three swimming pools plus two balconies with seats for 1,100 spectators, all in a single room. One of the pools is a beginners' pool only four and a half feet deep at its deepest point. And there is a diving pool equipped with Dura-flex diving boards which are among the finest in the world. The third pool is an eight-lane competition pool large enough for inter-collegiate and Olympic competition. And, oh yes, large enough to hold a whale.

Dean Milton F. Hartvigsen visits with Mrs. Stephen L. Richards, after dedication of building named for her husband.

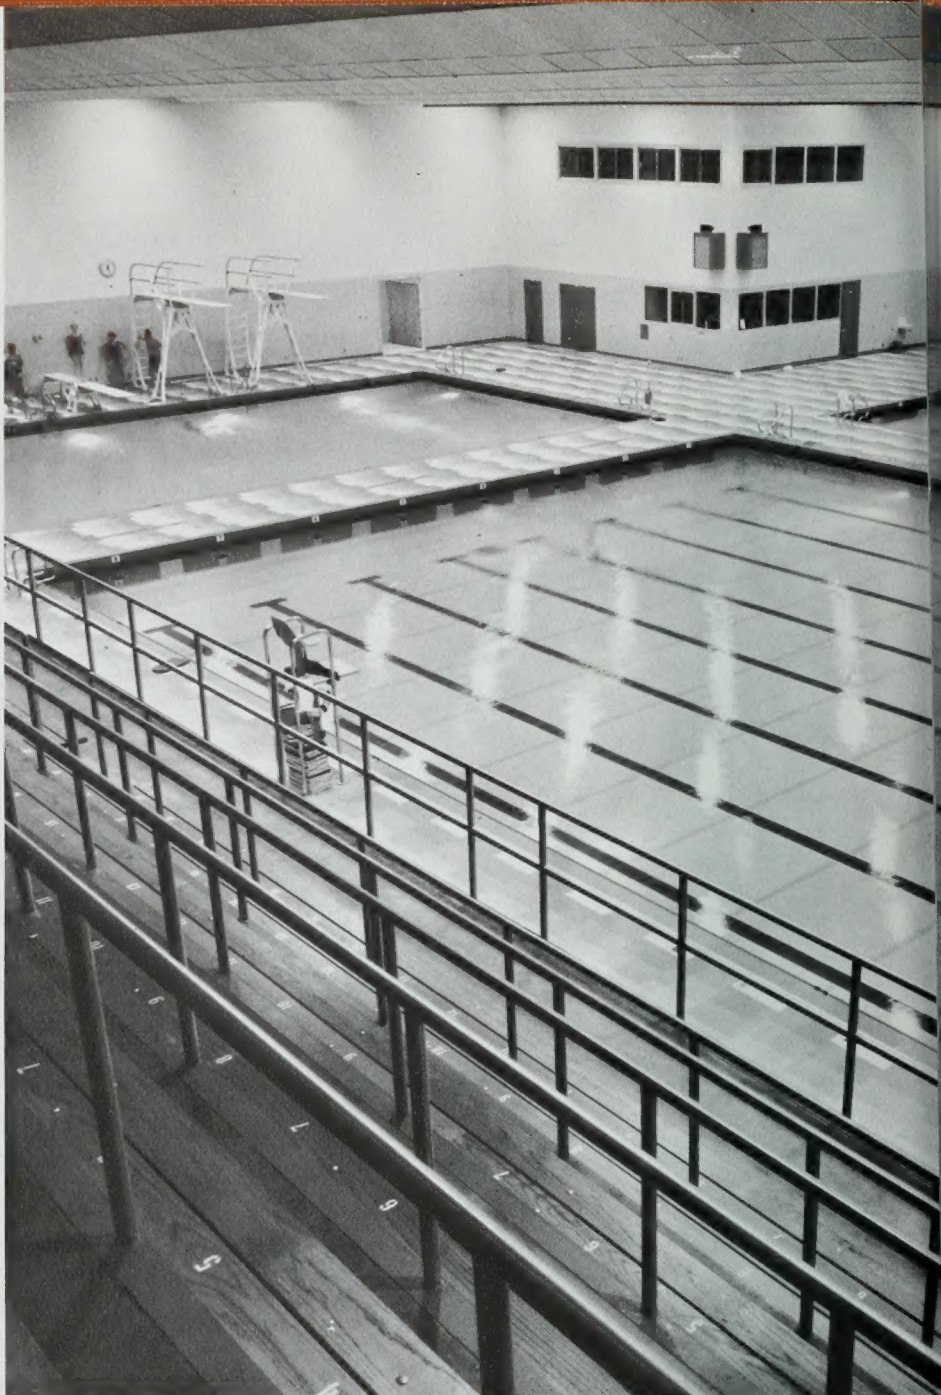

Empty and seemingly endless, the polished hall reflects lights for over 600 feet, the entire length of the new building.

The Human Performance Research Center in the new building consists of eighteen laboratories for experimentation in physical education, athletics and health education, as well as the related medical sciences. The center also includes an animal kennel in which small rodents may be housed and studied, a food and nutrition laboratory and library area. The largest area, however, is the ergometry laboratory, in which physiological studies of man are done. An example of the work that may be carried on in this laboratory is the study of the effect of exertion on heart rate and on the circulatory system.

All Students Receive Religious Instruction

Students of Brigham Young University are able to integrate gospel study into all phases of their learning since relationships to gospel principles may be discussed in any academic class. In addition, courses which provides religious instruction for all students are offered by the College of Religious Instruction. Thus students are given ample opportunity to study the standard works of the church, as well as theology preparation for missionary work, genealogy, church history, world religious and Christian history. Roy W. Doxey is the chairman of the Department of Undergraduate Studies, and Chauncey C. Riddle is chairman of the Graduate Department.

Two institutes have also been established in this college: the Institute of Mormon Studies, directed by Truman Madsen, and the Institute of Book of Mormon Projects, with Daniel Ludlow

1,600 students receive religious instruction via TV

During the past year this college introduced large-screen television instruction. This gave students the opportunity to listen to several outstanding professors, thus broadening their viewpoints and giving them the benefit of the knowledge of different teachers. Some 1600 students participated in the program, receiving instruction in the Book of Mormon on a large, 27-foot television screen in the Joseph Smith Building.

Newly Independent College Faced Busy First Year

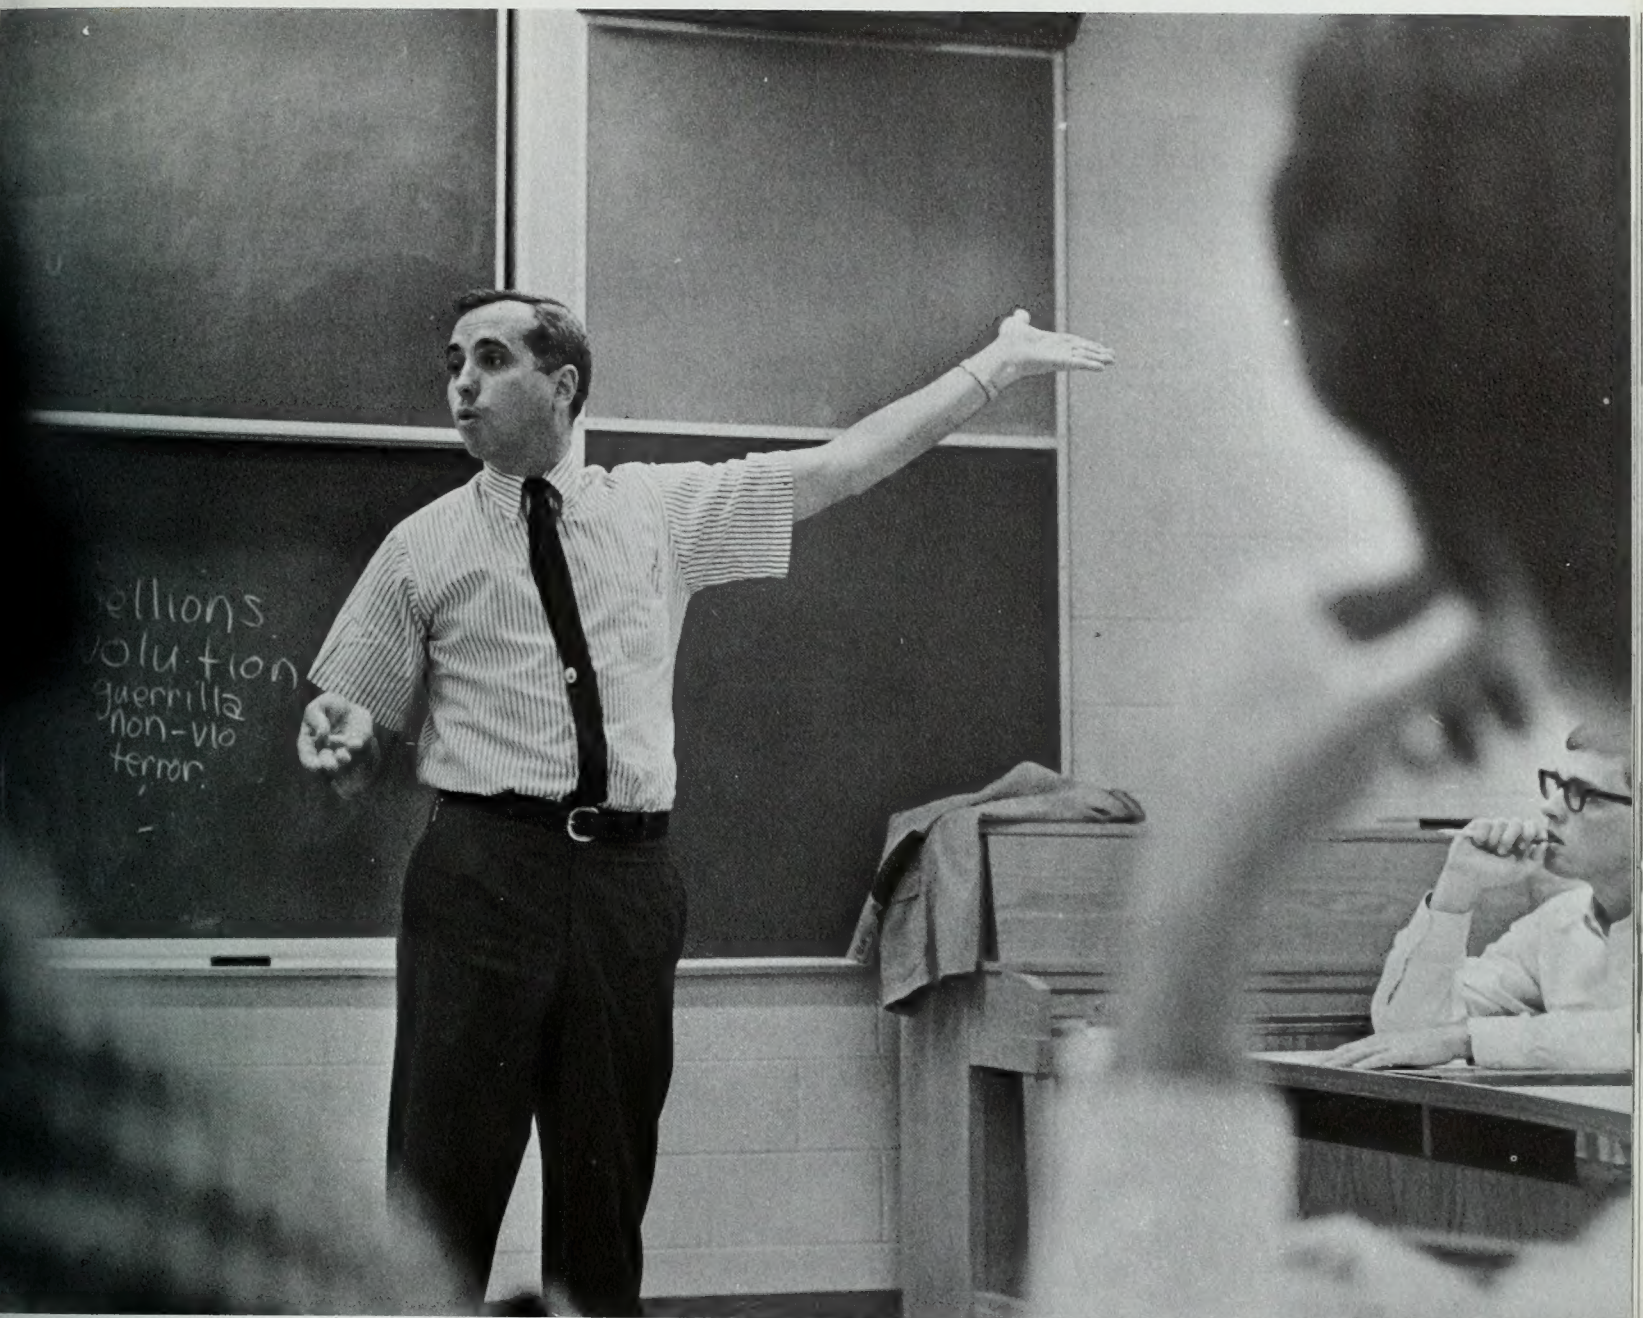

John T. Bernhard, Dean

Increased flexibility and expanded opportunities for research of the varied disciplines it encompasses, marked the first year of the College of Social Sciences. The new college was formed from the division of the combined College of Humanities and Social Sciences, it includes the departments of Archaeology, History, Geography, Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science and Psychology. Also included in the college are the interdisciplinary areas of Asian Studies, International Relations, Russian Studies and Economics. The common denominator for these diversified fields in the rigorous, exacting, research approach which employs the scientific method to discover new truths or to verify old hypotheses about human behavior. According to Dean John T. Bernhard, former administrative assistant to the BYU president and member of the Political Science faculty, the college has undertaken several new studies this year. Among them was one considering the feasibility of initiating a Middle East study program; another dealt with the possible merger of the departments of Archaeology and Anthropology.

History department makes many changes

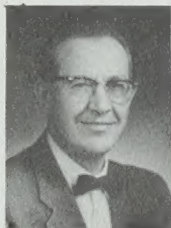

The History Department, which awarded its first three Ph.D.'s this year, has made many changes. More comprehensive courses in American intellectual and Asian history were made available for the first time. Another major curriculum change being considered would make possible the period study of United States history. Six separate courses will offer coverage of a different time period from the colonial era to the twentieth century. Successfully continued and expanded from last year's beginning, the television lecture classes of American History 170 gave a variety of professors the opportunity to address large halls of students by television.

Graduate School

Students entering graduate work expect an emphasis to be placed on objective and analytic work much more so than it was placed at the undergraduate level. Dean Wesley P. Lloyd of the Graduate School suggests that this objectivity of research is the main reason for graduate study. Significantly at BYU the student involved in graduate work in any of the more than 100 fields available to him finds that almost half his time is involved in independent research if he is seeking a Master's Degree; and that for a Ph.D., research is the dominant part of his curriculum with his program bolstered by systematized seminars and classroom work. On the Graduate School devolves the responsibility of co-ordinating the departments offering advanced degrees and setting common standards to assure the meaning and significance of the entire Graduate program. Currently at BYU, 1450 students are seeking advanced degrees on either a full time or part time basis.

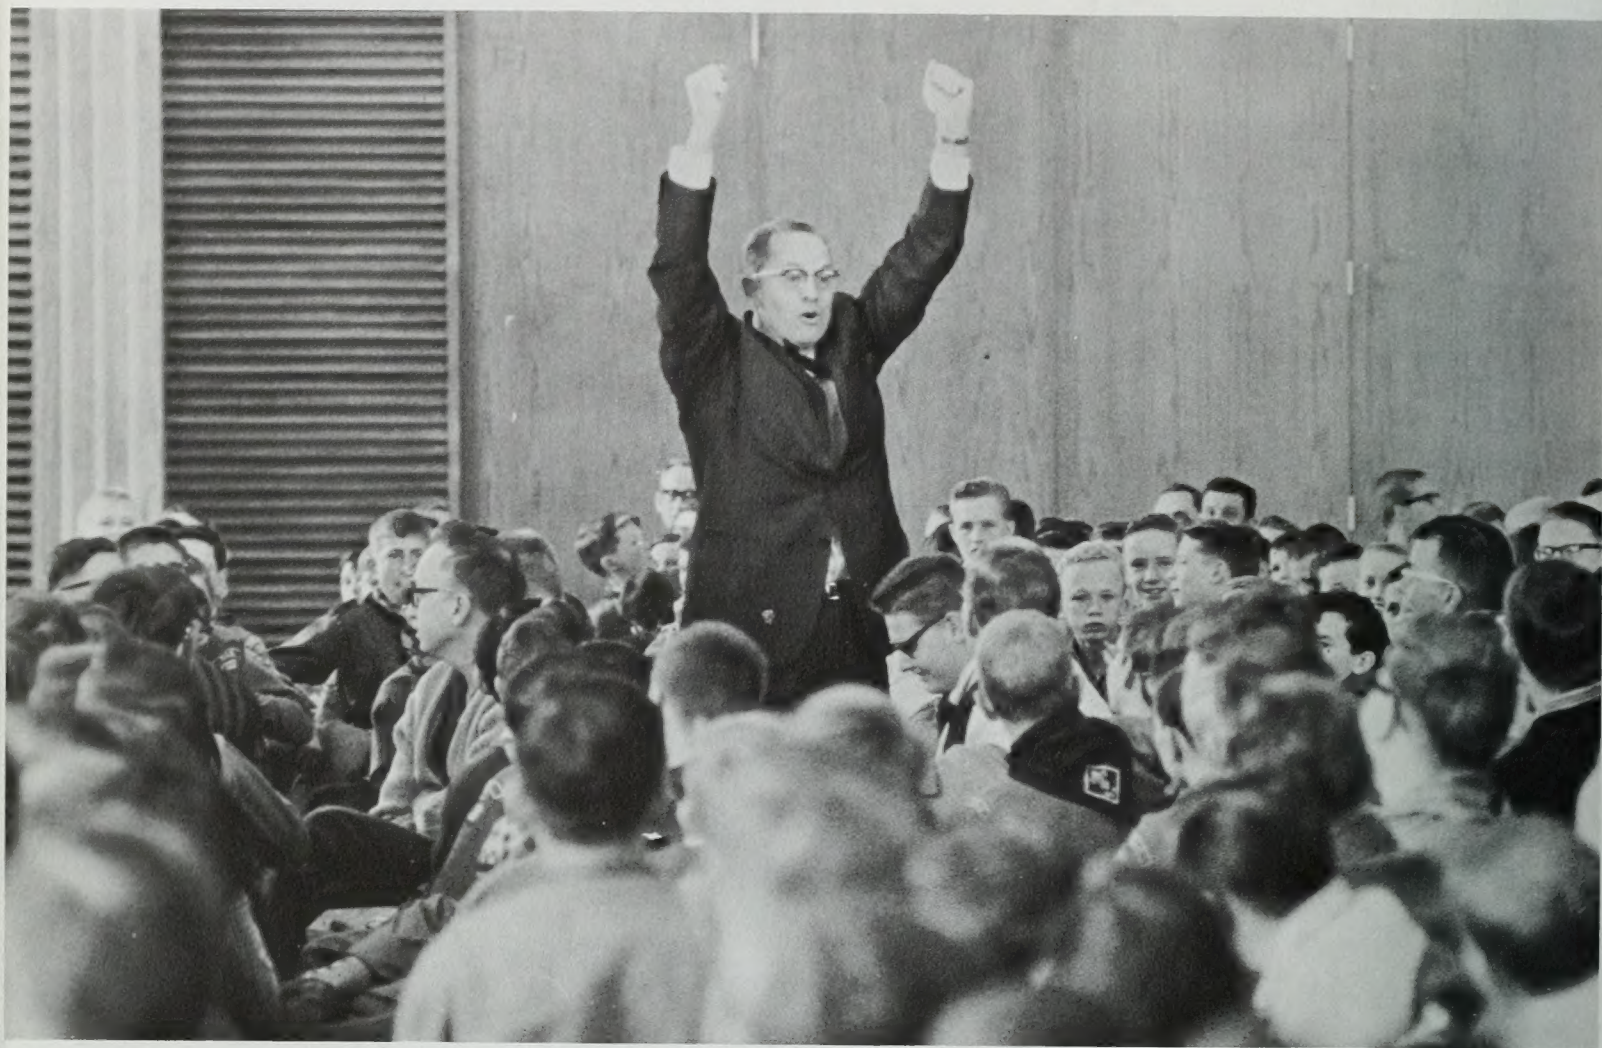

Dr. John H. Gardner, Thesis Advisor assists graduate students in a research project supported by an Air Force Grant.

Emphasizes Objectivity

Special study facilities are provided for the use of graduate students and other mature scholars in the J. Reuben Clark Library.

90,000 Knowledge Seekers Enrolled

French Riviera, an interest point for students in travel study.

In ten years one-half of all knowledge gained from a student's college education will be obsolete, according to Dean Harold G. Clark of the Division of Continuing Education. Consequently, ninety thousand knowledge-seekers are enrolled in programs under the Division's auspices. Mailed by the ton, correspondence courses were sent throughout the world by the Home Study program. Special Courses and Conference sponsors programs and workshops for students and non-students and this year offerings ranged from creative dance workshops to swimming classes. They also sponsored the 1966 Boy Scout Merit Badge Pow-Wow. The Evening School Program attracted a record 5,200 students second semester. The Division's activities continue during the summer when BYU professors participate in the Education Week Program. In community centers throughout the nation, the professors brought the world of education from university to individual. Making the world their campus, the Travel Study Program took students to foreign shores for education never to be obsolete.

Grants Boost BYU Research

Even though the administration continues to emphasize good teaching as the main objective of faculty members, more and more research is being done on the BYU campus. The university's research grants were in excess of one million dollars this year; and, in addition, a new research foundation composed of 25 of the nation's leading businessmen was formed. It is hoped that eventually this foundation will bring millions of dollars to the campus for research purposes. The Human Performance Research Center in the new Richards P.E. Building provides some of the most modern equipment now available for laboratory research; the planned Agricultural and Biological Sciences Building will also contain large numbers of modern facilities. Several faculty members are presently writing books, and others are performing sociological studies or laboratory experiments. From nearly every college in the university information is flowing which goes nationwide from the BYU campus to assist in the creation of a better world.

Geddes, professor in the College of Physical Education, adjusts a beaker on a Mettler balance, accurate to five decimal places, preparatory to weighing several grams of KOH to use in an experiment on lactic acid metabolism in rats. Students participating in the new computer scheduling program work in a language lab in BY High. Under this recent innovation, the student's day is divided into 15 minute periods, and a computer makes daily evaluations of his progress to allot the number of periods he should spend per subject. Each person works at his own rate.

Walter D. Bowen -

Professor of the Year

Teaching a religion class, Dr. Bowen uses the story of Abraham—who was commanded to sacrifice his son—to illustrate faith.

When Dr. Walter D. Bowen heard that he had been chosen Professor of the Year, he thought some one was playing a joke on him. To the modest assistant professor of religion the announcement could mean nothing else. Yet, it was true; by a record ballot the students had voted him to receive the honor. Dr. Bowen was almost embarrassed, but his wife and his seven children back in his little three-acre farm in Orem felt proud of him. The members of the 44th Ward were proud too; through close association they had come to know Dr. Bowen as an energetic and dedicated bishop. To the students who nominated him to receive the award, Dr. Bowen is "a diligent teacher, and enthusiastic supporter of BYU who dedicates his time and talents to the university." Even students who were not aware that he had received the award, upon hearing about it agreed that he deserved it. Said a burly shot putter in one of Dr. Bowen's religion classes: "Man, I really believe it."

Dennis Berrett, a student in one of Dr. Bowen's religion classes, says: "I can tell that he believes what he teaches."

Surrounded by students, Dr. Bowen explains assignments and answers questions which he did not cover during the class.

In meeting with his counselors, Gale Brimhall and William Southwell, Bishop Bowen discusses ward projects and problems.

His pet peeve: No time to prepare

Walter Bowen's day begins at seven in the morning and sometimes ends at midnight. As a teacher, father and bishop his obligations are many. The telephone in his office rings continually; and because of his informal attitude, many ward members and students feel free to drop in without appointments to seek his advice on class and personal problems. Although he believes in a close relationship with his students, Dr. Bowen's large classes make it almost impossible for him to meet every student on an individual basis. He puts it this way: "I have had as many as three-four hundred students a semester. Naturally I can't talk to everyone of them personally. Still, I believe that a teacher can get close to his students by preparing well and by teaching effectively." He then adds with a smile: "Someday I'll try this myself." Not having enough time to prepare is his pet peeve. He says: "I don't think it's right for a teacher to sit in his office and talk to a student about tomorrow's assignment while he should be preparing to teach his classes. On the other hand, if someone comes to me with a vital problem, I'll talk to him anytime." Limited by time, Dr. Bowen believes that a teacher can also establish close contact with his students in the classroom through sincerity. "Most students on campus can detect hypocrisy and insincerity, thus, if a teacher is not sincere, he cannot teach effectively."

A ward officer talks to Bishop Bowen about a problem in her section.

Dr. Bowen emphatically makes a point in class.

Meeting with a student, Dr. Bowen offers advice on a class project. As a bishop he is often consulted on personal problems too.

Taking a break from their Saturday chores, the Bowens pose for an informal photograph in front of their new home in Orem.

His wife is his most beneficial critic

Out of his busy week, Dr. Bowen reserves Fridays and Saturdays to spend with his family. In his small farm in Orem, he feels more comfortable than in the classroom. There, he, his wife Connie, and their seven children: Christine 14, Dean 13, Kay Lynn 10, Dennis 8, Sherry Ann 5, Boyd 3, and 10-month-old Rebecca, do things together. There is a small garden behind their new two-story home where Dr. Bowen and his family plant such things as wheat, strawberries and raspberries. The Bowens are a close-knit family and visiting with them one gets the feeling that the old spirit of the pioneers remains with them. Of his wife, Dr. Bowen says: "She is my most beneficial critic; she tells me things nobody else would on how to improve myself and my teaching." To Dr. Bowen, work and dedication are of prime importance in any profession. He says: "I don't think a man has found the right profession if he can't go through the day when he doesn't lie awake at night thinking about it and can skip meals unknowingly for it." Walter D. Bowen has found the right profession.

Taking a call for her husband, Mrs. Bowen tells caller to try again later. Bulletin board lists members of 44th ward.

While Dennis and Boyd look on, Dr. Bowen and Dean plant raspberries.

The system of wards and stakes on the BYU campus forms one of the most unique church organizations to be found at any university. Over 20,000 students are divided into groups of 3000 called stakes, each of which is further divided into 10 or 11 wards. The six stake presidents, Raymond E. Beckham, Clyde D. Sandgren, Fred A. Schwendiman, William R. Siddoway, A. Harold Goodman and Wayne B. Hales, meet three times monthly with Richard L. Evans, their adviser and a member of the Council of the Twelve, to co-ordinate functions such as the annual six-stake conference on campus. The MIA also has a six-stake council which organizes such traditional events as the roadshow competition.

The Alumni Association maintains a continued interest in the students and alumni of BYU. It encourages campus activities by sponsoring the queen's float at Homecoming, the Grand Prix Bike Race on Y Day and the Alumni-Varsity football game. The Association is also responsible for keeping a personal file on every person who has ever attended BYU, a formidable job now that the school's enrollment has grown to 20,000. After graduation, the former student's bond with the school is maintained through the Association's sponsorship of the Alumnus Magazine, sent without cost to all former students; the Aspen Grove Family Camp; fund-raising projects; class reunions and alumni receptions.

Religious Concepts

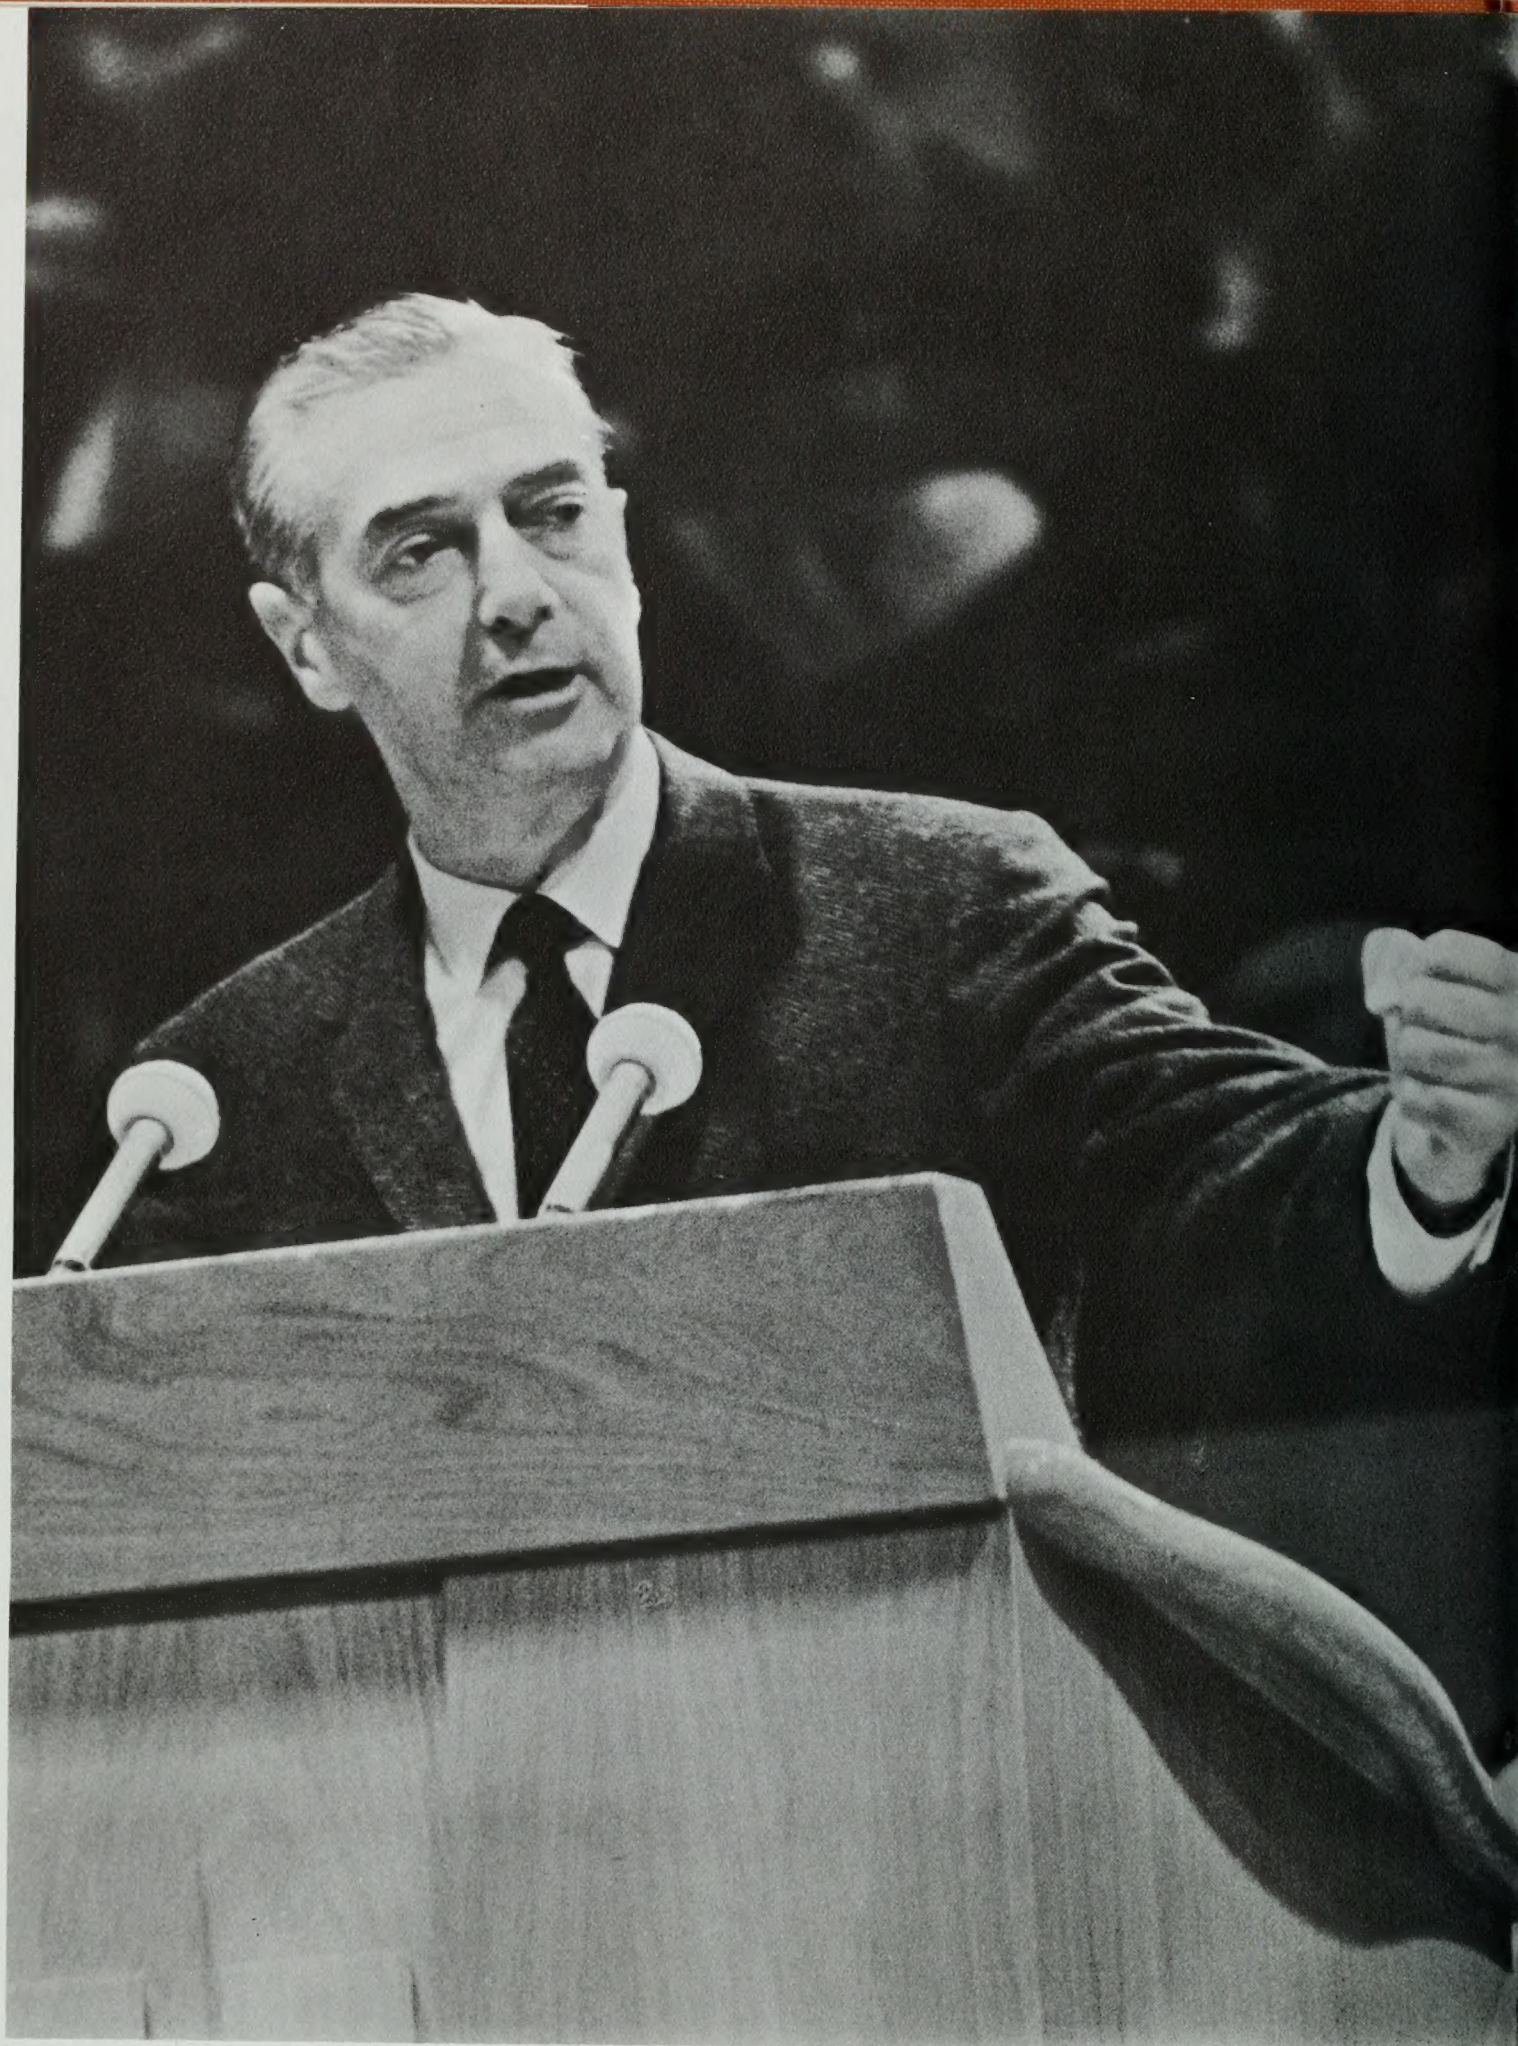

Students pushed and shoved each other in a mass movement to the fieldhouse; they trampled on toes getting to the middle of the row (somehow a few never remembered to move to the center); and they complained about those inconsiderates who got there an hour early to save seats for their friends. But everyone did get in, even if they didn't make it by the opening prayer and had to slink guiltily in front of everyone who was already dutifully sitting down. The announcer who introduced the speaker normally confronted a sea of upraised newspapers, but after the "So glad to have at our great university . . .", the newspapers were lowered, and the reason for the whole thing began: the speaker began his message. And it was worth it, after all. Each Tuesday at 10 o'clock, topics from Joseph Smith to socialism were presented in an atmosphere of reverence and prayer. On September 28 in the first devotional, Mark E. Petersen set the tone for the whole year by a speech on the power within each student to become an exponent of the gospel of Christ. Marion D. Hanks' talk on his philosophy of teaching was valuable to prospective educators. Among the many other inspiring speeches were those of Victor Brown and Spencer W. Kimball, Marion G. Romney's "Socialism and the United Order" and Stephen R. Covey's exhortation for each student to build on the true foundation of Christ.

Forums . . . A Mirror of Modern Life

Giving insights into American and foreign governments and problems, providing knowledge and entertainment, the Forum lecture series offers a mirror of modern life. Entitled "Lectures in Contemporary Civilization," the series makes available to students speakers such as Louis Untermeyer, men who are experts in their fields. Allen Drury, noted author and reporter, spoke on October 21 on the dangerous complacency of the American people and stated that the thing which impressed him most about American government was its essential humanity. Winston S. Churchill, son of the famous British prime minister and noted journalist and author, also spoke on politics. In a lighter vein, world-famed ventriloquist Edgar Bergen presented his show featuring his delightfully chatty dummies, Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, and Effie Klinger. Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of the famed Russian author, Leo Tolstoy, related her experiences with her father. Other noted speakers were Max Lerner, author, educator, and newspaper columnist, and Howard K. Smith, author and correspondent. Lerner warned the studentbody that the American people were sleepwalking into disaster. He suggested that the 3 R's be replaced by the 3 Knows: knowledge of our world, craft, and ourselves. With this knowledge, Americans would be able to fully participate with other nations in break-throughs for progress. Howard K. Smith, veteran political observer, spoke on foreign affairs. He observed that there was no real alternative to President Johnson's policy in Viet Nam, and that war between the U.S. and Russia is unlikely at the present.

James E. Talmage Awards

Marilee Swift accepted the award from the College of Fine Arts and Communications. A music major, she attended Kansas University from 1963 to 1965, where she was a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, a professional music fraternity, and Pi Kappa Lambda, a music honorary. At the "Y" she is a member of Phi Kappa Phi. After graduation she plans to work toward her master's degree.

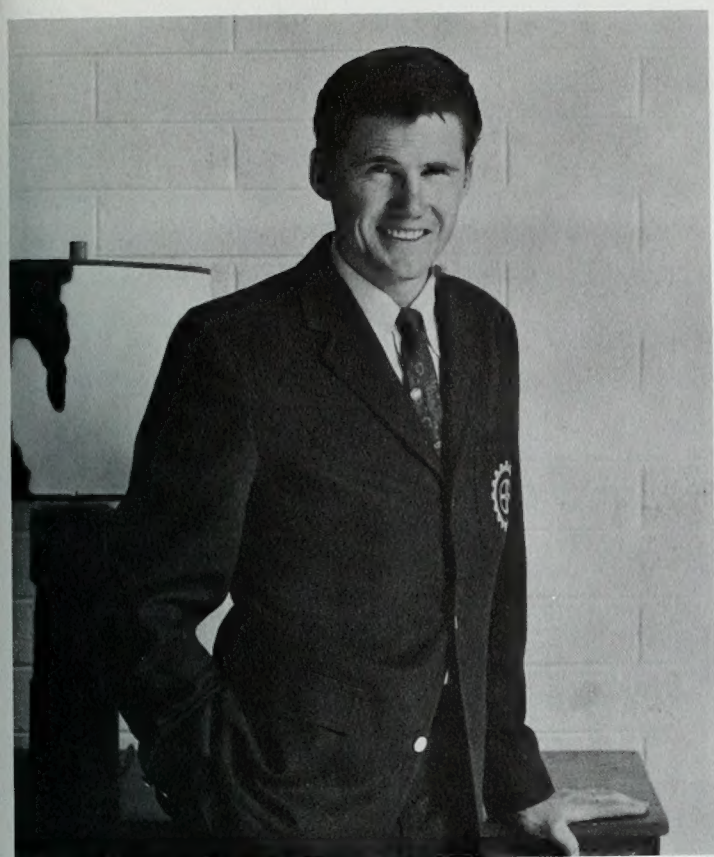

Chosen from the College of Social Sciences is this father of six children, Farrell Walter Lewis. He has led a very active life including military service in World War II; employment with two Arizona banks and Whiting Brothers Charter Flying Service for twelve years; served as a Bishop three years, Bishop's counselor six years, Elder's Quorum President; and President of Holbrook, Ariz. Chamber of Commerce for one year.

Established last year by the Academic Emphasis Committee and the University administration, the James E. Talmage Award is granted to the outstanding student from each college every year. Academic record, depth of character, and participation in curricular and extra-curricular activities are the basis for the selection. The selection is made by joint efforts of the deans of the various colleges, the department chairman, and the Academic Emphasis Committee. Recipients of the award this year were the students on these pages.

Curtis Hawkins, an English major, was chosen to receive the award from the College of Humanities. His interests center around creative writing, and he has worked as assistant editor of the WYE magazine. He has also been a senior resident, a participant in the Honors Program, a member of Phi Kappa Phi and an elder in the Central American mission. After his graduation his plans include entry into the M.B.A. program.

A fifth year student from Cardston, Alberta, Canada, Michael Lavell Leavitt was chosen to receive the award from the College of Industrial and Technical Education. An industrial education major and graphic communications minor, Michael was elected as the secretary of the Industrial Arts Association. He is an active member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

The main interest of Dianne Clyde, recipient of the award from the College of Family Living, is dietetics. A member of the Honors Program, she came to BYU on a scholarship as the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Utah. She has served in Alpha Lambda Delta, a freshman honorary; Omicron Nu, a national home economics honorary organization and Y Calcares. She has also received appointments for dietetic work.

From the College of Business David Sandberg was chosen as the outstanding student. An economics major, he has worked the past year as a teaching assistant in this department. David has been active in many organizations including Omicron Delta Epsilon, Phi Kappa Phi and Beta Gamma Sigma. He has also been a senior resident and member of the Sunday School superintendency, as well as a member of the concert band.

Receiving the award from the College of Agricultural and Biological Sciences was John G. Tew, a senior majoring in bacteriology. He is presently attending school on a scholarship and has received a pre-doctoral fellowship from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. His special interest is immunology, and he is working as a research assistant in that field.

A future elementary school teacher, Diane Stone was selected from the College of Education. To give added experience in her major, she has served as treasurer of the Association for Childhood Education; she also has a teaching minor in French and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi. To further broaden her experience, she spent the summer of 1964 in France studying at the University of Paris with the travel study program.

The award from the College of Nursing was given to Margaret L. Ashby, whose special interest is private duty nursing. She is presently serving as a representative to the Utah State Student Nurse Association. She has acted as treasurer and vice-president of SNA, as well as working in the Relief Society, MIA and Leadership Committee. She was selected Y standout in March.

New Record

6000 Participate in Government

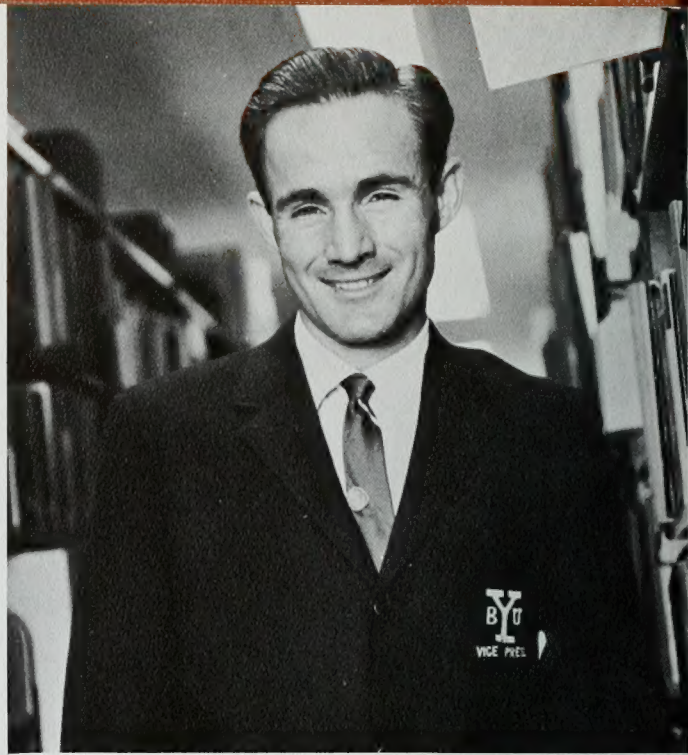

ASBYU President poses in front of a picture of the Y's mascot. His office has a busy atmosphere but is always welcoming and casual.

In a unique institution such as the Y, it is necessary to have a student government that is capable of managing its particular problems, working with its individual attitudes and operating in its different atmosphere. At the Y, the problem arises not of how to get people out to a dance, but what to do with the 8000 that come. Here, the attitude is so enthusiastic about school activities that jobs for 6000 students are quickly filled for student government. And, at BYU there is an atmosphere of friendliness, cooperation and high standards. The challenge, then, is to combine the problems, the attitudes and the atmosphere and work simultaneously with both students and administration to produce an effective, efficient organization. The 1966 studentbody government coped with just such a challenge and helped President Bob Christiansen accomplish a cougar year that set the Y years ahead of other college campuses in government.

Executive Council juggled studies, responsibilities

Under the presidency of Bob Christiansen, these five vice-presidents; their various committees, councils and boards; the two executive assistants and the executive secretary worked concurrently with students and administration to solve the problems, plan the activities and provide the atmosphere that students here expect. For the most part, these students juggled homework and governing responsibilities to find a way to keep up their grade point average and satisfy the demands of the positions. Although their positions were often criticized, they were still positions of great accomplishment and gratification.

Lynn Southam, from Pleasant Grove, Utah, filled the newly organized office of Academics Vice-President.

Dave Hoopes, from Oakland, California, was Executive Assistant to the President.

Boyd Zolinger, from Island Park, Idaho, filled an Executive Assistant position.

Craig Collette, a graduating senior from Seattle, Washington, majoring in political science, faced the responsibility of the controversial fad dance ban on campus.

Russell Parker, the Vice-President in the Cultural office, was a junior from Draper, Utah, and made his field of major study in accounting.

Dale Marquis, a senior from Glendale, California, handled the duties of Vice-President of Finance.

Mary Curley, Executive Secretary from Fort Defiance, Arizona, was a junior in the major field of dramatic arts.

Jerry Callister, a junior from Merced, California, served as the Vice-President of Student Relations.

Associated Men Students

The brother group of the AWS is the AMS. With the 10,035 men students enrolled on campus this year the leaders of the AMS were kept busy co-ordinating students housing activities. The AMS sponsored the Christmas drive, Winter Carnival, Men's Night, Fight Night, and Y Day. In conjunction with the AWS, the Associated Men Students also were involved in helping international students become acquainted with the American college life and helping them to make their visit to another land one of great enjoyment and education.

To act as mouthpiece for the women students, to provide activities for improvement of BYU co-eds as individuals, as women, and as future homemakers and career women; these are the goals of the AWS of BYU. With a major re-organization this year there are now three officers elected by the women students, a representative from each class, and from IOC and ISC. The council members meet weekly to plan activities such as Sweetheart's Night, and the Preference Ball.

Assembly

The Honor Council revised the out-dated and often inconsistent Honor Code this year. A heated debate was attended by both students and faculty and the Honor Council members were given the opportunity to sample student opinion before formulating the new philosophy for the system, aiding students and faculty in assuming responsibility and also in providing trained counselors to work with any referred honor code violators.

Last year's ASBYU constitutional revision dissolved the studentbody Senate and created the streamlined ASBYU Assembly in its place. The new Assembly consists of only 21 members; its smaller size makes it much more efficient than the previously existing Senate. Presided over by Jim Fox, it consists of two representatives from each class, two at large, two from housing, one from organizations, and the five vice presidents. The Assemblymen also discarded Robert's Rules of Order in favor of a more relaxed, informal atmosphere in order to speed the passage of legislation.

ASBYU Supreme Court is the judicial sector of student government. During the year the court heard cases from the traffic court ranging from moving violations with heavy fines to parking tickets. This year's cases also included the IOC trial of Young Men versus the ASBYU, which led to the new court order that gave the Supreme Court jurisdiction over all cases involving suspension of IOC members. The court is composed of one Chief Justice and four Associate Justices, all of whom hold office until they terminate their schooling at BYU.

Traffic Court

The Traffic Court is composed of six judges, each a student, who have the authority to refund money to students they find not guilty. The court is divided into two branches: Day Court handles parking violations, Night Court handles moving violations. The traffic policies are set by BYU administration and enforced by BYU security. The court feels its main responsibility is to inform students of the traffic laws. One change this year in the traffic law system is: instead of the point system students are allowed 5 tickets before they go on traffic probation.

Inter-Organization Council

An active branch of I.O.C. is the Inter-Service Council which monitors the activities of the campus' eight service units. These service units are available for ushering, ticket selling, booth manning, and other service projects. The new BYU information booth was manned by the service units as a cooperative project. The council sponsored I.S.C. week where each service unit solicited for members and painted and rejuvenated the old stadium. It is through I.S.C. that the student-body can most effectively obtain the service unit's help.

The Inter-Organization Council combines the 106 campus organizations into one representative unit. Through the I.O.C. each club can schedule events and programs and not have them conflict with another club's activities. In addition to coordinating, the organization also has the responsibility of maintaining club standards. The organization has the authority to investigate and prosecute infractions of any university standard except in cases of grave violations such as suspension or disbandment when the case would be taken to the supreme court.

The staff of the biggest Banyan ever produced on the BYU campus works in cluttered, seemingly unorganized Banyan Office.

Helio Gonzalez, Editor

Biggest Banyan Ever Goes to Press

On the fifth floor of the Wilkinson Center in 538c is the Banyan Office, an office with its own breed of creators: its own artists, authors, photographers, perfectionists, leaders and followers; its own language: its own meanings for spines, slicks, stripping, gutters, galleys and grids; and its own tempo-moods: its own laziness, slow-motion, composure, busyness, excitement and chaos. At the first of the year the staff socialized in the office, learned new names and faces and then, later they met the responsibility of publishing the Banyan, the "Biggest Ever." The year progressed and the staff felt pressure from the 528-page giant. It made the office groan and bulge and at times even spill over into the neighboring Universe Office. On the cork board there were such slogans as: "To err is unlikely — to forgive is unnecessary" and "If at first you don't succeed, cut your throat and watch it bleed." Although seemingly impatient, the staff waited, worked and worried and made the Banyan Office a second home.

Staff pushes 208 pages in six days

At the onset the book seemed nearly impossible to tackle. We met the first two deadlines. They were red-letter days—few staffs had ever claimed such a victory, yet we slack-ed off until February. Then we received an ultimatum to finish 168 pages in one week. The decision was made and for one solid week we concentrated on the yearbook, dis-regarding homework, studies, sleep, food. Some of us work-ed for 40 hours without sleep, and then after three or four hours of rest we started in working again. We got sick of Wilkinson Center hamburgers and the smell of Rubber Cement glue, of the four glass walls and KSL-FM stereo. But six days later we turned over to the Press 208 pages.

Some directed, some asked, some reflected and some dreamt, but to those who could concentrate on the work at hand the giant began to be cut down. Little by little pictures were scheduled, thousands taken; names recorded, thousands printed; copy written, reams rejected; layouts drawn, many thrown away; but finally—after the pictures were tagged, the layouts cut, the final copy slicked and the whole thing proofread four or five times, the pages went to press. And what came back? A $56,000 publication representing sleepless nights, migraine headaches, and lowered G.P.A.'s. But more than this, there were 8100 Banyans in the hands of students, faculty and administrators—accumulated histories of 1965-66 at Brigham Young University, enough by themselves to explain exactly what makes the "Y" stand out.

Daily Universe Increases Circulation and Pages Printed

Sharon Beauchamp, Assistant to the Editor

The Daily Universe can mark up this year as one of its most unusual and rewarding years of publication. The staff under the editorship of Budge Wallis increased the number of pages printed and circulation. Wallis was invited by LIFE magazine in cooperation with the Department of Defense and NASA to attend the launching of Gemini at Cape Kennedy in December. He also attended the National Associated Collegiate Press Convention in San Francisco along with Paul Lau, business manager and J. Morris Richards, adviser. Things that made this year eventful for the staff were the colorful Homecoming edition, the April Fool's edition, the leadership weekend at the Homestead in Heber, more editorials and more in-depth stories, not to mention the comments raised by the columns and editorials on student government.

Some of the new positions on the Universe created to make a more complete staff and to better serve the students were the editorial council and an assistant to the editor. These positions were added to give the students a better view of the controversial subjects that came up during the year and to promote better public relations. At the end of the year the Universe was represented in the Rocky Mountain Collegiate Press Association Conference held in Arizona. The award that has become an annual occurrence with the BYU newspaper at this conference is that of the first place plaque.

Providing creative students with an outlet for their talents, the Wye Magazine aims to reflect the uniqueness of BYU life and at the same time to retain high literary quality. After having been sponsored by various organizations, the magazine has finally returned to the English Department, where it seems to have been remarkably successful this year. More manuscripts were submitted for the fall issue than in the previous two years combined, and nearly 3000 copies were sold.

The publication now has a circulation of about 1000 students and alumni.

The Frustration of Registration

With a record-breaking enrollment of over 20,000 students, registration this year exhibited more of the traditional confusion than ever before. Yet this so-called "frustrating and complicated" procedure actually helped students register quickly and efficiently during the three days. Enrolled in September were 18,725 day-time students and 1,254 others attending only evening school. With the addition of 333 returning missionaries and servicemen register at mid-term, the total enrollment for the fall semester reached 20,312. This big studentbody represents a 430 per cent increase since 1950-51 when Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson became president.

Registration is frustration, a tussle. . .

Registration is men in uniform pointing the way; dropping a new catalog in a September snow storm; waiting in line hour after hour; finding a certain packet among thousands and thousands of IBM cards; tussling for that favorite class only to find it closed; rushing frantically for a Dean's signature; buying parking permits and, best of all, reading a sign that says "Finalization" and knowing that you are through.

Leaders Attend Six-day Conference

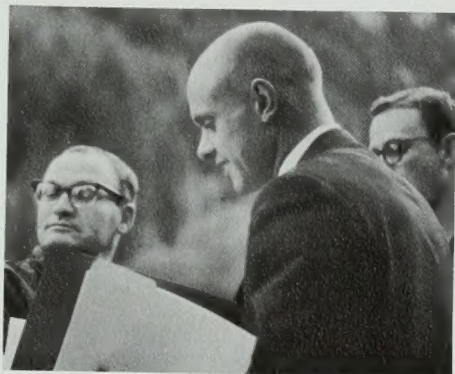

The annual fall leadership week of BYU was held at Aspen Grove in Provo Canyon. Behind Mount Timpanogos, 200 student leaders found isolation and were able to concentrate on developing relationships, modes of communication and decision-making policies. Each day for six days they sat in group sessions or listened to theory lectures; played shuffle board, sang around the lodge piano, played guitars and listened to fellow students plan future campus activities. President Wilkinson spoke of strengthening government influences at the testimony meeting held the last day. Coming back to campus, the students had sun-burned noses, a determination about their jobs for 1965-66 and a firmer dedication to Brigham Young University and its 20,000 students.

Homecoming Brings Myriad of Events to Campus

In a flurry of color and excitement, Homecoming Week brought to the campus a myriad of events that delighted both spectators and participants. Dances, contests, pep rallies, and many other activities suddenly took precedence over academic work. As the returning alumni began to arrive on campus, students worked frantically preparing sets, rehearsing, and building floats and housing decorations. The highlight of the week came on Saturday, November 6, when nearly 30,000 fans crowded into the BYU stadium to watch the Cougars' victory over archrival University of Utah.

Kim Boone, 1965 Homecoming Queen

Pretty girls rule the campus for a week

Kim Boone, a bright-eyed, pretty coed from Provo, was selected to reign as Homecoming Queen. Kim is a girl with a warm and friendly personality and just a touch of shyness, her favorite occupations are skiing and dancing. A member of the BYU Program Bureau, Kim traveled through the Middle East last spring with Curtain Time U.S.A., a Program Bureau presentation. Queen Kim shuns frivolous things and is interested in the serious side of life. We asked her what the highlight of her royal assignment had been and she replied, "Our visit with President McKay was definitely the highlight just being able to see him and to talk to him meant more to me than anything else." Kim's plans for the future include graduation and marriage but are not definite. "A girl's plans are always tentative," she says.

Christine Payne, Second Attendant

Christine Payne, a strawberry blonde from Denver, Colorado, was selected Second Attendant. Chris—as her friends call her—has been dreaming of a nursing career since early childhood. In pursuit of her dream she came to BYU in 1963 and enrolled in the College of Nursing; she expects to graduate in May of 1967. Chris likes the outdoors and enjoys fishing and riding; among her homemaking skills are knitting and cooking. We asked green-eyed Chris about her plans for the future and she revealed that she plans to combine her career with marriage. At the present time she is engaged to former ASBYU President Bruce Olsen and they plan to marry sometime during the summer of 1966.

Margaret Dyreng, First Attendant

Margaret Dyreng, a brunette from Manti, Utah, was selected First Attendant. Margaret is very active in extracurricular activities; she is YWMIA President of the 47th Ward, a member of Angel Flight and also a member of the Junior House of Representatives. The dark-eyed attendant values sincerity highly and her many friends are evidence of her own sincere and frank attitude towards people. Of her royal assignment she said, "Being in the Homecoming Court is one of the highest honors ever paid me: to represent the type of girl on this campus." Margaret told us that she loves to be at BYU and that she is especially impressed with the fellowship and friendliness that exist among students here.

Highlights: a parade and a football win

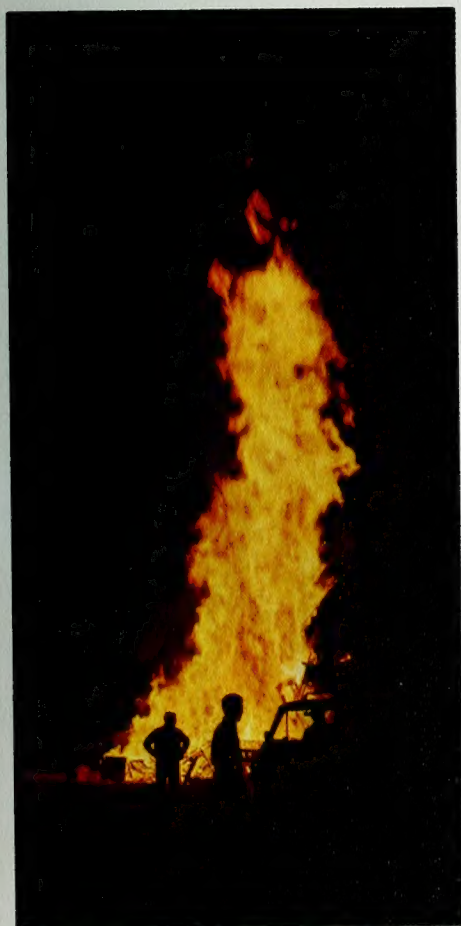

Saturday, November 6 proved to be the biggest day of the Homecoming festivities. The Homecoming parade was the largest the school has ever seen and thousands of people lined Center Street and University Avenue to watch such beautiful floats as the Sweepstakes winner, "The Worth of a Child," by Wymount Terrace, "Symbol of Infinite Culture," by the Chinese Club; "Depths of Infinity," by the Senior Class; "Infinity is a Never-ending Cycle," entered by the Sportswomen and the Sportsmen, and more.

For the thousands of Cougar fans who crowded into the BYU football stadium and for thousands more who listened spellbound by their radios, the Cougars' victory over archrival University of Utah was the highlight of all Homecoming activities. In a real team effort guided by BYU's sensational quarterback Virgil Carter, the Cats downed the Utes for only the third time in 41 seasons. The game was a wide-open contest that saw both teams move the ball almost at will. Carter, effectively protected by his offensive line, passed for 253 yards and four touchdowns. Carter's teammate Bob Ashdown assured the BYU victory when, with only one minute to go in the game, he intercepted a Ute pass on the BYU 12-yard line.

Other big events for the week included the Homecoming Concert and the traditional Fieldhouse Frolics. The concert was a combination of comedy, folk music and jazz presented Friday night by Bob Newhart, The Three D's and the Don Scaletta Trio. Newhart delighted the audience with a mixture of old and new routines including his famous "Driving Instructor." The Three D's, all BYU graduates now recording for Capitol Records also drew a huge ovation from the capacity crowd. The Fieldhouse Frolics, presented Saturday night was under the direction of Jane Thompson of the BYU Program Bureau. The show included song and dance numbers and a unique presentation of Cougar athletic teams.

The accomplishments, goals, and potential of BYU women were emphasized November 15-19 in AWS Woman's Week. With the theme "As Women Seek," activities such as a trousseau tea and fashion show focused the campus spotlight on women. Each day a specific theme concerned with one of the various aspects of womanhood was emphasized. Tuesday's theme of truth was developed by a speech by Truman Madsen in devotional and a discussion of the Topic "What Is Truth" by Lynn Southam. Creativity was emphasized on Wednesday by a demonstration and tour of the Hobby Shop and a display of arts and handicrafts in the sunken lounge of the ELWC. Thursday's theme of beauty was amplified to a forum speech by vibrant, warmhearted Maria Von Trapp. The high point of the week came on Friday, however, with the Preference Ball, themed "Because You're You," and the announcement of Jerry Callister as the Most Preferred Man in 1966.

Winter Carnival Gets Weatherman's Nod

Though a winter-weary studentbody was getting tired of fighting snow drifts, the white cover assured a successful Winter Carnival.

Sportswomen's entry in snow sculpturing contest.

Frequently in the past the traditional BYU Winter Carnival has languished for seasonal lack of snow; it was fitting that in this year, with Utah vying for the 1972 Winter Olympics, the BYU campus was covered with a blanket of the white stuff. Having nature's approval, the varied Carnival festivities combined with student enthusiasm to produce one of the most successful such events in campus history. The program was launched with the lighting of the symbolic Olympic torch by Utah Governor Calvin L. Rampton in the enclosed patio of the Wilkinson Center. The torch burned brightly throughout the almost two weeks of events, which included dances, shows and contests.

Sporting the theme of "Winter Olympics 1966," the BYU Winter Carnival featured a number of ski races and winter sports activities. Among these events were the hotly contested intramural downhill ski event and intramural slalom ski race. Other activities making good use of the plentiful winter weather were held during the festive week. The snow sculpture contest was won by Delta Phi Kappa with their portrayal of a sad cougar suffering from a skiing accident. Daniel Hocq, an international student from France, won first place in the ice sculpturing competition with his carving of the Olympic Torch resting on the head of a cougar. Indoor activities were another feature of the program and continuous showing of ski movies on the campus captured the attention of less energetic winter sports enthusiasts. A traditional highlight of Winter Carnival is the concert and the winter carnival dances. The featured performer at the concert was Chad Mitchell whose unusual singing style delighted the audience.

Their reign began on February 12 with the crowning at the half-time of a basketball game with Denver; they stood by as the Olympic torch flamed; and they presided royally at the other Winter Olympics activities. Even President McKay wished them success in a personal interview held in Salt Lake on the 16th. Sue, a sports-minded English major from Provo, keeps busy with her jobs as president of Chi Triellas and head flag twirler. Nevin, an accounting major from Huntington, Utah, serves as a varsity yell leader and is a member of the Cougar Club. He also acts as president of Beta Alpha Psi, a national accounting fraternity and has been a preferred man for the last two years.

Themed "The World Is Our Campus," International Week exposed American students to different national cultures and helped to promote global understanding. The 859 foreign students at the "Y" coming from over 50 foreign countries offered lectures, displays and activities to provide experiences in various national cultures which would appeal to each member of the studentbody. The week's presentation included colorful exhibitions of national art, crafts, jewelry and costumes in the Y Center, a special forum speech on the Middle East by Ali Shayegan, past member of the Iranian Cabinet; a sports tournament, and a fireside. Each day travelogues were shown and a different type of national food was served in the Y Center. Students from such varied areas as Africa, the Far East, South America, Europe and the South Seas were featured. The week concluded with a banquet in which the foreign students were all able to get together and in addition to meet with interested, international-minded Americans.

Engineering...Creative Resource for Progress" was the theme for this year's Engineering Week. During the week, the engineers introduced interested students and faculty to the scope of their activities through a two-day exhibit of some twenty projects prepared by seniors in the four engineering societies on campus. The electrical engineers won the award for the best display and also for the best individual exhibit. A new feature was the selection of a queen to reign over the week's activities. Janina Fowler, sponsored by the civil engineers, was selected queen, and her attendants were Melissa Fowler and Joan Smith. The engineers also sponsored a forum assembly featuring Dr. Jerome Wiesner, Dean of Science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Keynote speaker at the Engineering Week Banquet was Dr. James C. Fletcher, current president of the University of Utah, who told the engineers and their guests that life as we know it could not exist on Mars.

Margot Walker, 1966 Belle of the Y

The Belle of the Y

The Y on the mountain flamed, and as observers held their breath, an upright line and then another began to flare beside it. A glowing M at last grew visible, and thus it was announced that Margot Walker was the 1966 Belle of the Y. Margot, a pretty brunette from Holtville, California, made enough of an impression on the judges to place in four of the seven contests designed to find the ideal BYU girl. She is a senior majoring in physical education and in her spare time she serves as an MIA officer in the 47th ward. She enjoys dancing, sports and playing the piano. There aren't many things that she dislikes but she hates busybodies. "People should mind their own business and leave others alone," she says.

Julene Jacobsen, First Attendant

Julene Jacobsen, a sparkling 19-year-old blonde from Riverside, California, was the court's first attendant. She is an informal, vivacious girl who does not take herself too seriously. When we asked her how she felt about being a member of the court, she replied with a mixture of pride and modesty: "I think that more than anything I was the court jester." She also claims to be a nut on Abraham Lincoln. "I even keep a scrap book on him," she says. Julene likes spring days full of such things as beautiful flowers, fat buzzing bees and warm sunlight. She is refreshingly unaffected and perhaps as a consequence, hates people who are hypocritical.

Susan Wayment, Second Attendant

Susan Wayment, a 20-year-old redhead from Arcadia, California, was chosen second attendant to Belle Margot. Green-eyed Susan loves outdoor sports and her favorites are swimming and skiing. She hates bananas and people who ask her if her hair is dyed. She likes to get good grades—she holds a 3.5 GPA—but is not a bookworm and although her friends think of her as a quiet girl, she is not always serious. "I like to goof around too," she says. Susan is a junior majoring in homemaking education and her future plans include a Master's degree, a mission and a teaching career. We have a hunch that a marriage proposal along the way will disrupt her plans.

Southam Trounces Callister in Presidential Race

In the bright afternoon light, Lynn, surrounded by followers and aides, listens intently to a question raised by a student.

Jerry chats with passing friends who ask him how things are.

Proving that election campaigns can be subtle and still win votes at BYU, Lynn Southam toppled Jerry Callister in the presidential race by the largest vote margin won by a presidential hopeful in 10 years. From the very beginning both campaigns started out in an entirely different tempo. Jerry was the man with tie and coat, a fast gate and the ability to delegate authority. His ingenuity projects were inventive and resourceful and his lapel cards were brightly colored. Lynn was the "folksy" candidate, often campaigning in shirt sleeves; the man behind the scenes. His displays were inconspicuous, he seldom used a sound system and his lapel cards were subtly colored. In the end, Lynn's subtlety won out over Jerry's gait — its person to person effect appealed to the students and when the ballots were counted, Lynn had 5,485 votes; 3,193 more than Jerry's 2,292. Other winners were Paul Gilbert, Vice-president of Academics; Stephen Nadauld, Culture; Al Kemp, Finance; Sandy Kross, Social; Del Williams, Student Relations; Leo Beus and Donovan Davisson, Assemblymen.

Hard campaigner Merwin Grant did not get enough votes to win.

Big show designed to get votes, promote interest in student government

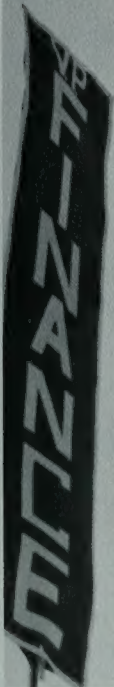

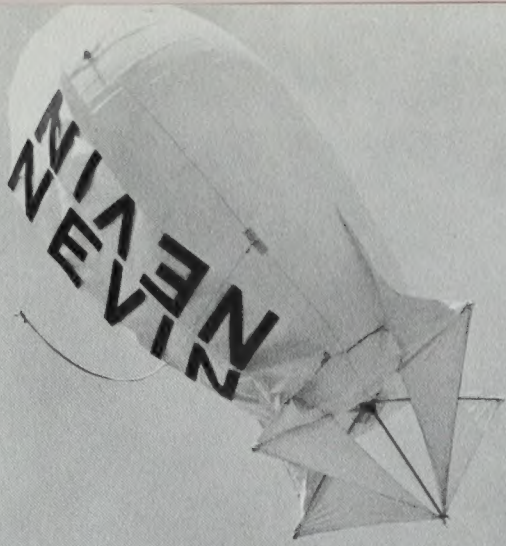

Students coming out of forum assembly are met by campaigning crowd holding scores of signs promoting student candidates.

Candidates for most offices campaigned enthusiastically. There was more at stake than votes; they were also trying to fight student apathy towards student government. Helium-filled balloons, dancing girls, bands, boys on stilts and trampolines, and blaring music interspersed with appeals to vote were all part of the big push. Candidates presented their views at club meetings, dorms and on the quad. They stood in the sun speaking, shaking hands and distributing pamphlets until their noses peeled. Inwardly hopeful but outwardly bedraggled, they kept smiling until the end. While some succeeded in their primary objective; getting elected, the push for student interest was only partially successful. Only approximately 40% of the studentbody took the trouble to vote. It was much different than in the good old days, when large per centages were recorded. In 1955, for example, 80% of the studentbody came out to vote.

"Enchanté" Thrills Prom-goers

Hundreds of couples fill the Wilkinson Center ballroom during the Junior Prom, one of the gala events of the school year.

Entertaining Junior Prom couples, The Four Preps present an imitation of a famous singing group. The audience loved it.

One of the most remembered events of the year was the Junior Prom, themed "Enchanté." The concert which began the evening featured the Four Preps performing a medley of their most popular hits, songs such as "26 Miles" and "Down by the Station." Emphasis at the dance was on atmosphere as multicolored lights glinted off the many facets of a huge silver ball suspended from the ceiling, and the soft music of The Scotsmen set the romantic mood of the evening. The ballroom of the Y Center was changed from its everyday existence into a misty, blue-lighted world of enchantment. Decorations were done in pink, pale rose and powder blue; and a smoking volcano occupied one corner of the floor. The cafeteria too was transformed with the use of soft lighting and a blue candle in an antique gold holder on each of the tables. Refreshments were pink slush, cream puffs and tiny green twisted sticks of candy. Each girl received a small bottle of Sergysismo perfume imported from Paris for a favor. For the floorshow, Rosanne Tueller Nielson, first attendant to Miss America 1964, sang "I Love Paris," the number that won her that honor. A group of adagio dancers, a folk singing group called The Four Brothers and Three Others, and a ballroom dance team also performed.

Libraries Are For Ssssleeping

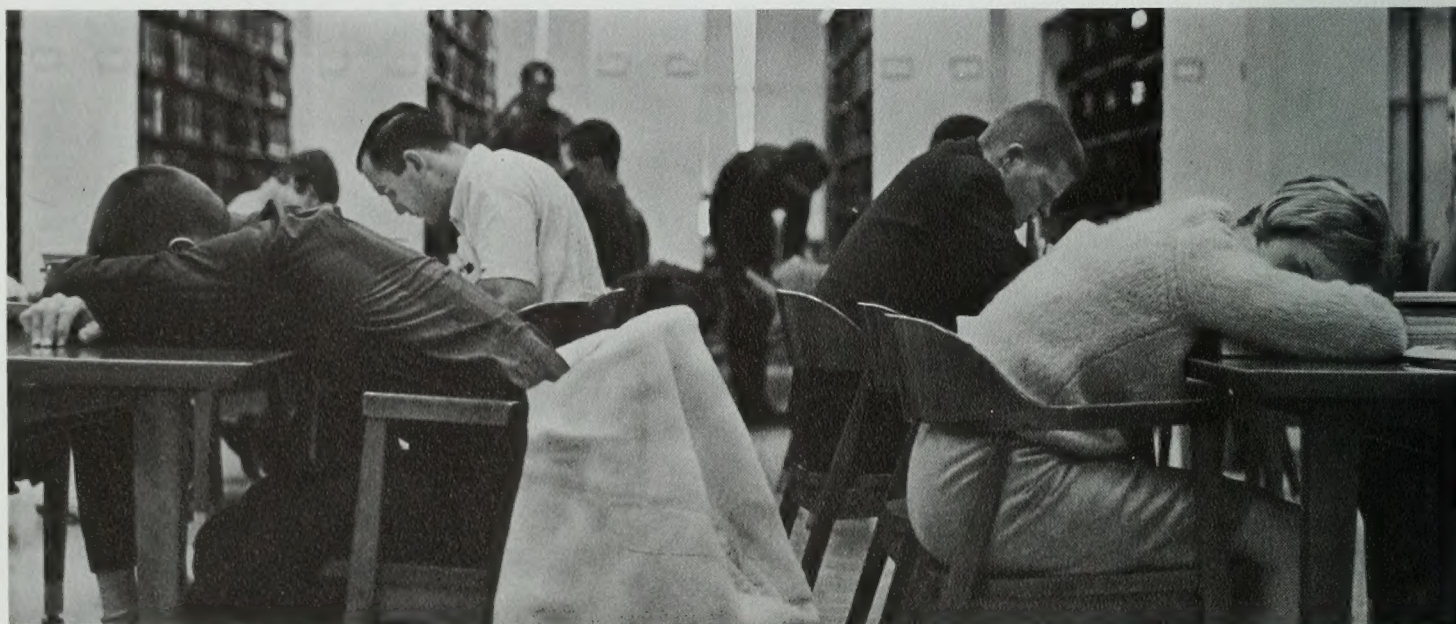

In the quiet surroundings a student finds it hard to stay awake.

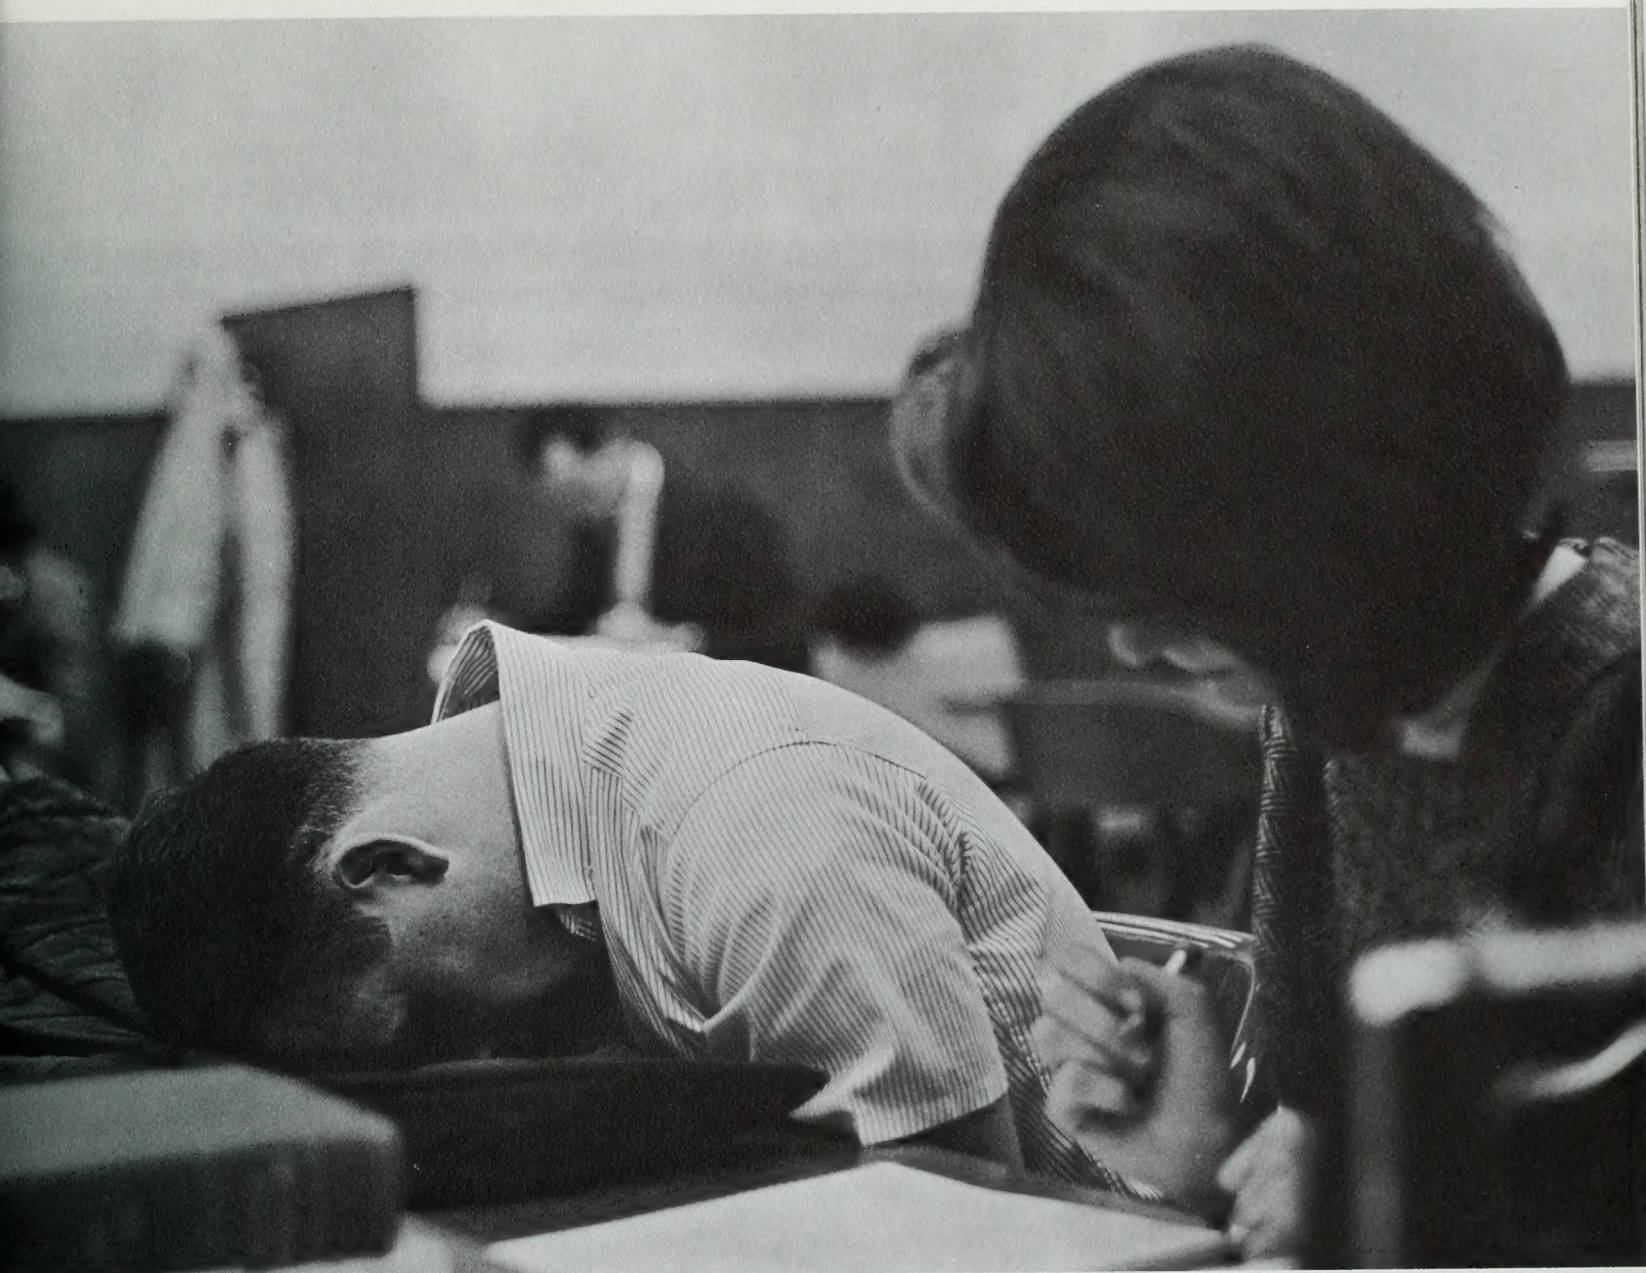

Did it ever happen to you? Perhaps the day you wore a pin-striped shirt? (People wearing that seem to be especially vulnerable.) Oh, you really did want to study for that test . . . sigh. It's 8:00. You decide you'll work 'til just before nine. Fifty-five minutes is supposed to be the maximum concentration span; you can do that. You flip through the chapters . . . uhhh . . . 120 pages. No, only 119; one of them's a picture! If you read the first chapter, that'll be 40 pages; you'll be more than 1/3 done. Well, that's better than nothing. You start out sitting up very straight: I will study; I WILL study. You begin to read. "The Nandi of Africa have a unique method of social control." . . . have a unique method . . . Someone beside you is chewing gum. There should be some kind of a law against people chewing gum in libraries. Your chin is on your hand by this time; perhaps you've even wiggled out of your shoes. You wonder if you should take off your sweater. Whatever kind of social control the Nandi have, it certainly takes a long time to explain it. A cloud of thick cotton seems to have enveloped your head. "These Bushmen use very similar . . ." Wait! haven't you seen that somewhere before—Oh yeah, the other page, the Nandi. You wonder if you can read with your head resting on your arm. You can't. It makes you squint, and you close your eyes . . . just for a second. Maybe the professor won't be too interested in the Nandi anyway. After all, your health is far more important than any test. And really, libraries are for sleeping.

Campus Life Produces Variegation of Events

The monkey, the dog, the frug—everyone at BYU was doing them; that is, until President Wilkinson gave a controversial speech at the beginning of the year banning all fad dances. The studentbody split into two opposing camps, one arguing that such dances were indeed against Church standards, the other saying that there was nothing wrong with them. Discussions grew heated and prejudiced letters to the editor filled the columns of the UNIVERSE until the issue was finally settled by a letter from President McKay. Verdict—No. The decision brought the campus nationwide news coverage and encouraged comment on other campuses.

Indians kept ancient customs alive as they demonstrated tribal crafts and ceremonies during BYU Indian Week. Dancers performed, a teepee was set up in the Y Center patio and a pageant depicting Indian legends was held.

Ornamental statuary, grass skirts, and striking art objects were only a few of the samples of native culture on display at the Y Center during Polynesian Week. A luau and muumuu and aloha skirt contest were also held in conjunction with this event.

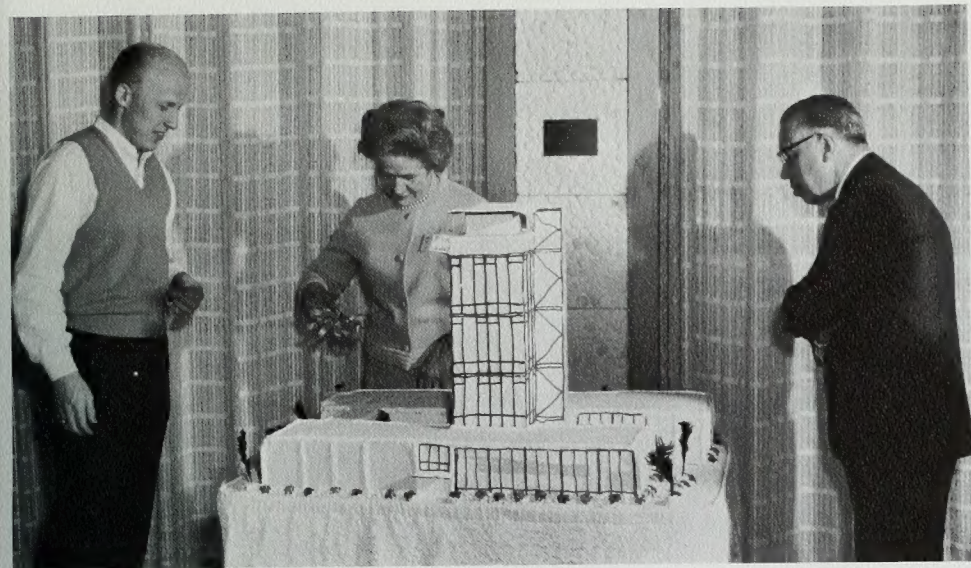

With the advent of "Peace in Viet Nam" demonstrations on college campuses throughout the country, BYU students rallied to show their support for U.S. servicemen. A petition was circulated, and angry groups congregated on campus between classes to discuss pros and cons of the issue. A petition to have the United States pull out of Viet Nam was also circulated, but no support.

Nathan Eldon Tanner of the First Presidency of the Church presented the "Best Family Movie of the Year" award to "Sound of Music" representative Harry Sokolov while Charmian Carr, who starred as Lisel in the picture looked on. The award was instituted this year by the Improvement Era, KSL TV and Radio, the Deseret News, and BYU to show Church support for good entertainment.

One of BYU's most powerful means of influencing public opinion, the Program Bureau focuses favorable attention on the school wherever its members go. Its colorful shows capture the imagination of peoples over the world. "Holiday in the USA" toured the Orient last summer under the sponsorship of the State Department, and "Stardust" will perform in Canada during this summer.

President Ernest L. Wilkinson and studentbody president Bob Christiansen looked on as Mrs. Milkinson prepares to cut the huge cake celebrating the first anniversary of the dedication of the Wilkinson Center. The cake was one of the featured displays during Wilkinson Center Birthday Week; other activities at that time included a treasure hunt in the Bookstore, faculty talent show, dance and free movies at the Varsity.

47th Ward members proudly display the impressive trophy that they captured in this year's Songfest themed "Echoes of an Era." Their winning number, "Throughway" told the sad story of the crowded, headache-inducing conditions on modern highways. For this entry, they walked off with not only the Sweepstakes trophy, but also a special award granted for the first time this year which was awarded on the basis of audience applause.

Many of the bishops attending the April General Conference of the Church stopped to visit the BYU campus on their way to Salt Lake City. They were honored at a special forum assembly in which the orchestra, ballroom dance team, Program Bureau and other campus entertainment and musical groups performed. After the assembly students from the various wards were able to meet with their home bishops and attend a luncheon with them.

Forming a huge conveyor, students from sixteen wards keep bucket line moving up and down the face of the mountain to give the "Y"

Huge Y Gets Face Lifting

Spring bragged on Y Day. After a changeable April that wouldn't quite decide to be pleasant, the sun breaking through flimsily-curtained windows aroused as many Cougars as did the sound trucks sent around housing units to arouse everyone at 6:00 a.m. The campus had a different feeling on that day, lazy, almost deserted. There was a carefree, sunny feeling that made people stretch and laugh impetuously as they wandered around the walks in the long afternoon. The only vacation between semester break in February and the last day of school, Y Day in the morning is traditionally used to cleanup. Originally everyone at school went up to whitewash the block "Y" on the mountain; now the size of the studentbody has necessitated adding more and more areas in the surrounding communities to be cleaned. Activities varying from a chorus concert to a sports car rally added to the remainder of the day, making it a welcome relief between winter and finals.

al whitewashing. It was the main event of Y Day.

At the top of the line, a student uses hose to spray whitewash on the "Y" block.

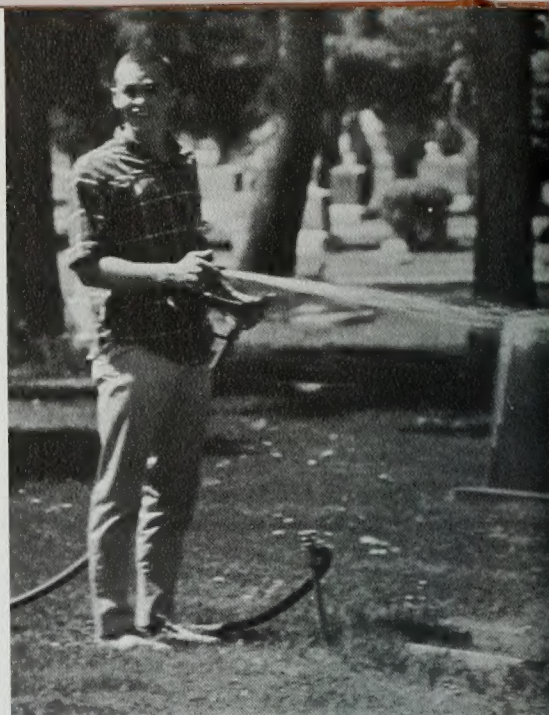

Loading truck with waste, a worker helps clean up the Provo Lake shore. Such projects went on through the entire area.

At the bottom, workers mix the lime and fill the buckets. It took an estimated 5,500 pounds of lime to complete the job.

Over 2000 students grubby in blue jeans and battle-marked sweatshirts assaulted the mountain at the unearthly hour of 7:30 a.m. Heavy buckets of lime were passed endlessly from hand to hand; and sunburns, lime burns and blisters began to develop as the front lines of the whitewash brigade began slowly to advance. But those on Y Mountain were not the only ones working. Below, over 8000 others were developing blisters while engaging in such drudgery as beautifying Wyview Village, Canyon Glen and Provo Cemetery, cleaning not only the campus, but also areas in and around Provo. Eight additional projects were initiated this year to accomodate the increasing number of students, among them being Kelly's Grove Golf Course and the MIA Home. Work was finished by noon, and the hungry enthusiasts grouped back on campus for hamburgers, instead of the traditional spaghetti, at the fieldhouse and an afternoon and evening of activities to relax from the morning's strains.

Activities fill lazy afternoon and evening

Those who did not find—or did not look too hard for—work to be done in their areas, turned to sports to release their energy.

The morning brought work that was fun because of the sense of accomplishment; the afternoon brought fun that was work because of the sore muscles. Probably no other group worked as hard as the faculty men who elected to stun their students with athletic prowess. The students were stunned. In spite of Coach Hudspeth's 89 yard pass for a basket, the team headed by LaVar Rockwood earned a healthy victory. Students whose legs were't too tired to peddle participated in the Grand Prix bike race; sports car fans preferred to rally. Lazy and/or culturally inclined persons chose to view the special presentation of "Coat of Many Colors" and to attend the Men's Chorus concert. Other indolents watched movies at several campus locations. Fittingly, "Y" Day ended nostalgically. "Encore '66," highlighted achievements this year which, added luster to the "Y".

For the First Time Cougars Win WAC Championship

Brigham Young University's Cougars, the perennial cellar-dwellers of the Western Athletic Conference, climbed all the way to the top in 1965 by capturing the WAC crown and thus giving the school its first championship in history. 1965 turned out to be that elusive "next year" fans had talked about season after season but no sportswriter in the country would have predicted BYU as a possible title winner. Most experts, in fact, picked the Cats to finish the season buried in the darkest corner of the dismal cellar. Apparently the only ones who saw the light were Coach Tom Hudspeth and his boys, who in spite of the fact that they had a nightmare of a schedule—four of five league games on the road—proceeded to surprise everyone by winning the crown in the most convincing of ways and by rewriting the Cougar record books in the process.

Head Coach Tom Hudspeth instructs Wingback Green on pattern for following play.

Effectively protected by the offensive line, Quarterback Carter prepares to pass during BYU-U of U game. The Cougars won 25-20.

Magnetic Cougars attract record crowds

At home and on the road, the magnetism of the Cougars attracted the largest crowds in the team's history. The colorful Cougars played before 96,092 fans at home for an average of 23,904 per game. Their total attendance at home and on the road was 226,202 a new record for any BYU team. The crowds came to see the Cougars violate many of the cardinal rules of football with impunity, and what is more, with success. Playing with an unpredictable style, the Cats often surprised enemies and fans by passing when they should have run and running when they should have passed. The unusual strategy was a major factor in the Cougars' success, but according to Coach Tom Hudspeth, the key to victory game after game, was the tremendous support which he and his team received. The Marching Band, pep groups, students, alumni, and BYU rooters in general all combined to form the noisiest and most loyal cheering section in the Western Athletic Conference. Wherever the Cats went, lose or win, rain or sunshine, there were always admirers to cheer for them and let them know, that at home or on the road, their loyal fans were with them.

Cougar mentor named Coach of Year

United Press International awarded Head Coach Tom Hudspeth the title "Coach of the Year" for his excellent tutelage of the Cougars in 1965. The likeable Cougar mentor more than deserved the title since in only two seasons he has taken the Cats from the cellar to their first football championship. When he first came to BYU, Coach Hudspeth said that his philosophy would be to look forward enthusiastically and never backward in defeat, this philosophy along with his strategy and the performances of the individual players paid off big for BYU in 1965.

Cougar team sets 24 new WAC records

The Cougars broke or tied more than 50 individual and team records in the 1965 season. Twenty-four of these marks were Western Athletic Conference records. Quarterback Virgil Carter led the Cougars with 22 of the new marks. Carter was third in the nation in total offense and his total offense yardage for the season was 2,263. Split end Phil Odle set records by catching 46 passes, for 657 yards and 11 touchdowns. He also scored more points—66—than any other player in the WAC. Kent Oborn led the WAC in punt returns—25—and also made the longest punt return—94 yards. The season team records included: Mose yards total offense: 3687; Most first downs: 191; Most yards passing: 1916; Most points scored: 229; Most passes completed: 128 and most wins one season: 6. All these will make 1965 a year to remember for many years to come.

Kittens Finish Exciting Season Undeclared

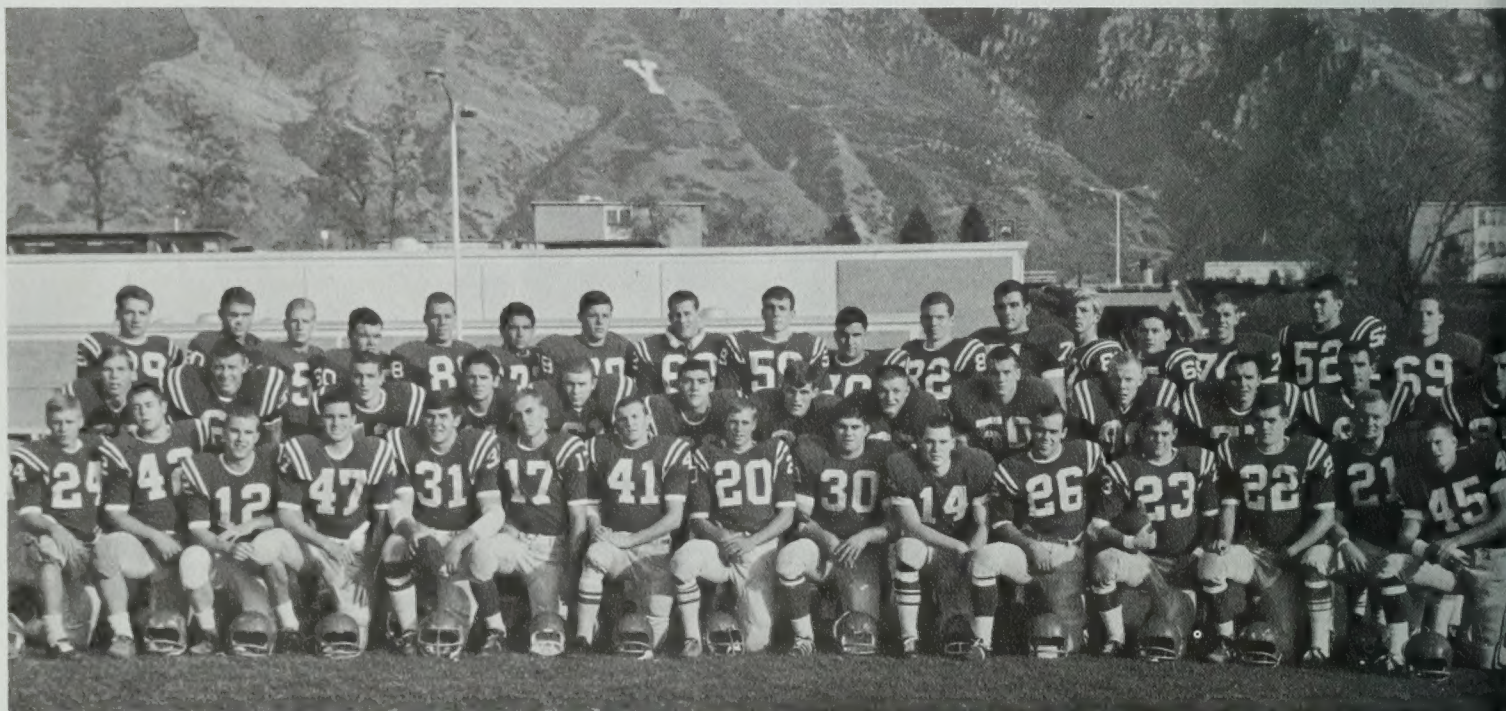

Doing even better than their big brothers, BYU's Kittens dominated freshman football in the area by finishing the season undefeated for the first time since 1960. In thrilling football, Coach Wayne Startin's boys, twice during the season, had to come from behind in the last moments of play to beat their opponents. Marc Lyons, BYU's quarterback, threw two touchdown passes to end Tom Newsom to beat the University of Utah frosh 27-20. In the next game, Lyons run the winning touchdown in with only 16 seconds remaining to beat Utah State's frosh 26-21. Later, the Kittens beat Utah again 41-2 and then the Air Force Academy frosh team by a score of 14-6.

In one of the finest season in Cougar history, BYU's wrestlers gripped the Western Athletic Conference championship and ended with a 12-1 dual meet record. The long setback in the Cats' dual meet record came at the hands of Arizona State after they had won 12 straight this season. It was only the second dual loss for the team since coach Fred Davis took over in the fall of 1964 and began teaching the win-before-you-pin theory. The depth and strength of the team was more obvious during the WAC contest in Salt Lake City where the Cats placed a man in every weight division to dominate the two-day meet. Mac Motokawa was definitely a standout in the talent-filled club. In this, his last year of competition, Mac captured the 130lb. WAC crown and finished the season undefeated, as usual. There is no doubt that wrestling fans will miss this exciting grappler who in his career at BYU was defeated only once, and who, in four years of competition, captured four WAC crowns. Another senior who will be missed by the fans is Mike Young. Mike was also defeated only once during his career at BYU and this year won the 147-lb. crown.

Cougar Skiers Seek Recognition

Hampered by a shortage of funds and lack of recognition, BYU's ski team proved again this year that they have the talent to become a varsity team. The Cougar skiers participated in five contests during the season and at one time they were rated as highly as third nationally by UPI. They won first place in their own Winter Carnival Invitational; second in their Warm-up Invitational; third in the University of Oregon Invitational; fourth in the Weber State College Invitational; and fifth in the University of Nevada Invitational. The team received national recognition when Sports Illustrated named Bob Forster, a slalom specialist, to the second all-American team, while team captain Gary Andrus and Wayne Miller both received honorable mentions. Paradoxically, these Cougar skiers were unable to receive varsity letters because skiing is still not recognized as a varsity sport by the BYU Athletic Department.

Bowlers Rank High in RMBC Competition

YU's men's and women's bowling teams worked hard to surpass the performance of last year's keggers who ranked high in national competition after taking all the laurels in the new Rocky Mountain Bowling Conference and winning top honors at the Associated College Unions tournament. A very talented group of coed keggers played a leading role in their second year of RMBC competition in tournaments at Utah State, Utah, Weber State and Idaho State. The girls maintained a substantial first place conference lead over Utah right into the final match which was televised by KBYU TV. They also participated in the ACU tournament at Utah State, taking high honors in all events. Led by second year veteran, Sharon Price, the BYU coeds garnered most of the trophies in the Sportsday and Invitational matches. The men's team performed exceptionally well in the RMBC and, in addition, the ACU. With one match remaining, they were only a few pins behind first place team, Idaho State.

BYU Cowboys Place Third in National

Drawing from the Western strength of its locale, BYU has traditionally boasted a strong and active Rodeo Team. Last year the cowboys earned first place in the region and went on to the National Rodeo competitions in Wyoming where they took third place honors (following, understandably, two Texas teams.) The team members practice every afternoon and Saturday during the spring roping calves at the school farm in preparation for the 8 weekend rodeos held in late spring in Utah, Montana and Idaho. Important rodeo events include saddle and bareback bronco riding, bull riding, roping, ribbon roping and bulldogging. Cowgirls demonstrate their skills by goat tying and barrel racing. College rodeos differ from professional only in that no entry fees are required nor is prize money awarded.

Cougars Win National Invitational Tournament

Beaming Coach Stan Watts and his jubilant basketball players had plenty to be happy about when this photograph was taken; they had just defeated New York University in Madison Square Garden to win the National Invitational Tournament. Moreover, they were delighted to see the end of one of the longest seasons in BYU basketball history.

Latin Americans first see Cats in action

Jeff Congdon can't be stopped as he drives in for a basket against Americas.

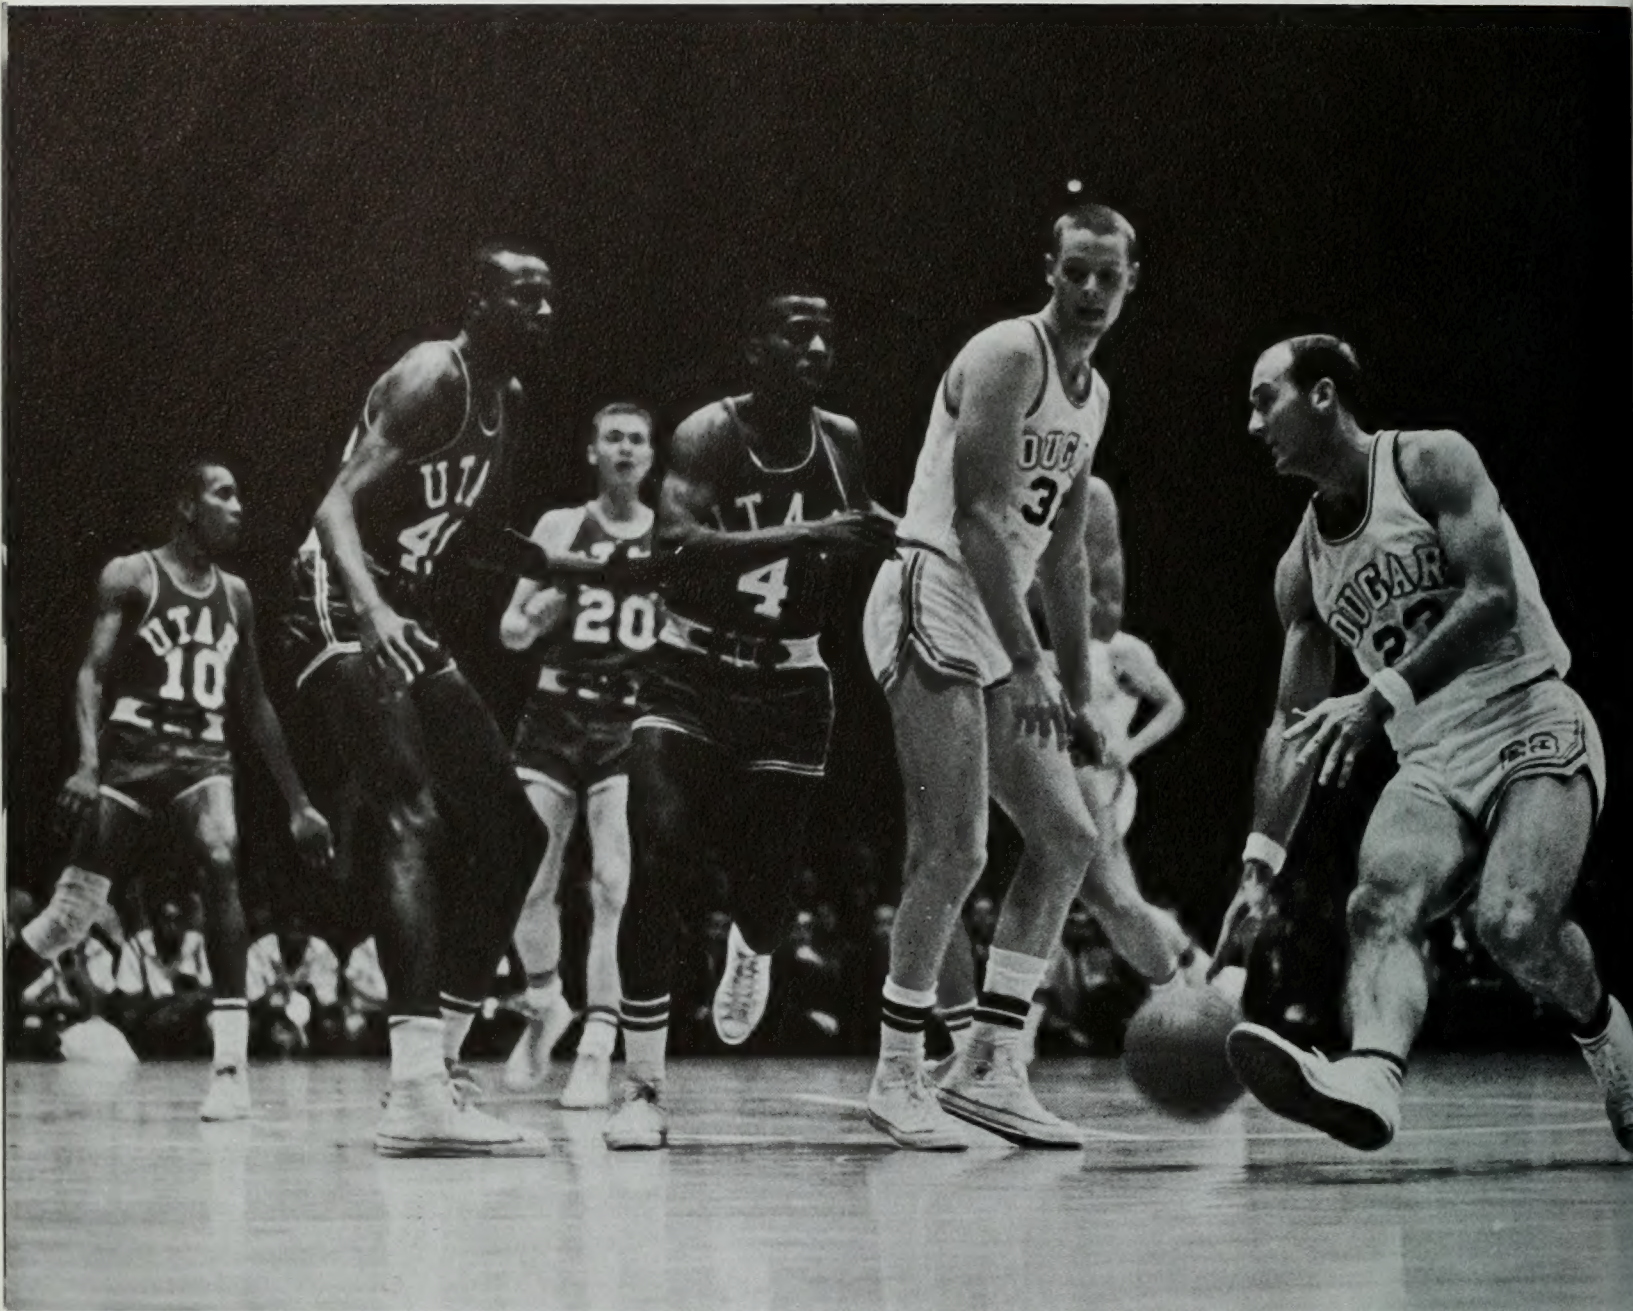

Hotheaded Latin Americans were the first fans to see the Cougars in action this season. In June of last year Coach Watts and his squad traveled to South America and Mexico where they won 19 of the 22 games on their schedule. When they came back home, practice continued with no games scheduled until the beginning of December then the Cougars opened the pre-conference part of the season with a 109-98 victory over Illinois. Then came wins over Houston, University of Americas, a team from Mexico City, Santa Clara, and St. Joseph's. Over the Christmas holiday period the Cougars traveled to Pennsylvania to participate in the Quaker City Tournament. There they lost to LaSalle University but came back to win over St. Bonaventure and Cornell.

As defending champions, the Cougars were the target of every team in the Western Athletic Conference when WAC play began early in January. The first teams to take a crack at the champs were Arizona and Arizona State, but they came to Provo only to find out that the Cats were invincible on their home court this season. On-the-road games however, were something else again. The travel-weary Cougars were defeated by New Mexico, Wyoming, Arizona and Arizona State. The only bright spot of the away-from-home schedule was a 94-93 squeaker over archrival University of Utah in Salt Lake City. At the end of the season, the Cats had to settle for second place, but not before beating the WAC champion, Utah, again. This time 115-100.

Nemelka — Congdon cut net after defeating NYU.

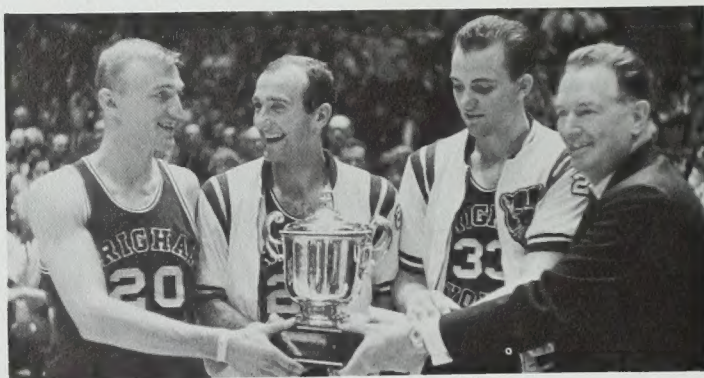

Officials of the National Invitational Tournament were sufficiently impressed with Cougar pre-season and WAC performances to place BYU in the top-seeded position of the prestigious contest. In spite of this, the NIT crown did not come easily for the Cats; they had to claw their way to victories over Temple and Army. It wasn't until the second half of the game against NYU that the Cougars finally got their run-and-shoot kind of game going. Blocking shots, rebounding and dunking the ball, Raymond played his best game of the season, but Congdon, Hill, Nemelka, and Kramer were also magnificent. It was a team effort that wilted the NYU Violets 97-84. NYU's Coach Lou Rossini summarized that game: "They were just too good," he said.

News releases aimed at anxious BYU students during the NIT revealed that not all the action in the tournament took place on the playing floor. Early attention was directed at the talented flag twirlers who had accompanied the squad. The lovely representatives of the touted Cougar co-ed contingent were both shocked and flattered by offers from Playboy Enterprises to join the "Bunny" ranks. Evidently anxious to get in on the action, and also to continue their fervent support of the hoopsters, the Cougar Band stirred up the allegiances and generosity of the studentbody and alumni. Within a few days they collected enough money to pay passage to New York for 25 members. They too earned the respect of blasé New York basketball fans.

By the all-important final contest there was some doubt as to whether there were any Cougars left in Provo; the scores of Cougar rooters were later unmasked as Army and Villanova "turncoats." By the end of the game the majority of the fans in Madison Square Garden were squarely behind the Cougars. Frustrated Cougars-at-home who had been forced to participate in the excitement vicariously and two-dimensionally were not ready to pass up the opportunity to show their support and gratitude to their team. A large turnout at the Salt Lake airport presaged an enthusiastic parade through Provo. Honors and laurels were added to those already worn by the team; further proof of their championship caliber: amidst all this they found time to study.

Cougar fans will miss record-breaking trio

Pep Band members were always at games to lend their support to Cougar efforts.

Compiling statistics on a basketball season that stretched from early summer, with the team's extended South American tour, to late March, with its exciting NIT victory, was a job for the IBM computer or the abacus. In general it can be said that this year was marked by the highest-scoring, hottest-shooting squad in Cougar history. The hoopsters only equalled their 20-game record established the year before, but in 10 of this year's 25 North American tilts scored 100 or more points, with an impressive 95.5 average. A new school record was set by All-American Dick Nemelka with a 24-point per game average and three other stalwarts scored in the double figures. Fans established an overall attendance record of 217,574.

Traditionally, Coach Stan Watts finds himself in the enviable position of having more talented players than he can use. In spite of this, the loss of such senior stalwarts as Jeff Congdon, Steve Kramer and Dick Nemelka, who received national recognition for what the home fans already knew he had in the form of membership in the 1966 LOOK All-American team, will be hard for Cougar boosters to take. Hoop fans recognize that "their boys" are going on to bigger and better things, still, the greatest hurt is in the heart. Freshmen especially who have only had a tantalizing taste of Nemelka's style and consistency, Congdon's dazzling court tactics and Kramer's bullish play will miss the trio. Seniors can be more philosophical.

Kittens Post 13-1 Season Record

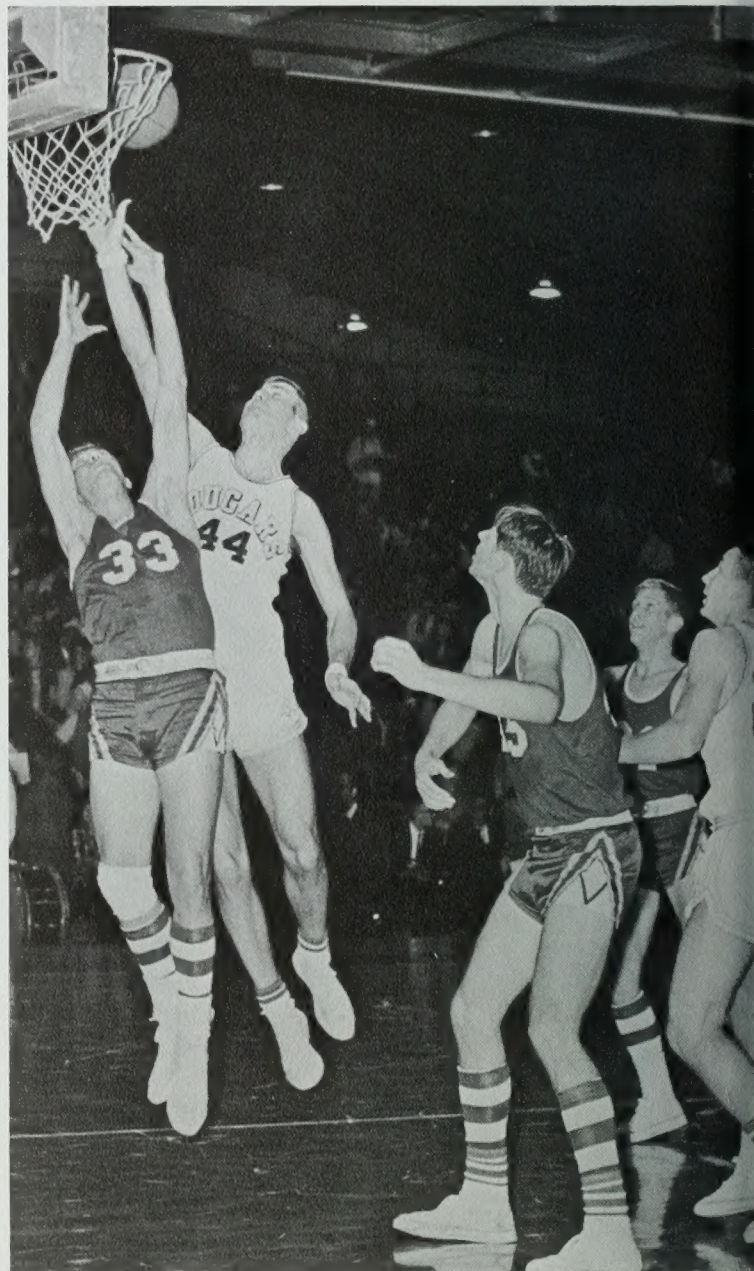

Proving that the foundation of BYU's basketball power is still as strong as ever, the freshman team high-scored its way to an almost perfect 13-1 record this year. Coach Gary Ernest's boys scored 601 field goals during the season to break the mark of 599 set by the 1964 team. Leading the Kittens was Finnish import Kari Liimo, who personally established three new records: most points scored, 342; most points averaged per game, 24.4; and most points in a single game, 39. Another Kitten ace was forward Marty Lythgoe who scored 280 points for the season and averaged 20 points per game. The Kittens, who often placed five men in the double figures, continued a tradition of high-scoring, averaging over 100 points per game with a high of 117 against Snow College.

Three BYU Gymnasts Among Top Ten in NCAA Meet

New Coach Bruce Morgenegg led his gymnasts to the best season the team has ever had. In dual meets the agile Cats boasted a season record of 9-3 and in the Western Athletic Conference finals in Tucson they placed second trailing defending champion University of Arizona by a mere four points. Leading the Cats in the WAC finals was Dick Nicholas who became the first BYU man to win the all-around title. He also placed first on the parallel bars taking the title from ASU's defending champion Skip Johnson. Later in the season six outstanding Cougar gymnasts: John Morrissey, Perry Guinn, Austin Thatcher, Tom French, Bob Mullins and Dick Nicholas qualified for the NCAA championship meet at Penn State. At the NCAA meet the Cougars placed three men in the top ten. These were Perry Guinn who placed 9th on rings, John Morrissey, who placed 9th on high bar and Dick Nicholas who placed 10th in all-around.

Soccer Team

Plays at Stanford

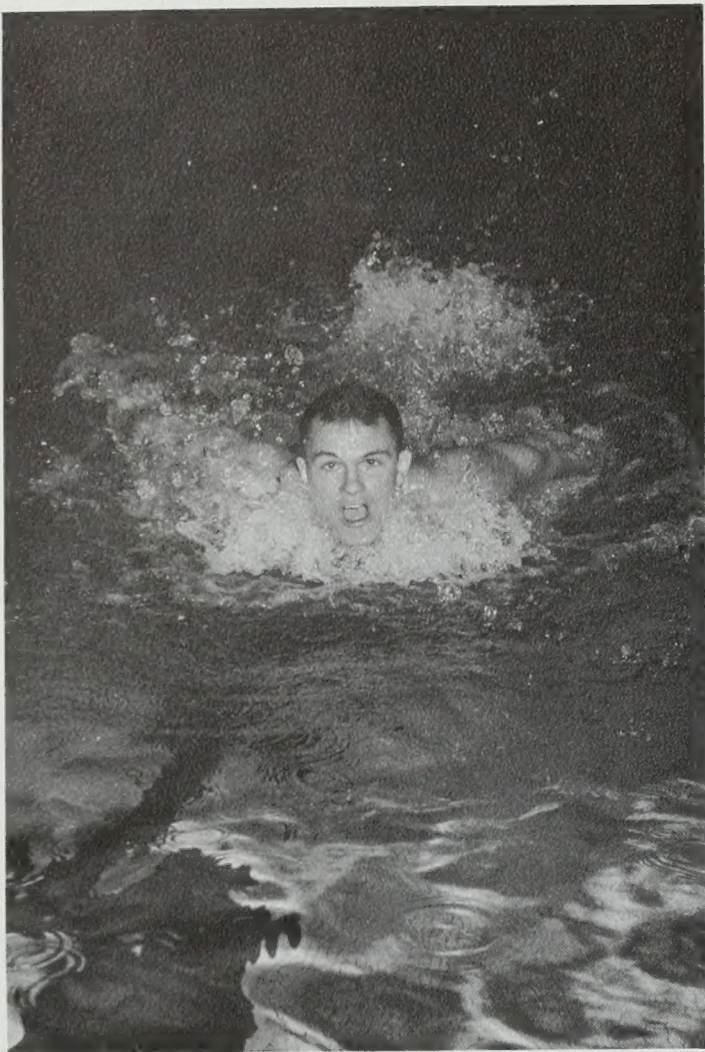

Until recently soccer was relatively unknown to Americans; certainly its popularity here was not commensurate to its popularity in almost every other corner of the world. America had football. But sports fans in universities and high schools around the nation are becoming aware of the exciting sport and a nucleus for a strong soccer team is being formed at BYU under the guidance of Ollie Julkunen. Many of the "A" players come from foreign countries; though "B" team membership is largely interested American students introduced to soccer in P. E. Though not yet a varsity sport, the soccermen are working to gain such recognition. Their meets are mainly with other college teams in the Utah Soccer League, but this year the BYU sportsmen were granted studentbody funds to represent BYU at the Stanford Invitational Tournament in California where they faced strong teams from Stanford and Berkeley.

Swimmers Reach Goals for the Year

Working towards a definite goal paid off for the BYU swimming team this year. At the beginning of the year, Coach Walt Cryer indicated that his team would be working for a winning dual record and a third place in the Western Athletic Conference. This is exactly what they accomplished as they finished the season with a dual record of 8-7 and placed third behind Utah and New Mexico in the WAC finals. Even this seemingly modest record took a lot of work and talent since this was the first year in many that BYU had a swimming team active in intercollegiate competition. Star of the young team was Dennis Meyring, a transfer from Vallejo, Calif. JC, who won three gold medals and a second place honor in the WAC finals. Another outstanding swimmer was Doug Reagan, who won a gold medal in the same meet. Lack of depth rather than of talent was the most serious problem that the team faced this year. Coach Cryer will be keeping his eyes open for promising swimmers to fill several vacancies that the team still has. He should have no trouble recruiting since the new year-round swimming facilities at BYU are the best in the entire area.

Golfers Second in National Tournament

BYU's golf team ended the fall season by almost upsetting Houston University, the top collegiate team in the nation. Competing in the William H. Tucker Invitational Tournament, the Cougar golfers surged from a 15 stroke deficit and ended only one stroke behind Houston University to take second place in the tournament. Linkster John Miller was the star of the tournament and showed that he will be a Cougar to watch in the future. Miller, only a freshman, has already won the United State Golf Association's National Junior Championship. Other standout performers included Bud Allin, who tied for first place for BYU in the Northern California Intercollegiate; and Mike Taylor, a sophomore from Mississippi who holds the state amateur championship for that state. In all, 9 players comprised the team.

Baseball Team Shoots for WAC Title

Boasting a 5-1 record in the Northern Division of the Western Athletic Conference, BYU's baseballers were leaving competition far behind by the end of April. The Cougars were making good the words of Coach Glen Tuckett, who said at the beginning of the season: "We should be greatly improved over the last two years." Much of the improvement came as a result of the experience of a long season last year, which included a playing tour through Mexico in which the Cougars won seven of the eight games they played there. Led by All-American prospect Tom Weir, the Cougars were running a lot more than they had the year before and this was evident in their WAC schedule where they defeated Utah three times and Wyoming twice to lead the division. It appeared at deadline time that the Cougars had the talent to stay at the top and perhaps would go on to win the Conference.

Trackmen Start Season Defeating Utah, Losing To UCLA

By the middle of April, BYU's trackmen were well on their way to another winning season. Led by hurdler Mike Douglas and runner Ron Morgan, the Cougars started out the season by thoroughly beating the University of Utah Redskins in an informal meet in Provo. The Cats won first place in 14 events while Utah could only manage 3. It was a good indication of the kind of season the Cats could expect. The first real test of the season, however, came during the third week in March when the Cats traveled to Los Angeles to meet the UCLA Bruins. Although the Cougars—who finished third last year in the NCAA championship—were expected to give the Bruins more than one run for their money, they failed to pass the test as UCLA's Marc Salvage led the Bruins to a 99-46 victory. This was however, the first outdoor meet for the Cats, while UCLA had had the benefit of three.

Patera Sets New Shot Put Record

Later in the season, the Cougar trackmen defeated the University of Utah, Utah State and Idaho State, in an informal meet in Provo; as well as both Utah teams in a triangular meet in Salt Lake City. In the BYU informal meet, Cougars Ken Patera, Pete Dana, and Al Rockwell were the outstanding trackmen. Patera set a new mark of 61' 6" in the shot put. Dana set a new record in the triple jump, with a leap of 48' 2". The most exciting race of the day saw BYU's Al Rockwell defeat NCAA indoor champion Jerry Cerulla of Utah State in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of :13.7. In the Utah triangular meet, two weeks later, Patera extended his own record with a throw of 62' 1½" — the best on record for a Utah college athlete, and one of the best throws in the world. In the same meet, Cougar Ben Laverty leaped 48' 11½" improving on the mark set by Dana two weeks before.

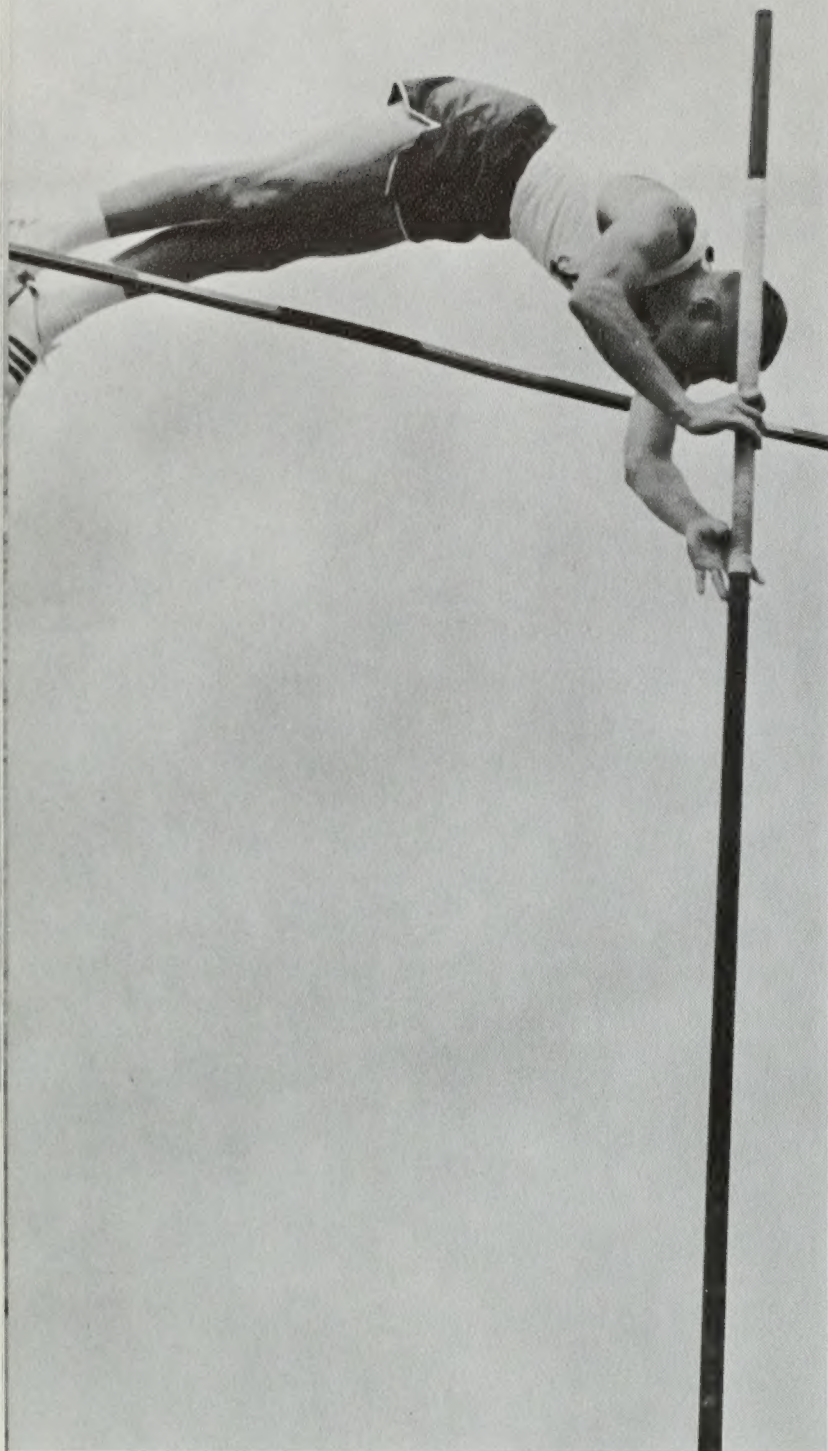

Gary Hines goes up for one of best marks of the season: 6' 9".

Cats Pass 100-Point Mark Thrice

The last meets before the Banyan went to press, took the Cougars to Tempe and Tucson in Arizona. There the trackmen ran over teams from Arizona State, Utah, Arizona and Long Beach State. Ron Morgan set a school record of 9:03 in the two-mile run at the Tempe meet where the Cougars scored 101 points to 51 for Utah and 50 for Arizona State. At Tucson, the Cats, led by Bob Delaney and Bob Richards, swept the mile run and accumulated 101 points to 56 for Arizona and 24 for Long Beach State. It was the third consecutive time the Cats had broken the 100-point mark.

Racketmen Vie for WAC Title

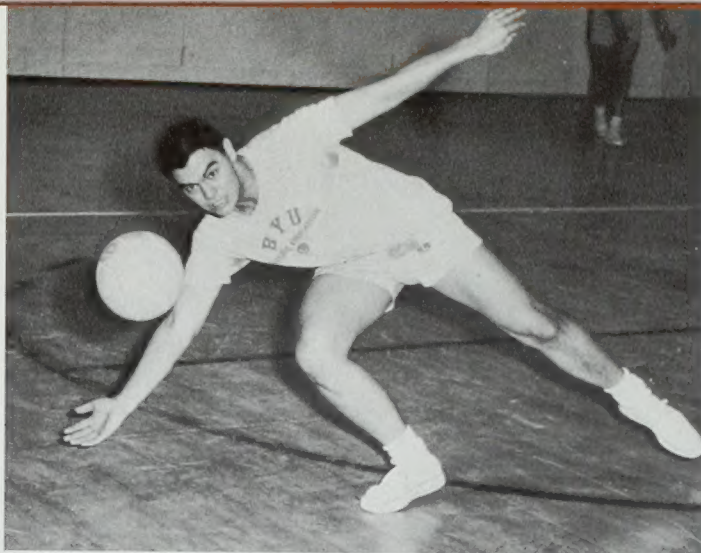

BYU's Bill Fort returns Redskins shot during meet in Provo.

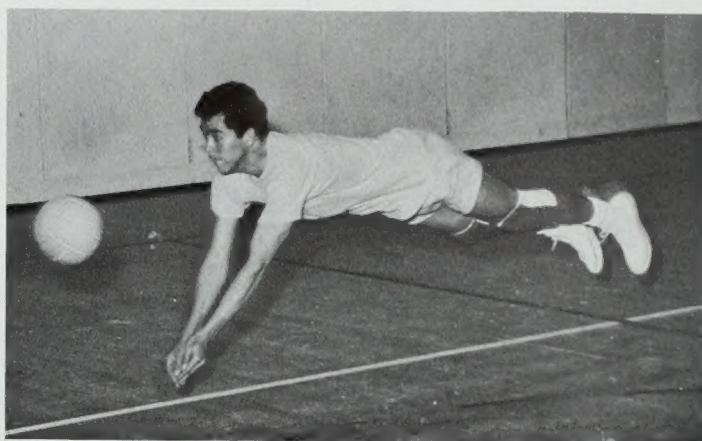

With victories over Utah, Arizona, Arizona State and New Mexico, Coach Pearce's racketmen had established themselves as strong contenders for the WAC title by the end of April. By that time, the Cats' most exciting victory was their upset of defending champion University of Utah on the Cougar courts. Hero of the meet was Jon Pierce who defeated Utah's No. 2 player Mike Martinez 6-3, 6-3. Although BYU's Bill Fort lost to Utah's star Jim Osborne, the well-balanced Cougar team came back as Harvey Bottlesen, Keith Nielson, and Sima Nikolic, in singles; and Bottlesen-Nikolic and Pierce-Nielson, in doubles, out played the Redskins. This important victory was one of many which the team had accumulated to date. Early in the season they took first place in the Long Beach Tennis Classic and although later they fell before UCLA and USC, they came back with wins over Utah State and their WAC opponents. Said Coach Pearce after the Utah meet: "this gives us four straight WAC victories; that puts us in very favorable position in the conference."

Volleyball Team Ranks High in National Competition

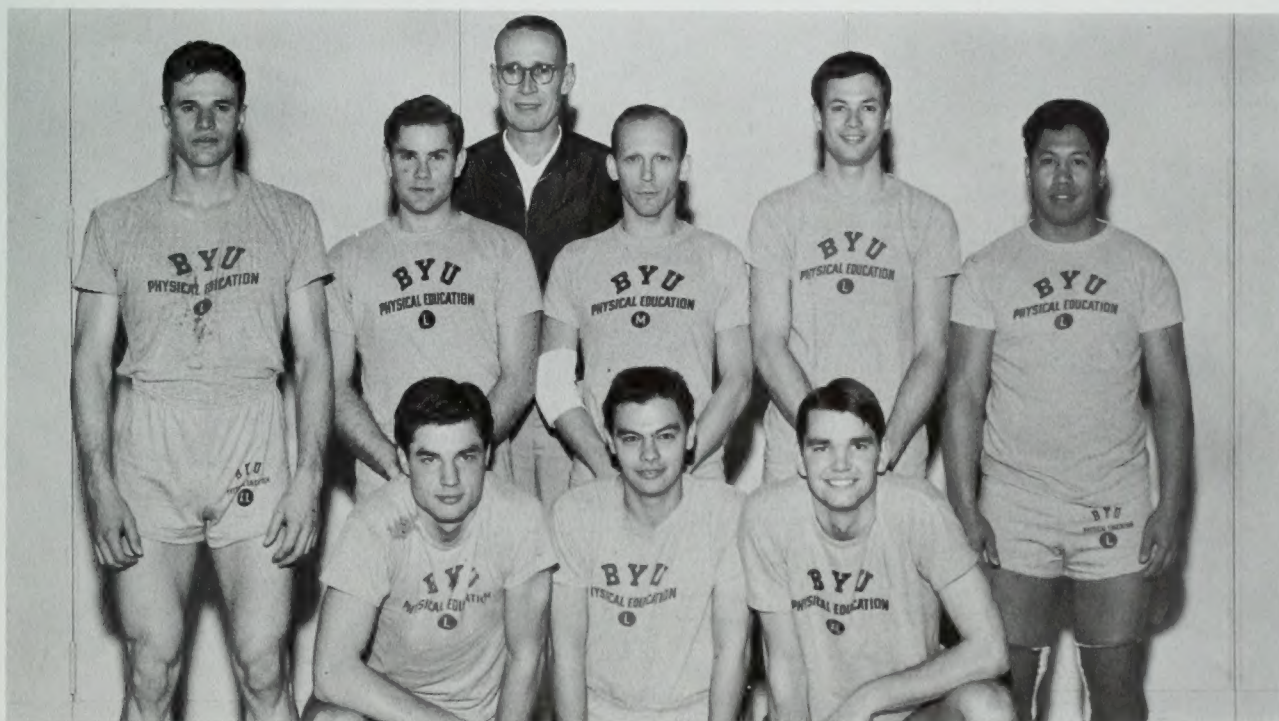

Volleyball has been played at BYU for only three years, but already the Cougars spikers have earned a strong reputation for themselves. Last year's performance showed the traditionally strong California teams that they have a strong contender outside their bastion. This year's third place honors taken at the Far West Volleyball Tournament in San Francisco reinforced that contention. "We've definitely established ourselves among the top three teams in the nation," observed Coach John Lowell. Outstanding players include All-American Jon Stanley and John Ahlstrom at the forefront of defense, Charles Naumu and Phillip Hewlen at defense. Lowell's introduction to rigorous Japanese playing and training techniques combined with new courts are honing the teams' considerable skills.

Intramurals Offers a Sport for Every Student

Between 40 and 50 per cent of the studentbody participates in intramural activities each year. With 242 teams taking part in basketball alone, it would seem that the intramural program's motto is being successfully carried out: "An activity for every student and every student in an activity." The statistics for the program are amazing: nearly 1900 boys played in both the softball and flag football games; 1300 participated in volleyball; and 2000 took part in basketball, the most popular game. But these sports were not the only ones offered; over 30 different activities from checkers and horseshoes to badminton and weightlifting provided activity for any student who had the initiative to fill out an entry form. From these facts, it is not surprising to find that BYU has one of the largest intramural programs in the country.

A new intramural sport was water basketball, winners in the men's and women's division were A Richards Hall and the 38th Ward.

All this and enthusiasm soaring as BYU's pep groups with their boundless energy bound into action. Practically the greatest show on earth, the pep groups' show raised enthusiasm to a riotous pitch, spurring the studentbody on to more noise and the teams on to greater effort. BYU wasn't always number 1, so the pep groups tried a little harder with songs and cheers, squeals and lamentations, all in the name of esprit de corps. The Marching Band, the Pep Band, Cosmo, the Cheer leaders, the Young Men, the Flag twirlers, the Song leaders and the Cougarettes were all part of the show which helped our teams win games. The World of Art; Expressions of Creativity

As an actor, Nelden Maxfield concentrates on believably transforming himself to make the Character of Fagin.

A work of art is the result of an artist's response to life. He is more sensitive to the deeper meanings in life than most people. That is why he is an artist. He has spent much time learning the technical means necessary to express in a formal way his responses to life in whatever medium he has chosen—painting, drama, music, poetry, etc. Art is life. When we are faced with a work of art we do not like, perhaps it is an expression of some phase of life we dislike. Both art and life can be pleasant or unpleasant. Both can be gentle or cruel, calm or turbulent, frustrating or soothing. By instinct, human beings are constantly in search of an ordered existence. Such order is found in the human spirit. But life is usually chaotic because the spiritual is relegated to the background by immediate demands of the intellectual and emotional. The artist blends the chaotic material of life into an ordered form by a kind of balance between the intellectual, the emotional and the spiritual. Honest experience of the arts is an effective means to peace of mind and peace of soul.

The runaway Oliver (Neil Newell) is presented for approval to Fagin's gang of pickpockets after being found by Artful Dodger.

After a discouraging search, Oliver finally finds love in his grandfather's home.

Lionel Bart's Broadway hit musical Oliver, adapted from Charles Dickens' novel Oliver Twist, was staged for the first time in the Intermountain Area by the BYU Dramatic Arts Department February 15-19. Under the direction of Dr. Harold Hansen, the play unfolded the story of Oliver's (Michael McCallister and Neil Newell) search for love. First he was sent to Mr. Bumble's orphanage but was later sold because he was too difficult to handle. He ran away and was accepted into a gang of pickpockets controlled by Fagin (Nelden Maxfield). While a member of the gang Oliver found his grandfather Brownlow (Lyle Laycock) and was taken into his home where he finally found love. The use of the revolving stage for scene changes added to the play's excellence which was applauded by critics as one of the finest presented in the de Jong Concert Hall. Other leading roles were taken by Bruce Louthan, Patsy Christiansen, Tamara Fowler, Sheryl Jamison, and Glenda Gardiner.

The Corn Is Green

A poignant commentary on all those unfortunates who long for knowledge and who may never have the opportunity to find it." Emlynn Williams' The Corn Is Green was presented by the Brigham Young University Theatre November 24-December 11. Starring in the drama about a spinster schoolteacher who has dedicated her life to the belief that everyone should have an opportunity to develop his mind were Mae Flegg, John Adams, Tamara Fowler, Christine Wright, Judson Pierson, Robert Borden, Elaine Davis, and Leon Stewart. Max Golightly directed the play with Carol Anne Schuster acting as assistant director. The production, staged in the Drama Theatre of the Harris Fine Arts Center, revolved around the trials of an English spinster trying to establish a school in her home for the children of poor coal miners in the Welsh town of Glansarno.

Bessie Watty (Tamara Fowler) tries to entice Morgan Evans to stay at home.

Morgan Evans (John Adams) and his friends tease John Jones because they saw him and the lady teacher flirting.

An Enemy of the People

Rated a dramatic thrill, Enemy of the People ran in the Drama Theatre of the Harris Fine Arts Center October 13-30. The drama by Norwegian playwright Henrik Ibsen, adapted for the American stage by Arthur Miller, hinges upon the discovery by the town physician that the water supply in the town's mineral baths is polluted. The townspeople, at first sympathetic, find that the necessary changes would be an enormous financial burden and declare that the doctor is an "enemy of the people" for advocating that the water supply should be changed. Starring in the drama were Nelden Maxfield, Myra Katner, Kent Nelson, Lyle Laycock, Kent Chadwick, Roger Nelson, Karen Seal, Alan Hall and Louis H. Campbell. Charles Metten directed the drama which so pricked the viewer's conscience of right versus wrong and the individual versus society that one wanted to stand up and shout in support of the doctor.

"Enemy! Enemy!" the people taunt Dr. Stockmann (Neldon Maxfield) and his family as they leave the public meeting.

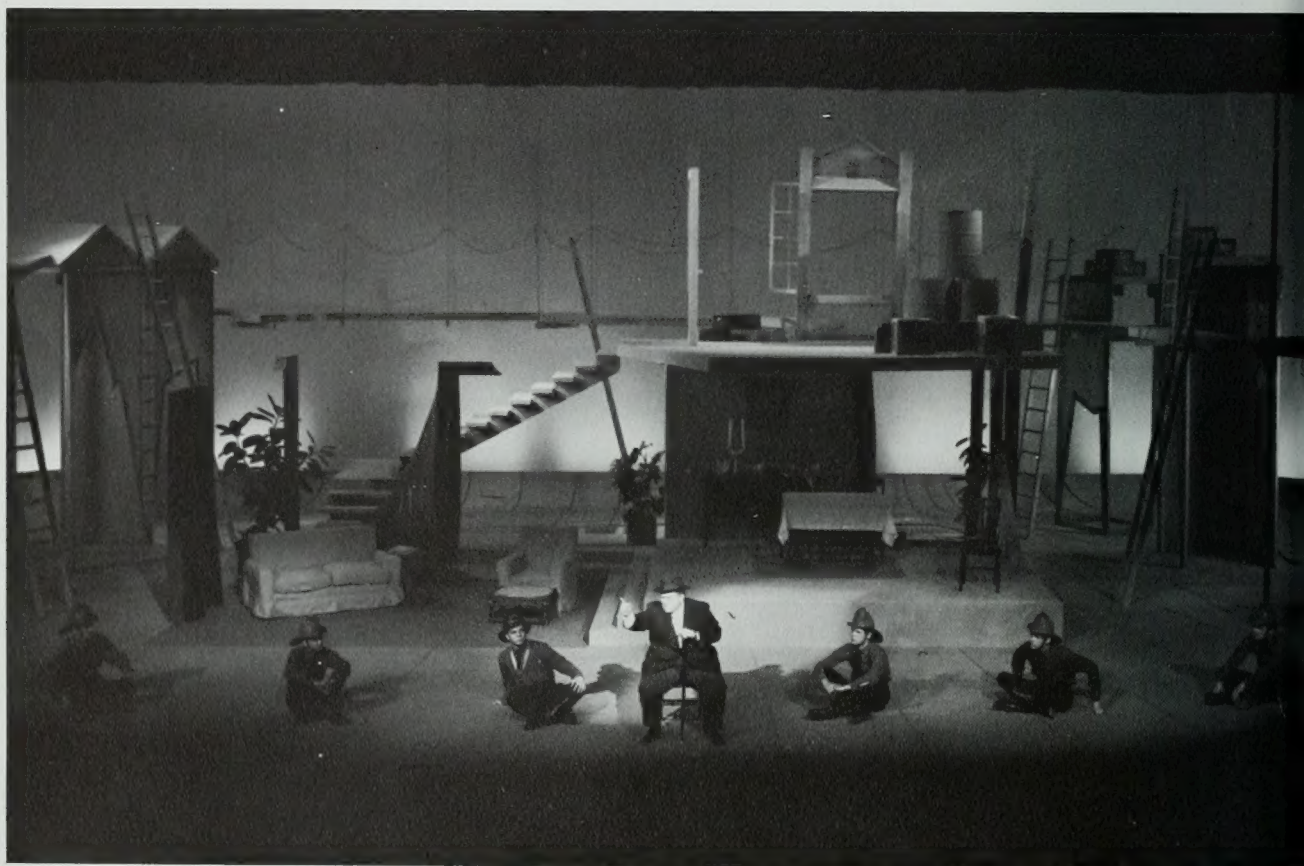

The valiant fighter for truth, Dr. Stockmann, protects his wife and daughter from the threats of the town's mayor.

Gottlieb Biedermann (Robert O. Day) and the firebugs enact a grotesque parody of Everyman and the Angel of Death in his home.

The Firebugs

Using the techniques of burlesque, parody and grotesque comedy, The Firebugs, a modern, unconventional drama, attacks complacency in the modern world. The play, written by Max Frisch, shows the reactions of Gottlieb Biedermann (Robert O. Day) and his wife (Marilyn Allphin) when they discover two arsonists (Norm Morris and Wilfred Dzallas) in their home. Biedermann refuses to evict them, however, and feels that by appeasing them he can prevent the inevitable. The fear of fire pervaded the whole drama, which was directed by Dr. Lael Woodbury, gave a nightmarish reality to the story and provided an ideal setting for the portrayal of the weaknesses of man when faced with major decisions.

Gottlieb Biedermann describes to the town firemen what he'll do to any arsonist who tries to burn his house.

Our Town

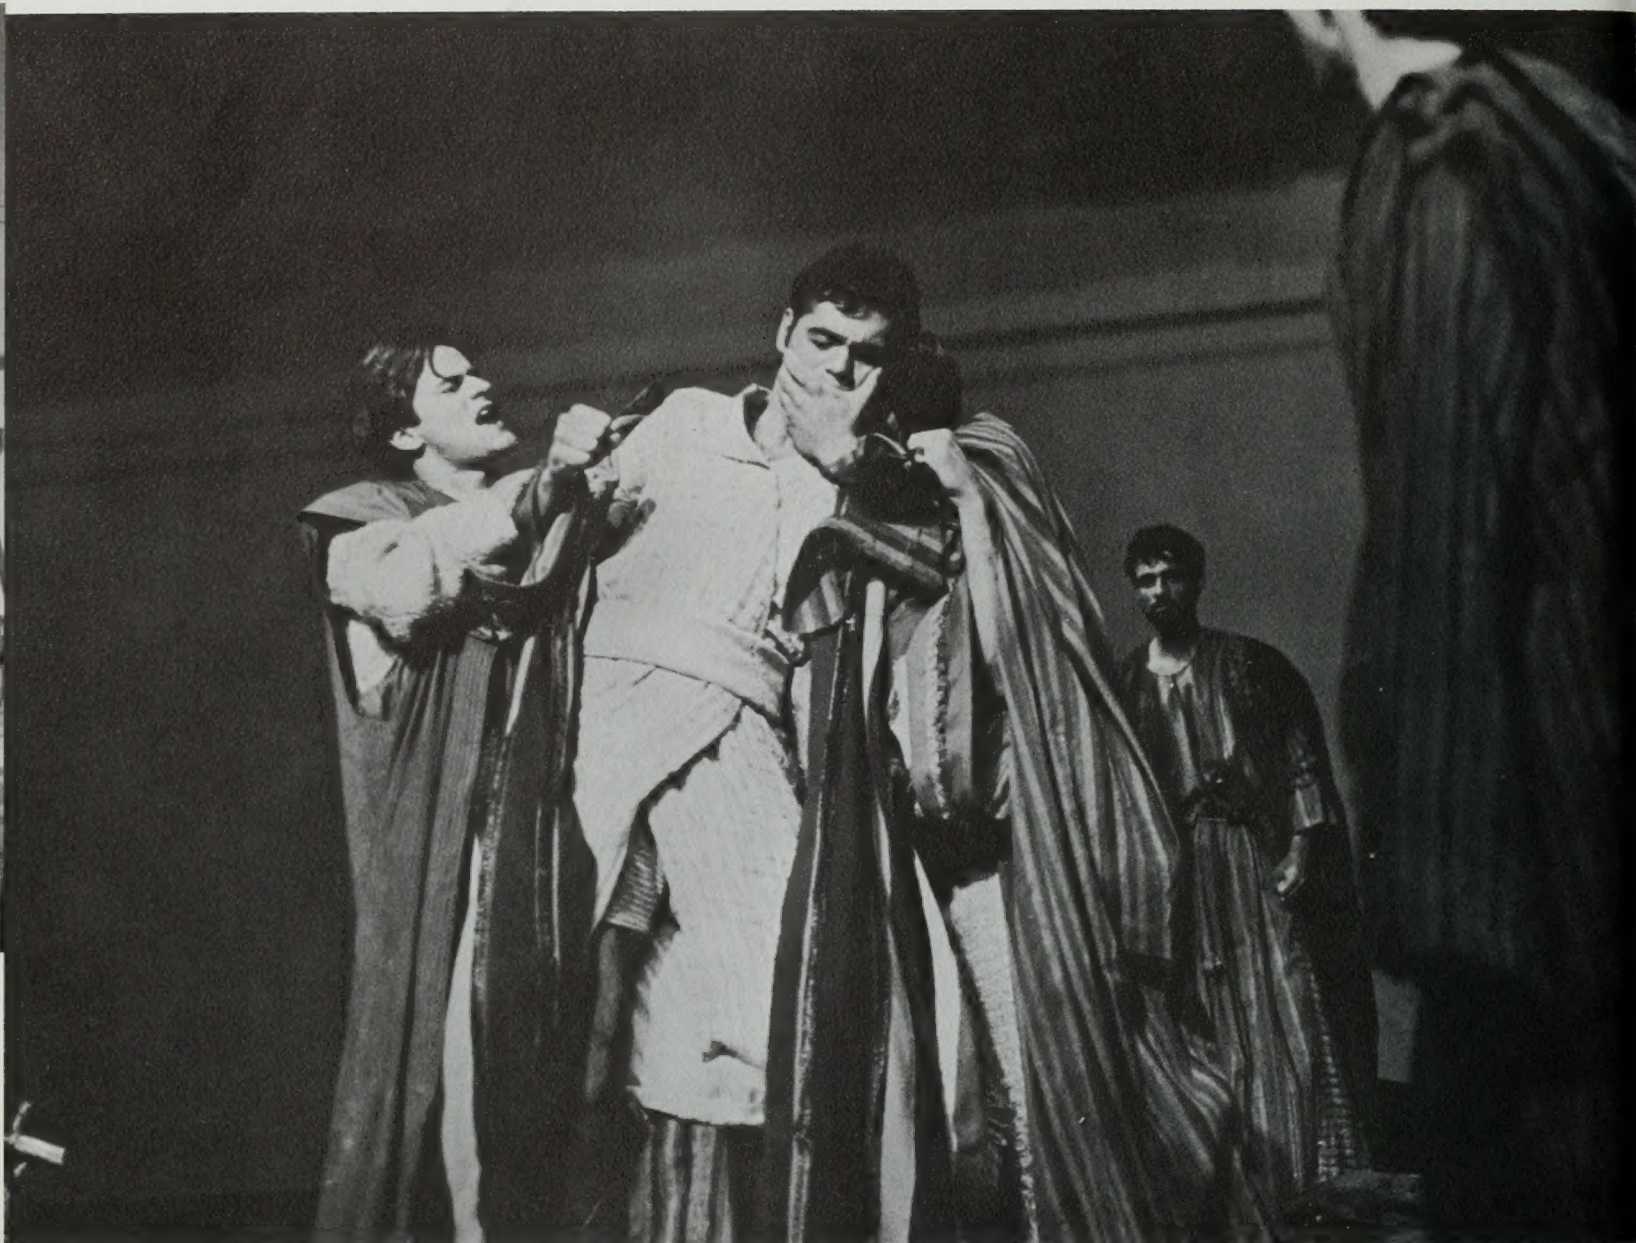

One of the most engrossing and extraordinary contributions to the American theatre is Thornton Wilder's world-renowned drama Our Town. The play tells about the people of every town and in every age. It shows the intimate daily life of small-town people such as Wally (Michael Bryson) and Emily Webb (Carol Babcock, Margaret Dyreng, and Marsha Dahl) as if a camera-man had dollied in for a close-up. The camera is then set on a star out in space to show in perspective the eternal destiny of man. Much of this is seen with the help of the omnipotent stage manager (Ladd Bennett). The dramatic classic, which played February 23 to March 12, was directed by Dr. Albert O. Mitchell.

Coat of Many Colors

The World Premiere performances of Barrie Stavis' Coat of Many Colors opened April 20 for a two week run in the Pardoe Drama Theater. The play which explores the theme of power and its uses tells the story of the successes and failures of Joseph who was sold into Egypt. The witty, sardonic tragi-comedy featured Tristan Pico as Joseph, Tamara Fowler as Vashnee, Roger Nelson as Reuben, Dan Staples as Potiphar, and Lael Woodbury as the Pharaoh. When asked why he selected BYU to premiere his play, Mr. Stavis, who was on campus for a month, replied "BYU is one of the greatest theater plants in the United States. Its Dramatic Arts Department is one of the best in the country and directors of the caliber of Dr. Hansen are few." The colorfully costumed performance by a cast of 50 was directed by Harold Hansen with Beverly Warner as costume designer.

Arena Theater

The struggles and accomplishments of the Mormon pioneers sent by Brigham Young to cultivate the desolate areas of Southern Nevada is portrayed in the play Only There Were Two. Written by Ronald Dalley, the play was the first in a series of three premier performances of plays on Mormon themes. Playing the lead roles of Daniel and Esther Stark were David Larsen and Joyce Tarrier. Other members of the cast included Colette Anderson, Michael Bryson, and John Shepherd.

Daniel Stark (David Larsen) pleads with his wife Esther (Joyce Tarrier) not to give up their home in the "Muddy Mission."

Daniel Stark tries to convince Israel Holt (Michael Bryson) and the other settlers to remain true to their mission calling.

Opera

Gilbert and Sullivan's The Pirates of Penzance, a lively opera, tells of the meeting of a Major-general (Paul Sharp) and his daughters with a band of pirates in the cove where they have gone for a picnic. Fredrick (Steve Covington), who has just finished his indentureship to the band, tries to help the girls out of the clutches of the pirate king (Nelden Maxfield) but then returns to the side of the pirates and almost causes the Major-general to be killed for his lying.

After kidnapping the Major-general (Paul Sharp) and his daughters, the pirates tease the father and entertain the daughters.

Carmen

Rated by opera critics and historians as one of three most loved and successful operas of all time, George Bizet's Carmen was presented in the De Jong Concert Hall November 9-13. The central figure of the opera is the beautiful, but treacherous gypsy temptress Carmen (Ariel Bybee) who abandons sergeant of the guard Don Jose (Gary Fisher) in favor of the bullfighter, Escamillo (Jim Smith). She promises Escamillo herself if he is victorious in a certain bullfight. However, Don Jose in a jealous rage stabs Carmen just at the moment Escamillo emerges triumphant from the arena. Other members of the cast included opera workshop members, a children's chorus from the Provo community, and members of the Utah Valley Opera Association. Brandt Curtis directed the opera with Kurt Weinzing as musical director. Charles Whitmen acted as stage director and did the blocking for the production.

"You're wasting your time, Toreador, I love another," Carmen (Ariel Bybee) tells the bullfighter Escamillo (Jim Smith).

"Stay away from Escamillo or I'll kill you," the jealous Don Jose (Gary Fisher) threatens Carmen, the girl that he loves.

Aïda

Verdi's Aïda, one of the largest and most spectacular operas of the modern repertory, played in the deJong Concert Hall May 2-7. Featuring a cast of 228, the opera told the plight of Radames (Roy King and Rolando Gonzales), captain of the Egyptian Palace Guard, and Aïda (Lynn Blackmun, Ariel Bybee, and Melva Allred), an Egyptian slave and Ethiopian princess. After a great victory over the Ethiopian army and the capture of Aïda's father, King Amonasro of Ethiopia, the King of Egypt (Walter Rudolph) awards Radames the hand of his daughter Amneris (Janice Williams Pierson and Christian Politis) who also loves him. After betraying Egyptian military secrets, Radames chooses death rather than give up Aïda and a life of honor. The opera was directed by Brandt Curtis with Charles Metten doing the staging and Crawford Gates directing the Symphony Orchestra. Other players included Alan Ord, Dan Knudsen, Viven Beecroft, Nelden Maxfield and Lamar Laws.

Amneris (Janice Williams Pierson) tried to convince the slave Aïda that her love for Radames was hopeless.

Aïda (Lynn Blackmun) and Radames (Rolando Gonzales) sing of the deep love that they have for one another.

Combining the art of music and drama, the Opera Workshop provides students an opportunity to learn about opera by actual participation in the production and performance of operas. However, the Workshop also gives students not involved in opera a chance to become acquainted with it by observing the productions. Aside from their two major operas, Carmen and Aida, the group under the direction of Brandt Curtis did scenes and excerpts from the operas La Boheme, The Maid is Mistress, La Serva Pardona, Mozart's Così Faututte, and Cavaleria Rusticana. They also presented in conjunction with Productions Guild "An Evening of Opera."

Women's Chorus

Somebody said that music hath power to charm the savage beast. Although the Women's Chorus, under the direction of Maughan McMurdie, gave no concerts in the jungle, they did charm the BYU studentbody. Appearing at firesides, devotional assemblies, and concerts, the Chorus' music was melodius, their vraiseemblance magnifique, their audiences enchanted. With a repertoire that ranged from light to classical works, the group kept its diversified listeners united in their admiration for the fair young ladies' sound of music. Graduate assistant to Professor McMurdie was Mike Suzuki. Ema Jo Bascom and Mary Beth Hughes accompanied.

Male Chorus

Composed mainly of non-music majors, the BYU Male Chorus endeavors to perform the best of classical and contemporary male chorus music, foster brotherhood among its members, and promote the spirit of the Y. During Homecoming Week the group took the lead in Operation Repertoire, the project designed to encourage all students to learn the school songs. Shortly thereafter, the chorus made a recording of "The Cougar Song" and "The Old Y Bell" for the University, which is played often on local radio stations before BYU basketball games. In their winter and spring concerts the chorus, conducted by Dr. Ralph Woodward, rendered selections ranging from Renaissance to modern. Other highlights of the year included a basketball halftime show, a high school contact tour, and a popular music presentation on "Y" day.

Arthur Barnes accompanies the chorus in one of the season concerts.

Dr. Ralph Woodward presents the chorus for applause after their concert performance.

A Cappella Choir

Dr. Ralph Woodward, Conductor

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Dr. Ralph Woodward, is recognized as one of the outstanding choirs in the nation and has toured widely throughout the country. On March 20, the group appeared in a joint concert with the University of Illinois Symphony Orchestra at the Music Educators' National Conference in Kansas City. The touring choir also visited Denver, St. Louis, Wichita, Indianapolis, Rock Island, Omaha, and Urbana, Ill. BYU and Provo audiences were able to listen to the choir at devotional assemblies, the Christmas Concert, and the Spring Concert.

Dr. John R. Halliday, director

The more than 100 members of the BYU Oratorio Choir, under the direction of Dr. John R. Halliday, spent long hours working out the intricacies of the oratorio form. Their first performance of the year was in November when they presented, in combination with the Symphony Orchestra, Dvorak's "Requiem," a work of monumental breadth and sustained power. During the Christmas season they performed for a special "Music at Midday" program which featured Christmas carols. In February the Oratorio Choir provided music for the six-stake conference.

University Chorale

The largest choral group on campus, University Chorale is also the only music group which does not require an audition for admittance. The 250 members in it are simply students who enjoy singing. The group's Winter Concert included operatic, religious, secular and Christmas music. Two of the major works of that concert were Faust's "Soldier's Chorus" and the familiar "Carol of the Drums." The chorale is under the direction of Kurt Weinzinger who recently returned from Vienna, Austria.

Symphony Orchestra

Students had many opportunities to listen to the marvelous sound of the BYU Symphony Orchestra in 1965. Besides appearances at several of the devotional assemblies, the orchestra also performed during the program dedication of the Stephen L. Richards building in November. The same month, they accompanied the opera "Carmen" and presented a rendition of Dvorak's "Requiem" with the Oratorio Choir. Members of the orchestra also assisted in the production of "Aida." Special concerts were presented in January and March; in the first of these, a special work written by Dr. Merrill Bradshaw especially for the orchestra was performed. The group also toured Southern California in March, and performed in Los Angeles and Long Beach.

The BYU Concert Band, composed of 105 students under the direction of professor Ralph Laycock, has performed extensively throughout the western part of the United States. This year, the group received an invitation to play for the National Convention of Music Educators in Los Angeles. On-campus performances included the fall and spring concerts and the Fieldhouse Frolics. Among the works in the band's concerts were "Festive Overture" by Shostakovich-Hunsberger, "La Bona Figliuola" by Puccini, and "Trilogy for Band" by Williams.

Marching Band

Flashy, imaginative, incomparable—BYU's blue—and white-suited Marching Band is ranked by all who have seen it as among the best in the nation. Richard Ballou's marchers have a reputation for unique, creative halftime entertainment and they enhanced it this year with flawless performances. The band scored its most popular triumph this year with an inspiring rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." By popular demand the song was encored at a later performance, the first time in 13 years any part of a halftime show has been repeated. Work began early on the routines, with all 120 members back on campus by September 11 to practice for the first show. The band performed for all home games this year and also traveled to Albuquerque, New Mexico and Tucson, Arizona, the first year it has ever taken more than one out-of-state trip. The bandsmen's enthusiasm, beat and showy routines added much to the spirit and excitement of the games.

The Marching Band, with their famous precision movements, forms the sign for infinity at the Homecoming game in keeping with the theme, "Infinity Plus".

Majorette Karen Welch entertains fans with a fancy baton routine at half-time.

The band enthusiastically cheers the football team and helps spur them on to the victory over New Mexico which resulted in the WAC Championship.

Lyceums

Celebrated as the first Russian to win the first prize for piano in the Marguerite Long Competition in Paris, Marina Mdivani was featured on November 14 by the Brigham Young University Lyceum Series.

Acclaimed by many as the finest orchestra in the country,

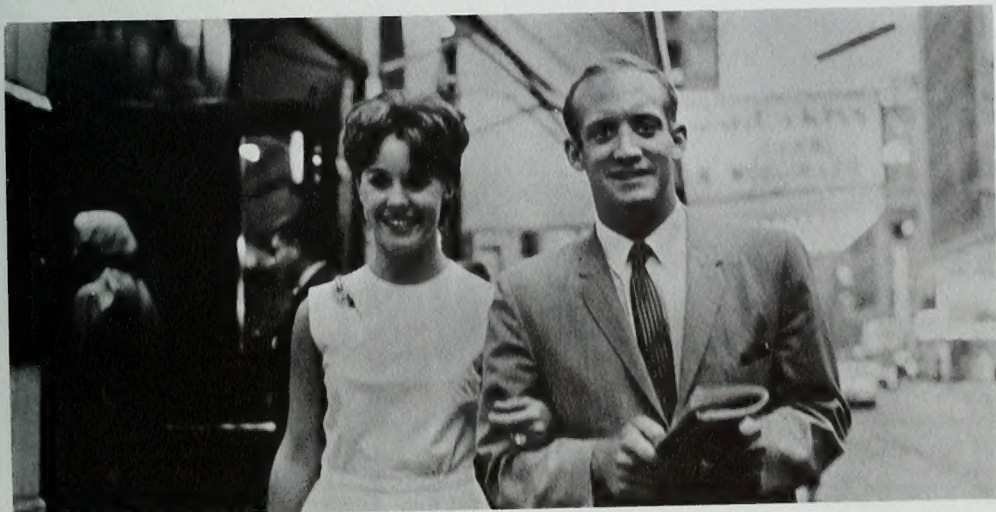

One of the six best orchestras in the U.S., the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, was featured at the May 11 Lyceum.

Cleveland Orchestra, directed by George Szell, appeared April 23.

Maestro Maurice Abravanel conducted the Utah Symphony Orchestra, one of Utah's finest cultural achievements, in two appearances, January 6 and February 10 for BYU Lyceum Series.

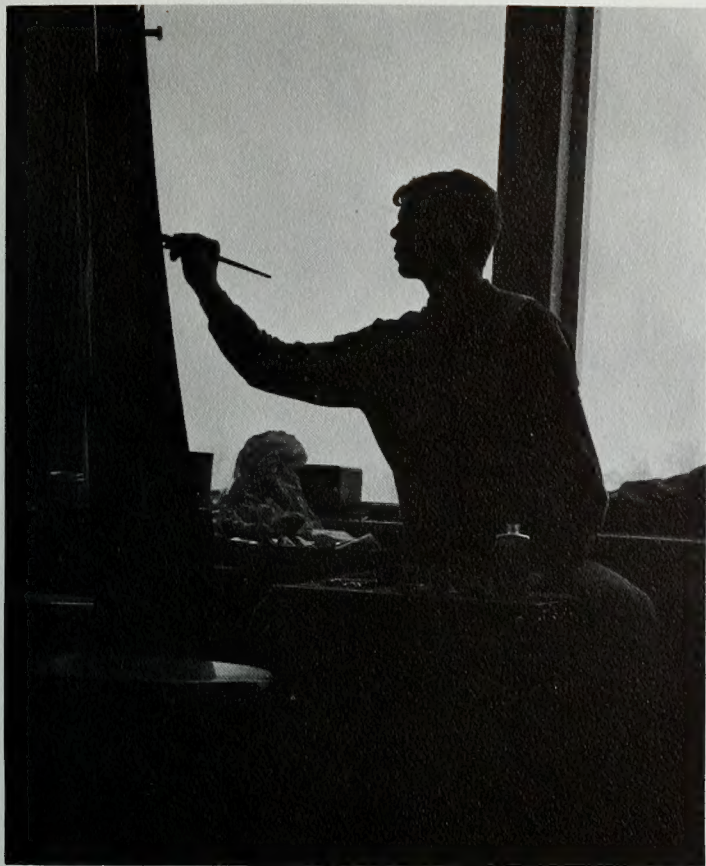

Lorin Hollander and his actress friend, Karen Wolfe, are shown leaving one of his favorite haunts, Sardi's. The young pianist performed on the BYU campus February 2.

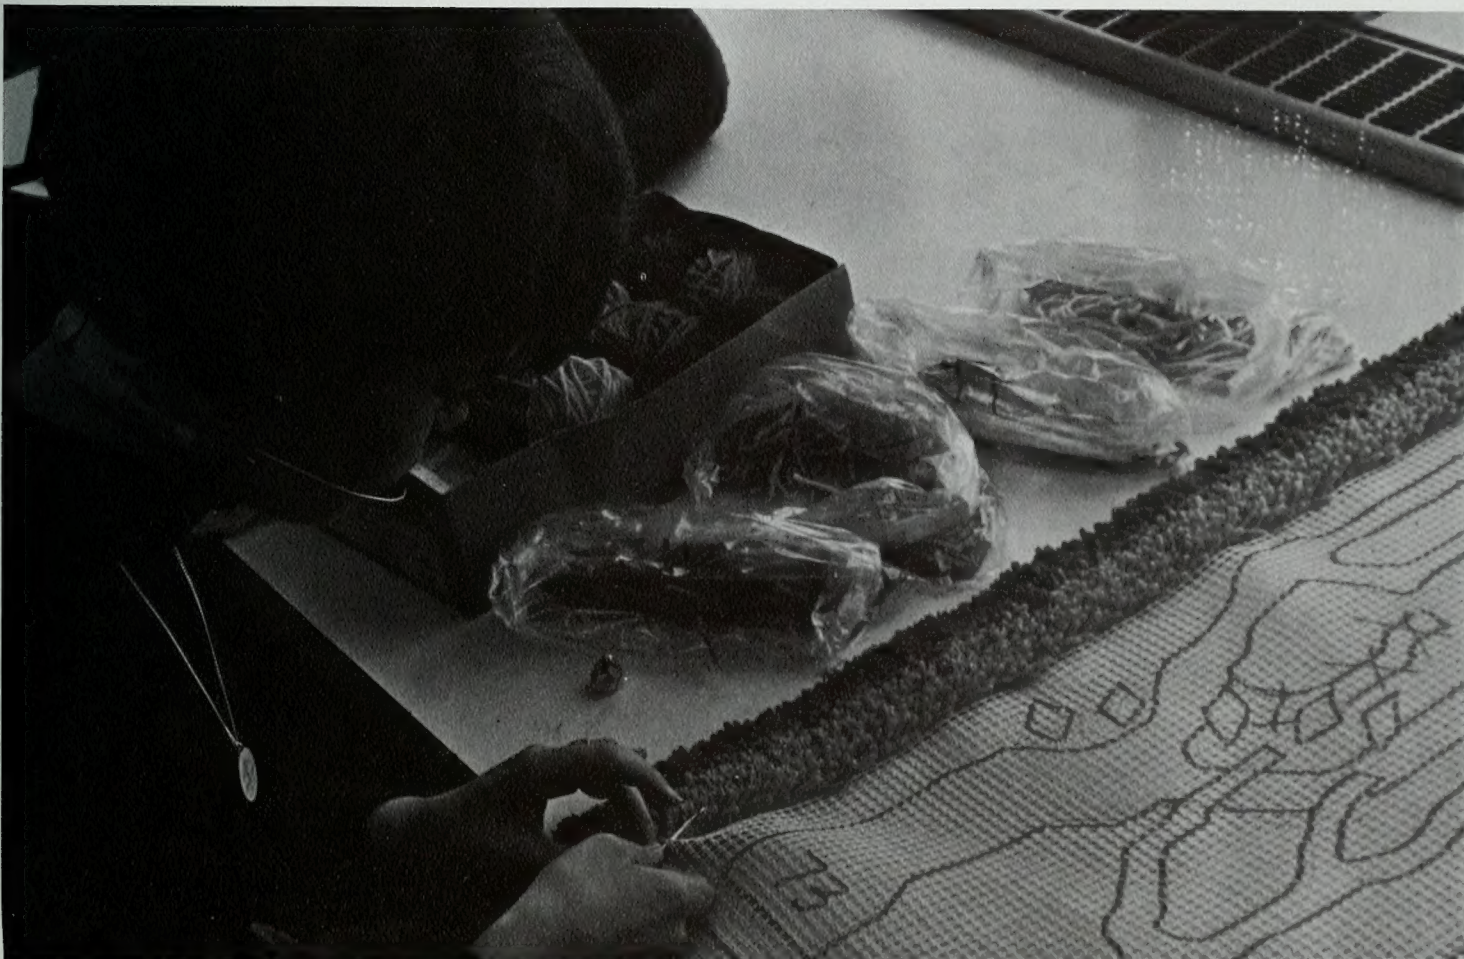

The Far Western Designer-Craftsman Invitational Exhibition featured professional works in all fields of art.

Artists' hands, fingers create beauty

Creativity is being expressed by doing an oil painting.

Canvas and clay are reserved for capturing illusions; for crystallizing the essence of beauty and ugliness, the essence of what is. Those who devote themselves to these arts—the painters and sculptors—pride themselves on their sensitivity to the impressions offered by the world around all of us which so many of us, either through carelessness or design, ignore. The artisans who make their business of the ephemeral magic which enchants those who haven't the patience or stamina to endure, thrive in the atmosphere of Brigham Young University, where sensory experiences are so rich and varied, facilities and faculties so extensive, and viewers so receptive and appreciative. The artists' unique contributions offer to "Y" students the catalysts for reflection, inspiration and strengthened dedication.

Artistic ability is displayed and expressed by applying the use of concepts such as color and design in making a yarn rug.

Polished, reflected: the artists' hallmarks.

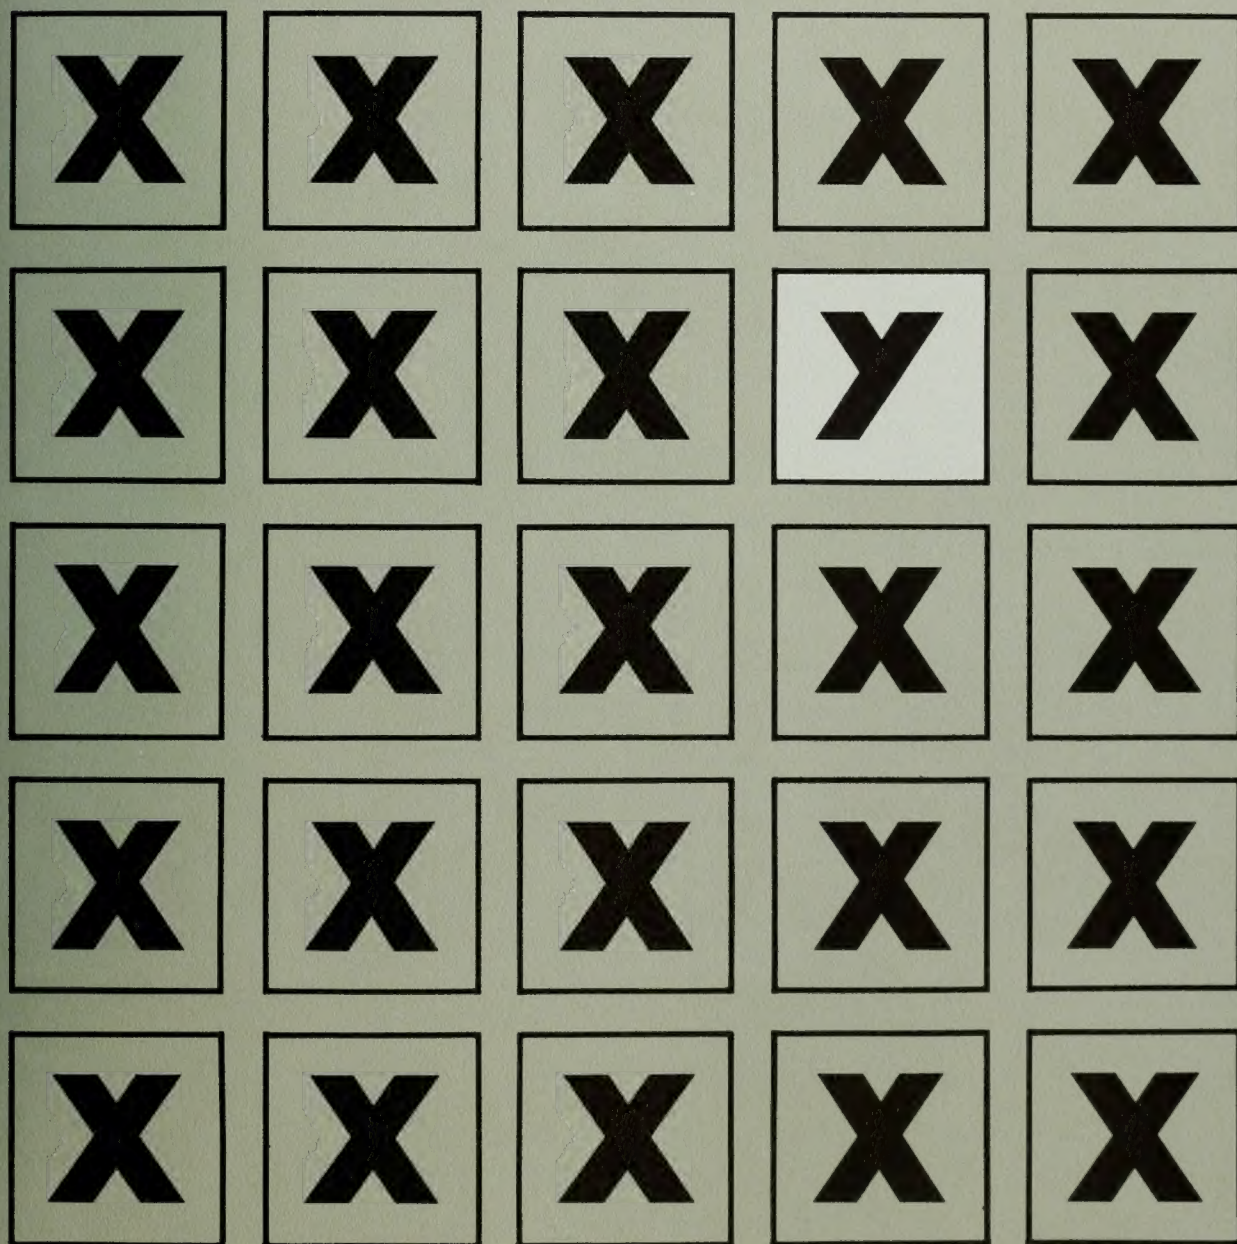

Student in lithography class applies water to stone with picture to be printed: one step in the process of lithography.

Silhouetted vases, newly removed from the hum and whirl of the potter's wheel, form pools of reflections from the window.

Organizations

In a very big universe united by a common belief and activity cards with bad pictures, twenty-thousand little voices cry out from twenty thousand little bodies: I AM DIFFERENT- And in crying the voices become louder and the bodies gain stature and, though their activity cards still sport very bad pictures, they are smiling because in the universe they have found people who care. And they have found that even a community with twenty thousand souls is manageable; that though the community as a whole is dedicated to common interests, there is no majority great enough to keep their fraternity of interest from prospering; creating and defining the elusive "Spirit of the Y."

Dancers give an example of the excellence that can only be reached by bringing individual skills together in group performance.

AFROTC Emphasizes Leadership

Agreeing with Cicero's philosophy that "a man can control others only to the extent that he can control himself," the AFROTC, both nationally and at BYU, teaches cadets discipline and leadership. The local 855th Wing, composed of groups, squadrons, and flights has given junior cadets leadership opportunities as commanders, while senior cadets have been given administrative positions. Utilizing the Provo airport, seniors also have participated in the Flight Instruction Program, and other cadets serve in the Honor and Color guards. The highest number of points gained through inspection ratings, drill competitions, and intramural competition in basketball and softball determine the flight that received the honored position of Tiger Flight.

Reflecting the strength and decision which AFROTC strives to develop in its men, Louis Glass yells, "Forward, MARCH!"

With their striking uniforms and dignified manner, the Color Guard makes the flag ceremony a moving experience for observers.

Simulated but realistic wounds are demonstrated by Jim Armstrong, Mark Howard, and Bruce Petty during a survival exercise for Juniors in Advanced Officer Training.

Wayne Bevan has his wife pin on the bars that will mark him an officer.

The new Spring Wing Commander Dahl Olsen receives Cadet Colonel rank.

Standing at attention, eyes unwavering, these cadets look forward to the future.

AFROTC cadets drill regularly to develop the abilities to obey without dissent, to lead without arrogance.

Arnold Air Society

Louis Glass
Commander

Forming a professional fraternity for AFROTC cadets who are second semester sophomores or above, the Arnold Air Society enables members to learn more about the purpose, traditions and concepts of the Air Force and become acquainted with Air Force career officers. Cadets grow very close to each other through participation in the club's activities. Meetings are held once weekly, and cadets listen to noted speakers and also see movies. Two trips were taken during the year to Hill Air Force Base where members were able to observe life on the base and also take a ride in a C-124 transport plane. In October, several members traveled to Laramie, Wyoming, to represent BYU at the Area Conclave; in addition, several representatives went to the national A.A.S. Conclave in Dallas, Texas, in April. There Society policy for the nation was set. Social activities for the group included an initiation banquet and several exchanges with Angel Flight.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Joining with chapters from colleges across the nation, B.Y.U.'s chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta strives to fulfill its purpose, to lift the scholastic standing of women students. Recognition is given to sophomores who earned a 3.5 grade point average one semester of their freshman year and to graduating members who have maintained this high average. Although only active during the sophomore year, members retain this affiliation for their lifetime. Active members had many special events during this year. These included a meeting with Lynn Southam, ASBYU Vice-President of Academics, an ice skating exchange with a male counterpart, Phi Eta Sigma, and the initiating ceremony with the presentation of club pins and membership certificates from the national headquarters. The group gave much service by offering free tutoring to the studentbody.

Even today, you don't have to be a reared-in-the-West cowboy to belong to the Arizona Club. Yep, even jet-age dudes, Eastern city-slickers and Philadelphia lawyers participate in the decidedly Western-flavored fun and fellowship provided by the friendly, informal atmosphere of the club's activities of bi-weekly dances, a supper of authentic Spanish food and a spring semester steak fry. The largest geographical club on campus, this active group contributed time and service to the annual A.M.S.-A.W.S. Christmas Needy Family Drive in addition to their own club service project. Because of the popularity of the former "Arizona Daze" celebration, the campus-wide Western Week has become an annual event. During this week, the Arizona Club sponsors the Western Week Dance for the Studentbody.

Ballroom Dance Team

Having the distinction of being the only one of its kind in the nation, the Ballroom Dance Team provides a ready outlet for those students who enjoy ballroom dancing and desire to elevate campus dance standards. Since their organization in 1961 through the College of Physical Education by Benjamin deHoyos, the Team has established a tradition of great activity and excellence in performance. 1965-66 continued this tradition with numerous performances for half-time shows at basketball games, for the General Authorities at Salt Lake, and for floorshows at special events. The Team traveled to Snow Jr. College for a performance and toured with the Program Bureau to the Northwestern States and Southern California, as well as performing in the Empire Room of the Hotel Utah in Salt Lake. Members also found time for a formal Dinner-Dance each semester.

Delta Phi Kappa

First organized in 1869 as a debating society, Delta Phi Kappa is now an organization for returned missionaries with chapters at seven universities. In seeking to perpetuate the missionary spirit and increase spirituality, Delta Phi has carried on a program of tremendous activity. Events included giving sacrament meeting programs around Utah Valley, the Dream Girl Contest and Formal, the alumni banquet, and an extemporaneous speech contest. The national president Elder Paul Dunn, was featured at the fall openhouse, Elder Marion D. Hanks at the spring openhouse. In the Homecoming parade, the group's float was a prize winner, and their snow sculpture won the sweepstakes in that event of the Winter Carnival. Concluding the year's events, the National Convention was held in Salt Lake.

Chinese Club

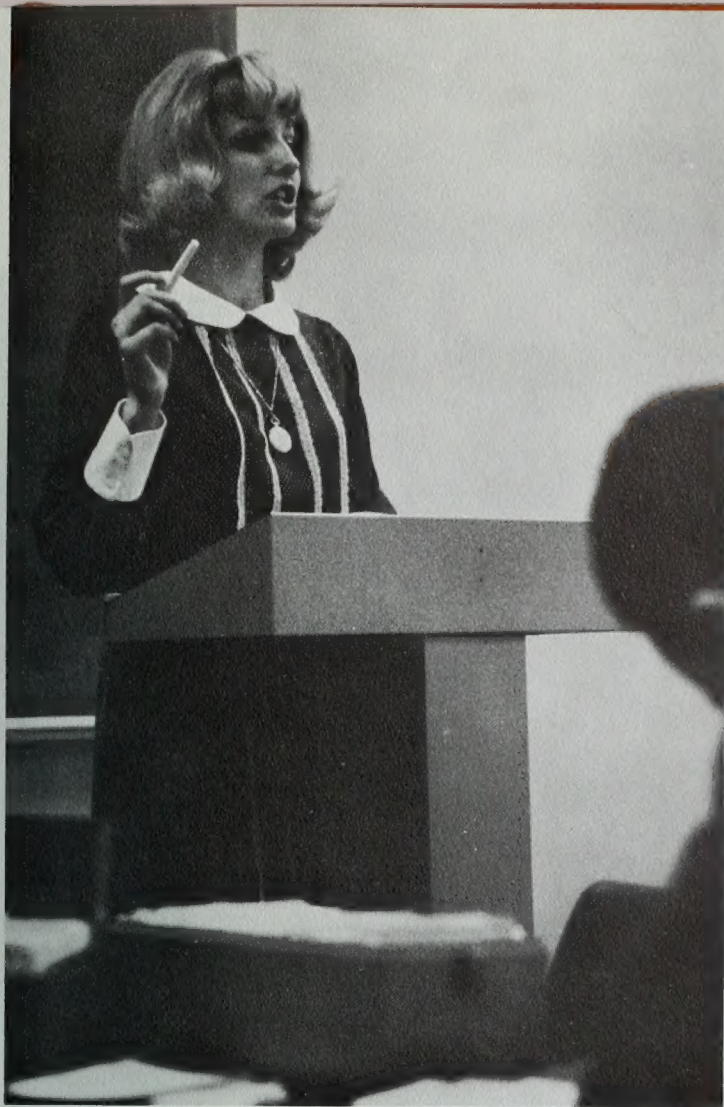

One of the largest geographical organizations on the BYU campus is the Chinese Club. Native Chinese students, students of Chinese ancestry, returned missionaries, and interested friends compose the membership whose major purpose is to promote greater understanding and appreciation of the Chinese culture. The club also provides opportunity for its foreign students to associate more closely with American students. Of the many attractive floats in the Homecoming parade, one of the most beautiful was the float created by the Chinese Club. Another major activity of the year was their Chinese New Year Celebration. Early in February, the New Year Dinner-Dance featured six courses of authentic Chinese food and forty-five minutes of Chinese dancing and entertainment. University, Church, and city dignitaries attended the very publicised event.

Garbed in the robes of ancient China, Chinese Club members perform a traditional dance at the Chinese New Year's Party.

Forensics Team

Representing BYU in speech and debate competition with other Western colleges, the Forensic Team received many individual trophies as well as sweepstakes trophies this past year. First organized eleven years ago, the team has grown in that time from a group with one advisor to the present team with three faculty advisors and several graduate assistants. In recent years they have averaged twenty-seven tournaments yearly. Maintaining their high position among the top collegiate debating teams, the Y team traveled to Montana, New Mexico, Kansas, Arizona, and California. They did exceptionally well at two meets in Bozeman, Montana, where they won a sweepstakes trophy and several first and second place ratings. Also, at the Western Speech Meet held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, the Forensic Team won a Sweepstakes trophy and individual awards.

International Folk Dancers

Folk Dancers perform the prysiadka from Ukrainian dance Chirvony Pas.

Founded in 1956 with fourteen couples the International Folk Dancers now have over two hundred members and have performed throughout the world and in over twenty states. In the summer of 1964 they performed under the sponsorship of the Department of Defense for the armed forces serving in the Far East, and during that same summer other members were sent by the People to People Organization to Europe to participate in festivals there. A ninety-day tour is scheduled again this summer through most of Europe. Locally, they danced this past year in the Homecoming Parade, the Student Assembly, Fieldhouse Frolics, and gave the sixth annual "Christmas Around the World" program. Hundreds of thousands who have seen the Folk Dancers have been impressed by their cheerfulness and by the precision and authenticity of the dances: the group has proven to be a valuable missionary tool and an important public relations unit.

IEEE

A national organization comprising professional engineers as well as students in engineering, the IEEE advances the knowledge of theories and practices in electrical engineering, electronics, radio, and allied branches of engineering. During Engineering Week, the campus chapter presented special exhibits on aerospace, including those on guidance, computers, communications, telemetry, and space in the future. Throughout the year, many speakers from various companies lectured to IEEE on current trends in engineering. At the graduation banquet, graduates were presented desk plaques; their wives received special diplomas.

Karate Club

The form of Karate taught at BYU is called "Shoto Kan" Karate. It was brought to Japan from Okinawa by Master Gichen Funakoshi, who then gave its philosophy and development. The club's ideal is best summed up in a statement made by Master Funakoshi: "The ultimate aim of Karate lies not in victory or defeat, but in the perfection of the character of its participants." With a perfect character one becomes pure in mind, body, and spirit. Self-defense is self-preservation. A true man of self-defense is not only concerned for the preservation of his physical body, but also for the preservation of his soul, his spirit, all his rights vested in him by God, and for the protection of his fellow men and loved ones. The best "self-defense" one can develop is the acquiring of that status of being whereby he may be able to live all the commandments of God and draw his fellow man closer to God.

Kia Ora Club

Organized in 1950 by two Maoris, Joe Hapi and Albert Whaanga, a British New Zealander, William Carr, and several returned missionaries, the Kia Ora Club strives to further an understanding of the Maori culture and to perpetuate the deeply spiritual faith of the Maori Latter-day Saints. The club also performs native Maori dances for various organizations and activities; this past year they have performed for the Circle K Club and for a Provo High School Class Reunion. In January they provided half-time entertainment at the BYU - Arizona State basketball game and received a large ovation. Their rhythmic Polynesian dances are enhanced by the use of authentic, native costumes which are woven from flax fiber. Inspired by cascading waters and birds in flight, the popular poi dance incorporates intricate twirling patterns of the small poi balls.

Sigma Delta Omicron

Constituting a path to wider professional opportunities for the girls in the College of Family Living, the program of Sigma Delta Omicron is designed to help students be more adequately trained for the responsibilities of their chosen careers by offering information and pleasure beyond what the classroom and textbook provides. The yearly schedule of events has proven to be stimulating and enjoyable for the girls. Their programs included a high school career day, faculty lecture, dairy taste night, lamb supper, fashion show and spring buffet in which all departments of the college met together. Four of the five departments, clothing and textiles, food and nutrition, housing and home management and human development and family relations, also met separately each month to hear speakers and gain information about their chosen fields.

Student Education Association

A professional association for college and university students preparing for teaching careers, the Student Education Association (SEA) is an integral part of the Utah Education Association and the National Education Association. SEA strives to give students preparing to teach opportunities to learn more about the profession, to become acquainted with major issues facing the profession and to air their opinions. It gives them a chance to prepare for future leadership in the teaching profession and an opportunity to participate in welfare benefits offered to teachers through professional organizations. Speakers this year included Tony LaPray, Max Berryessa, Robert Egbert, W. Dwayne Belt and Hugh Baird who spoke on topics covering current educational trends, special education, and intern teaching. A banquet was held in the Spring.

Student Nurses laughingly participate in a Big and Little Sister night with imaginative skits, party games and lots of food.

Student Nurses Association

Making use of a common interest provided by a specialized major, Student Nurses Association does much to provide opportunities for student nurses to get acquainted and aid them in the preparation for the assumption of their professional responsibilities. Activities for 1965-66 were directed towards this purpose and included a lecture by a mortician, the State Nurses Convention, and a canyon party during first semester. Second semester brought more activity with the Big and Little Sister party, the riotous Student-Faculty basketball game, and hosting the State Quarterly meeting. During the month of February, the State Association gave members opportunity to have experience in Disaster Nursing by spending weekends in a bomb shelter. The year ended with Student Nurses Week in May and the National Convention in San Francisco in June.

Young Americans for Freedom

Nationally, the Young Americans for Freedom were organized in 1960 at Sharon, Connecticut, and currently have over seventy thousand members. The organization has existed locally since 1963. Through the presentation of films, lectures, forums, and symposiums, they have endeavored to promote patriotism among the students and to provide encouragement for our servicemen throughout the world, particularly in Viet Nam. The Young Americans for Freedom also have endeavored to interest students in conservative political views and to expose the dangers and the threat of Communism to the free world. This past year the president of the Young Americans, Michel Call, has written a column entitled "Political Forum" which has appeared periodically in the Daily Universe. Current problems dealing with the national and local scenes were discussed.

Reactivated this year, the BYU Chapter of the American can Guild of Organists boasts a membership of thirty-five students. The purpose of this organization is to provide additional opportunity to perform, and to give insight into organ culture. Guest lectures and student recitals provided the bluk of activity but highlights came as Robert Cundick, tabernacle organist, performed a concert for the guild.

ASME

Creativity of the mind was the theme used by members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in obser-vation of Engineering Week. Displays made by members and speeches by guest professional speakers carried out this idea. Also highlighting the year were the election of the first ASME Queen, the broom-ball hockey battle between club members, and the regional ASME convention at Golden, Colo.

ASCE

Since its affiliation with the national organization in 1961, the BYU Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers has helped civil engineering students to establish professional contacts which will enable them to better serve their profession. Some of this year's events included a field trip to Glen Canyon Dam near Page, Arizona and the guest appearance of Mr. Ed Stuber of Bethlehem Steel.

The newest member of the Engineers' Joint Council is the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. During Engineering Week, which was held in February, the chemical engineers exhibited a demonstration on the production of nylon, dye processes and the recovery of products from crude oil. Lining up summer work for chemical engineers is a project of this organization in addition to the weekly seminars.

Promoting and developing LDS standards as they pertain to business and gaining an understanding of the scientific principles of modern management are the aims of the Business Management Association. This year the BMA adopted AIESEC, an international organization whose purpose is to create an exchange program with foreign students in the business field. Members work on foreign jobs for 3 weeks to 1 year.

Corps de Ballet

During the second year of the Corps de Ballet, members performed at Fieldhouse Frolics, Preference Ball concert, and staged a Spring Concert. This group was organized to further interest in ballet by providing members with opportunities to dance and teach, and providing the studentbody with opportunities to see ballet. Master classes were given once a month by Philip Keeler of the U of U Ballet Department.

ASTME

As part of an international chain of chapters, BYU's Chapter of the American Society of Tool & Manufacturing Engineers brought to the campus in 1965-66 many events for those students involved in manufacturing technology. Plant tours and special lectures conducted jointly with the Salt Lake City Chapter drew not only students but educators and engineers in industry from all over the Western United States.

Many students who found themselves in a quandry over income tax returns got an assist from members of Beta Alpha Psi, BYU's honorary accounting club, who offered their services to students. Also this year the club offered tutoring sessions for accounting students and varied activities for its members. One such activity was the guest appearance of Fred Oliver of the Haskins & Shells Accounting Firm.

In its second year of activity, the French East Missionaries Club did much to continue and maintain friendships gained by members in the missionfield and preserve the knowledge of the French language and culture. This was accomplished through a special fireside with President Nathan Tanner as the speaker, participation in the Winter Carnival snow sculpturing, and a reunion at April Conference.

Finnish Club

An interest in the traditions and culture of the Finnish people and a spirit of brotherhood have brought together returned missionaries, students, and members of the Church in the Finnish Club. Continuing their third year of activity, the group placed emphasis on greater appreciation of Finish holidays and music. Members enjoyed a Christmas Dinner and a concert of Finnish music sung by Roy King.

Danish Club

Organized in the spring of 1965, the Danish Club is composed of returned Danish missionaries and other interested people. The club sponsored several firesides and provides an annual sacrament meeting for the Danish Branch of the LDS Church in Salt Lake City. Perpetuating friendships made during missionary service and maintaining an interest the Danish people are the objectives of this organization.

Coordinating the four engineering societies (mechanical, civil, electrical and chemical) is the Engineers' Joint Council. Engineering Week, held in February, was the highlight of the year, including a queen contest and judging of the best presentation entered by a society. Then engineers' magazine, "The Y Vector," was published quarterly. The societies competed athletically and sponsored a spring picnic.

Returned French missionaries find a bond of fellowship in the Frenchmen. Organized to continue the friendships formed under President Rulon T. Hinckley, the group has been in existence since 1964. Activities continued this year with reunions at both October and April Conferences, firesides featuring President and Sister Hinckley and Elder Paul Dunn, and a social featuring a buffet lunch and a dance.

Future Missionaries

Prospective missionaries often dream of the coming years as the happiest years of their lives. To help their "little brothers" realize their dreams, the Delta Phi Kappa (returned missionaries) Club has helped the Future Missionary Club by teaching the basic missionary method and organizing weekly fireside programs of inspirational talks by former mission presidents and outstanding returned missionaries.

Hawaiian Club

Coconut palms . . . moonlit Waikiki beach . . . lovely hula hand . . . The Hawaiian Club, in the traditional aloha style, enjoyed a full, fun-filled year. Polynesian Week, held in April, was climaxed by the Polynesian Assembly, considered to be one of the best presented on campus. Members gathered to acquaint people with the culture of Hawaii, to assist Program Bureau, and to assist ward service projects.

Learning the culinary art of Makizushi, organizing a club choir that sang at Song Fest and various sacrament meeting programs, and Subbing-for-Santa were part of the year's round of activities for the Japanese Club. This group, composed of Japanese students and other students interested in the Japanese people and their culture, celebrated such traditional events as the New Year's Feast and a Sukiyaki dinner.

Several thousand miles from home, northeasterners banded together to form the New England Club. Providing transportation home via chartered plane at Christmas time and the end of the year was the main project for this club. Prior to the exodus home at yuletide, a dance and swimming party were held. Newly organized fall semester, New Englanders sponsored Sunday firesides and concluded with a spring fete.

Omicron Nu

Junior and senior students in home economics are initiated twice a year into Omicron Nu, the national honorary organization for this field. This year's outstanding event was a visit from the National Omicron Nu president, Dr. Pauline Paul, Dean of the College of Home Economics at the University of California. Furthering understanding of the basic importance of the home is the main goal of Omicron Nu.

Recreation Majors

Organized only last fall, the Recreation Majors Club enjoyed a busy and fun-filled schedule of activities. The club's purpose is to provide professional programs and leadership experience and to simulate interest in the recreation field. Each month found the recreation majors participating in varied events including a steak fry, professional speakers, selling tournament programs, and a tubing party.

Agricultural majors, talented cowpokes, and students with farm-ranch backgrounds find outlets for their talents in the Rodeo-Stockman's Club. From this group is selected the best competitors to represent BYU on a rodeo circuit with other major colleges, which this year included a rodeo in Provo. Other activities were social in nature and were climaxed by the biggest event, Western Week, held in May.

Sponsoring activities of a social and spiritual nature for returned Scottish missionaries, the Scotsmen experienced their second full year on campus. Scottish heritage was stressed in such events at the Traditional Burns' Supper, which commemorated the birthday of Robert Burns, and fire-sides at which Phil D. Jensen, North Scottish Mission President, and Selvoy J. Boyer, London Temple President spoke.

Shomrah Kiyel

Finding a way to fill the gap that is left when someone special leaves for the mission field prompted the organization of Shomrah Kiyel. Traditional activities were continued this year with the Sweetheart's Banquet held at Park's Cafe and a weekend at the Homestead in Heber Valley including a sunrise testimonial. A Trousseau Tea-Bridal Show completed the year.

Sigma Gamma Epsilon

A college honor society in the earth sciences, Sigma Gamma Epsilon promotes scholastic and scientific advancement of its members. This year the Alpha Sigma Chapter at BYU sponsored several Geology/Geography trips and also featured guest speakers in the field. Social activities co-sponsored with the Department of Geology included a "Welcome Dinner," and Christmas and spring canyon parties.

Presenting the annual Engineering Week Queen and recognizing top engineering students have been the primary projects of Tau Beta Pi for this year. This engineering fraternity, established three years ago at BYU, honors distinguished scholarship and character in this subject field. Tau Beta Pi is linked with 121 other chapters across the nation as part of the national organization initiated in 1885.

"The Littlest Angel," that delightful Christmas assembly, was produced by Theta Alpha Phi, dramatics organization at BYU. This is a national honorary dramatic fraternity organized on this campus some 15 years ago. A rigid theatrical examination must be passed in addition to appearing in and assisting with theatrical productions. Firesides, floats, ushering at plays and subbing-for-Santa kept TAP'S moving.

Theta Alpha Phi

Theta Epsilon Chi

Interest in the exceptional child draws students to membership in Theta Epsilon Chi. During the year, members contributed their services to the American Fork Training School for Sunday School and MIA lessons, held a Christmas party for the handicapped children of Utah County, December 10, and helped local special education teachers. Four years ago Dr. Marguerite Wilson directed the organization of TEC.

Advertising Club

Although organized to assist the Communications department, the University Advertising Club gives valuable assistance in many other areas as well. This year the group took charge of the publicity for the opera "Carmen" and for the AMS Activity Night. This service made it possible for the members to realize one of their goals in becoming acquainted with creation and production methods of advertising.

Whirling calico skirts and ten gallon hats are a familiar sight when the Y Squares perform. Striving to carry square dancing out of the classroom and spread its enjoyment, the group fulfilled a year of much activity. The Homecoming parade was livened by the club's float which featured two squares of members actually dancing. A trip to St. George for a square dance jamboree highlighted the year.

Developing from the Sponsor Corps, organized in 1952, Angel Flight completed its fifth year on the BYU campus. Service to the University, AFROTC, and Arnold Air Society, their brother unit, along with other activities provided opportunities to the 53 Angels for development mentally, morally, culturally, and spiritually. Blue uniforms and a feminine salute pervaded throughout such Angel Flight activities as initiating new members selected in October; co-sponsoring a blood drive in December with the Arnold Air Society, to which 800 pints of blood were donated, part being sent to Viet Nam; and a second blood drive in May in conjunction with the Red Cross. Mount Majestic Manor in Brighton was the setting of the Christmas Dinner Dance to which Angels brought their beaus. One of the most formal dances on campus was the Military Ball which Angel Flight and AFROTC sponsored. Climaxing the new year was the announcing of new officers and awards given at the Spring Dinner Dance, May 7.

Alpha Phi Omega

Dell Saunders
President

The Eta Omicron Chapter of the Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity was organized on the BYU campus in 1948. From its founding Eta Omicron has served the campus through projects such as selling stadium chairs at games, ushering at devotional assemblies and other functions, maintaining a first aid booth at athletic events and on Y day, and working at the campus information booth. They also provided officials at track meets, sponsored the annual Ugly Man on Campus Drive for the campus chest, and assisted in local Boy Scout councils and conferences. Their interest in scouting and youth movements exemplifies their philosophy of developing leadership and furthering the spirit of fraternal brotherhood and service. This past year Eta Omicron enjoyed a dinner dance each semester, and participated in ISC Week. They have begun a scholarship program for men in the youth leadership department. Eta Omicron has continued to serve BYU well.

Archon Honor Fraternity

David Mendenhall
President

Founded in 1959 as an auxiliary to the Blue Key, the Archon Honor Fraternity has become an active group on campus. Limited to freshmen and sophomore men who have exhibited outstanding academic progress, this organization provided companionship and intellectual stimulation. Special emphasis this year was placed on the weekly meetings where guest speakers such as Dr. J. R. Murphy, Dr. Reed Bradford, and Dr. Truman Madsen led discussions on subjects of current interest. Operation Repertoire was given many hours of service by this organization as was the Blood Drive. Ushering, tutoring, and other service projects gave this special interest group basis for their theme, "leaders also serve." Sponsoring a Belle of the Y candidate, joining in the Songfest, and adding to the Little Man on campus week were activities participated in; but finalizing the year was the annual Awards Banquet held in April. Deserving members and honorary guests were honored.

Beta Sigma Epsilon

Using the same ancient ceremony as did the early Egyptian scribes, Beta Sigma Epsilon initiated thirty members into their group this fall. These future businesswomen activated their organization, which became independent of the national group last spring, by providing numerous activities and interesting, varied programs. Miss Clare Middlemiss, President McKay's private secretary, began the club's year by sharing with this group her personal experiences with the Prophet and displaying the scrapbooks which she has made concerning his life and works. Miss Middlemiss then became the first honorary member of Beta Sigma Epsilon. The organization contributed a float entitled "Secretaries Are a Blast," depicting two secretaries on the side of a rocket ship, to the Homecoming parade; and a banquet was provided for a Thanksgiving celebration. A Christmas caroling party, open house, fashion show and invitational rounded out the year.

During the spring quarter, 1932, the local application for membership was accepted by the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity, and Clyde D. Sandgren was made the charter president. Blue Key is comprised of campus leaders in scholastic, religious, and student government activities who seek to create attitudes that improve student life and welfare. In 1948, the BYU honor system was initiated as a Blue Key project. Safety projects, such as crosswalks and sidewalks, have insured adequate student safety. The baseball scoreboard, the wagon wheel, and the Y Bell have been provided by Blue Key. The placement of needed bulletin boards and the Brigham Young statue have added to the beauty of the campus. The special events of this past year began with their pledge banquet held in November at the Royal Inn and a tubing party held in January at Timp Haven. Events concluding the year were an open house, the annual dinner dance, and a senior breakfast.

"We the members of Chi Triellas, for the purpose of enriching our own lives and in so doing, enriching the lives of others, do establish this constitution of Chi Triellas Culture Unit . . . If there is anything virtuous, lovely, or of good report or praiseworthy, we seek after these things." Throughout the year, Chi Tri's pursued this goal in varied activities and whether it was sponsoring the Back-to-School Fashion Show or decorating the joint Homecoming Float with C.A.A. or sponsoring a culture night for AWS Women's Week, Chi Tri's excelled. A Christmas dinner-dance was held at Bridal Veil Falls and later a spring formal to which the favorite guys of Chi Tri's escorted their dates. Chi Triellas claimed a Winter Carnival Queen in the form of Sue Larson, president. This culture unit was organized in 1961 and since that time has won trophies for Homecoming floats and the annual blood drive, and has become one of the most active units on campus.

Circle K

Gary Barney
President

An international organization with over six hundred campus organizations in Canada and the United States, the Circle K Club is a branch of Kiwanis International. Because of their relationship to local business and community leaders, they strive to serve both community and campus. Service is rendered through ushering at forums and devotionals, and at concerts and plays in the Harris Fine Arts Center. In doing so, the sixty Circle K members put in one thousand service hours monthly. Events of the past year included the installation of new members held in November in the Sky Room. Also in November, the Circle K sponsored the car show during Homecoming Week, the annual lost and found sale, and held their Thanksgiving dinner-dance. The second semester installation party was held at the Newhouse Hotel, and in April Circle K Club members attended the District Circle K Convention which was held on the Utah State University campus in Logan.

In 1913 an organization entitled the Three I's initiated the spirit that carried through the Tau Sigma Eta and now prevails in the Collegiate Athletic Association. Chartered in 1962 to function as an athletic service organization, the C.A.A. has since assisted in ticket distribution and ushering for athletic events and in special projects such as the Christmas card campaign for servicemen in Viet Nam. School spirit was promoted through their efforts in attracting promising athletes to the Y, by their Cougar Days jail, and by their colorful Homecoming float based on the chicken-or-the-egg theme. Social activities of the year included a western breakfast, a Christmas party at the Alta Snow Pine Lodge, and a spring camp-out. Deer cooked Hawaiian style was a feature of their annual deer-bust, and the traditional Topper Picnic featured mud fights and a tug-of-war. Highlighting the year were the Black and White Formal and the spring dinner-dance.

Organized in the spring of 1963 the BYU Cougar Club was the first student organization of its kind on this campus. In 1964 they combined efforts with the Alumni Association to form the National BYU Cougar Club, which now consists of six other chapters throughout the western states. In the past they sponsored such projects on campus as The King Family Show, the Geneva Steel Stadium Fund Drive, and special athletic events such as the annual Varsity-Frosh basketball game, the Varsity-Alumni football game, and the Mud Bowl game. They assisted in closed circuit TV of away basketball games, and gave visiting potential BYU athletes a student's tour of the campus. The Academic Emphasis plaque was purchased for the studentbody, and a long-playing album of the BYU College Songs to be released at Homecoming, 1966, was initiated and sponsored by the BYU Cougar Club. Over $10,000 was contributed by the Club to the BYU Athletic Fund during the past school year.

One of the oldest and best known campus spirit organizations, the Cougarettes, has earned a special place in the lore of BYU. Promoting pep and enthusiasm by their precision, spirited marches, the 42 girls who came mostly from the Freshman Class made contributions to the "Spirit of the Y" far beyond their age and numbers. Among the highlights of their year were performances and an open house during Homecoming Week, a "Necklace Night" at which new members were warmly received, a drill routine to popular tunes at the first league game, holiday and slumber parties. The girls accompanied the basketball team on its early second semester Arizona tour, performed at the Denver-BYU game and at the Utah-BYU half-time in conjunction with the Pep Committee. Their March concert was entitled "A Step In Time." The girls sponsored performances at the Invitational Track and Field meet in April, and held their annual dinner dance at Salt Lake City in early May.

The faces of these Cougarettes reflect the excitement of a football game as they wait to go on the field to perform.

The motto is "My Better Parts Above the Stars Shall Soar"; the colors are powder blue, white and silver; and the club is Delian Vesta, a relatively new cultural unit on campus. Organized in the spring of 1964, Delian Vesta outlined its purposes as the promotion and development of the members through cultural and scholastic activities, the creation of a strong bond of friendship among members and assisting and supporting all university activities. Homecoming time found members working busily on a float that was to take second place in the parade. At this time many alumni returned for a special Homecoming dinner with this year's members. A Thanksgiving fireside featured Glade Hunsaker as speaker, and a Christmas cabin party and special culture night entertained members at Christmas time. New members were chosen during spring rush; the group then participated in Song Fest and held a Spring Formal at the Lamplighter in Salt Lake City on May 6.

Club members socialize before lining up to be served at a break.

Marjie Rector is welcomed into Delian Vesta in a very special early morning ceremony conducted completely by candlelight.

Officially organized in 1963, Dileas Chalean (Gaelic for "Women of Devotion") is a service unit which draws members from all four classes. They have served the University by conducting campus tours for visitors, including elementary school children and important dignitaries, ushering at the football games and other campus functions, working in the new information booth, selling tickets for school events and participating in the ISC Service Week. Special projects included conducting an annual book drive to send literature to Asian countries, assisting at the state mental hospital and reading to several blind students. During the past school year, the following social activities increased unity and enjoyment among Dileas Chalean members: the annual slumber party in October, bowling nights and social exchanges with several of the men's social units, inspiring firesides, and co-sponsoring a float in the Homecoming Parade with Alpha Phi Omega.

Members of DC's such as Karen Hick were often seen in the information booth at the campus entrance giving directions.

Spectators watch with interest as a Ute Redskin meets his doom on the float sponsored by Dileas Chalean and Alpha Phi Omega.

Organized in 1919 as the Gold Y Honorary, they became the Gold Y Chapter of the Intercollegiate Knights in 1941 when they joined that national organization. The chapter has been nationally recognized by IK for its outstanding efficiency and service. The traditions of the Y have been preserved largely due to the efforts of this organization. They have been lighting the Y since 1919 and sponsoring Belle of the Y Week since 1949. In 1958 they donated the Joseph Smith mural to the school. More recently they have donated funds to the library's new geophysical globe and to the relocation of the sundial, now at the top of the Field-house steps. They also promoted the construction of the new campus entry way by Helaman Halls. Events of the past year included their semester open houses, entering a Homecoming float, and their dinner-dance in May. BYU hosted the IK Regional Convention in December; in April the National Convention was in Las Vegas.

Continuing a tradition as old as BYU, IK's ring the victory bell after the Cougars have come out victorious once again.

Continuing a tradition of activity and artistic excellence, Orchesis, the national modern dance fraternity, made 1965-66 a banner year. In December the group presented the annual Christmas Concert, titled "Out of Darkness," featuring an original script and choreography by members. Other concerts followed including the Spring Concert with Daniel Nagrin, one of America's top modern dance artists. The May Student Concert was presented in three different locations including a performance at a local hospital. This was all original work including combined numbers with Ballet Club. Besides these performances members attended a regular Thursday lesson to improve technique and learn more about dance movement. Here also they studies primitive and modern jazz dance forms. During the year members traveled to Colorado State for a special dance symposium with other western universities. The year was finished with the annual summer Dancer's Workshop.

Norsemen

Rick Nelson
President

Organized in September, 1962, by ten sports-minded men, the Norsemen now have over fifty members. They strive to build a great brotherhood in four areas: sportsmanship, scholarship, sociability, and service. This past year the Norsemen have been strong participants in the campus intramural sports and have held other special sports events. One of the most interesting was their broom ball hockey event held in January at the Winter Gardens. The game was much like hockey, but the teams of fifteen men each wore no ice skates, and brooms and a soccer ball were the equipment. All had an exciting time, but admitted it was a rough sport. The Club also held a swimming sports night and a ski trip to Timp Haven, West of Utah Lake, the armed Norsemen hunted game common to Utah—rabbit. This past year has been an exciting and interesting one for the Norsemen Sports Club due to their participation in and sponsoring both conventional and unusual sports.

Having lobsters and clams flown directly from Boston to Provo isn't the major purpose of the Samuel Hall Society, but their authentic New England clam bake serves as an example of the group's originality. Organized in 1962, Samuel Hall Society seeks outstanding students in athletic, academic and leadership fields and attempts to place them in an environment encouraging brotherhood, social functions and personal growth. Dinner discussions with noted faculty members provide the bulk of the yearly activities. Speeches are followed by a questioning period so members may become conversant with the subject matter of the lecturer. The Halloween party, however, is fast becoming the favorite tradition of the Society; monster costumes, complete with coffins, and attempts to identify the monsters provide the members and their dates with ghastly entertainment. Just before graduation, Brickerhaven, a day and a half of activities up Provo canyon capped with a steak fry, provided the members' last fling.

Kenny and Kerry Driggs enjoy a moment alone at the New England Clambake, Samuel Hall's outstanding yearly affair.

Sportsmen

President

Beginning their year with a deer hunt up Hobblercreek Canyon, Sportsmen continued throughout the year to further their interest in sports. The group was organized in 1959 by boys interested in athletics, but who wanted to have a sports-oriented club that placed less emphasis on social activities. Events continued during the hunting season in November as members combined with the Sportswomen for their annual Sports-feast. The boys went hunting, then the girls cooked the game they bagged. In February the annual giant slalom race was held at Solitude and a Sportsmen Cup awarded to the winner. It has long been a tradition to have rabbit hunts throughout the year, and a water skiing trip to Lake Powell is also becoming an annual event. Clinics conducted by qualified members were held several times during the year. The members combined with the Sportswomen in the final activity, a traditional luau complete with roast pig and trimmings.

Open house for all interested prospective members began the year for Sportswomen. This group, which fosters participation and good sportsmanship, planned a year full of enjoyable activities. A bike ride, getting-to-know-you activity and roller skating party aided the new members in becoming acquainted. With the float "Infinity Is a Never-Ending Cycle," portraying a cyclist upon his vehicle, the Sportswomen gained the recognition of having the best all-around float in the Homecoming parade. Cooking is also one of the attributes of this group's members; they cook the prey the Sportsmen killed in their annual hunt, then the two groups combine for the traditional Sportsfeast. This year's feast had an Indian theme, and everyone came in Indian costumes. The annual invitation-al was held at the restaurant atop Bridal Veil Falls. Another service of the Spurs is reading to blind students.

"At your service" was the very fitting motto of the BYU Chapter of Spurs. This national honorary service unit for sophomore women, which was organized on campus in 1956, constitutes a backbone of the service units. Their regular projects of the year included visiting the State Mental Hospital weekly, teaching the mentally retarded at American Fork, reading to blind students, ushering at spring semester devotionals and aiding foreign students. In addition the Spurs participated in the A.M.S.-A.W.S. Christmas Drive, supplied held at registration and the student art sale, and won a plaque in this year's Blood Drive. Social activity was also provided by joining in the fun of Homecoming, Winter Carnival, Songfest, the Founder's Day Celebration, and the spring invitational. Highlighting the year for the spurs was the Regional Convention for which the BYU Chapter was host. This event drew the National Spurs Officers from many area schools.

Thea Alexis

Appropriately the name Thea Alexis means "Goddess of Service" and the BYU service unit bearing it boasts the motto "A helping hand." The Thea Alexis women were first assembled in the mid 1950's with the purpose in mind to serve the BYU student body, to encourage activity and scholarship, uphold the traditions of Brigham Young University and promote the "Spirit of the Y." To accomplish their goals, the freshman women have worked at the Provo Mental Hospital and at the American Fork training school. Some of the girls spent their Sunday hours at American Fork teaching Sunday School and their Thursday evenings giving the Mutual lessons. They also sponsored Christmas parties at both American Fork and Provo. Some of the girls devoted part of their time to assisting the blind students on campus by reading to them and the whole unit worked to bring Christmas cheer to its "Christmas Family." The Thea Alexis Invitational was held the early part of April this year.

To "Seek Beauty in All Things," is the aim of the members of the Vakhnom Culture Unit. Founded in March of 1964 with 30 girls, membership has reached 90, with rush being held at the beginning of spring semester only. Sharing cultural experiences and at the same time promoting friendship among girls with similar interests were fostered with such activities as seeing as a group "Flower Drum Song" at the Valley Music Hall in Bountiful, ushering at the Utah Civic Ballet, assisting in culture activities for Associated Women Students Week, and helping with Sub-for-Santa. Rosanne Tueller Nielsen addressed Vakhnom during Wilkinson Center Week; and firesides and exchanges with various groups on campus were held in addition to Homecoming festivities, "Comic Capers," and a talent show. "Yule Tide Spice," the theme of the Christmas Dance, was held at the Homestead in Midway, Utah, and the year was brought to a memorable close with the Spring Dinner Dance in May.

Y Calcares

Susan Tout
President

During the school year of 1941-42, a group of BYU women investigated the National Spurs Service Organization but decided to remain independent. They chose as their organization name, however, the Spanish word for spur—calcares, and became known as the Y Calcares or Y.C.'s. Then in the spring of 1955, through the efforts of Y.C.'s, Spurs was organized for sophomore women; since that time Y.C.'s has been a unit exclusively for junior women. The Y.C.'s have served the campus through ushering at assemblies, lyceums, and other school functions, and by spending many hours at the information booth, reading to the blind, and helping at Child Haven. The festivities of Homecoming Week, Winter Carnival, Song Fest, ISC Service Week projects, and co-sponsoring the Belle of the Y Contest with the Intercollegiate Knights enlivened the year for the girls. In addition to service and social aspects, the 3.0 G.P.A. of Y.C.'s also indicates their academic excellence.

Young Men

Happy Cluff
President

Center of a major campus controversy this year, the Young Men welcomed in the second semester by learning their suspension had been reduced by the BYU Supreme Court four months, from Sept. 1 to May 2, 1966. The group, a member of the pep committee, had been suspended by the IOC for malfeasance on the part of several of their pledges. Before its suspension this year, and since its organization during the 1963-64 school year, the Young Men have helped to engender campus "pep, enthusiasm and esprit de corps," goals of the organization. From its beginnings with only eight interested students, it has grown to a diversified group boasting over sixty active members. This year the Young Men won first place in Skits-o-Frantic, guarded the cougar at the stadium 24 hours a day for two weeks prior to the Utah game, produced film shorts for the campus theatre, attended a number of away-football and basketball contests, and sang in the annual Songfest.

Leading the Homecoming parade with the traditional block "Y," were the girls of White Key. Identified by their uniforms and White Key pins worn each Wednesday, members could be seen distributing student telephone directories or participating in holiday festivities or listening to such special speakers as President Wayne B. Hales, physics professor; Dr. Beulah Allen, former Dean of Nursing; or Dr. Kenneth L. Cannon, HDFS professor. White Key was first women's service unit to be established at BYU, organized in 1933. Membership is limited to senior women with a 3.2 minimum G.P.A.; selection is based on scholarship, active support in all duties performed, adherence to the standards of the school, good character, previous activity, and loyalty to the school. Fostering service and furthering the best interests of BYU, promoting a spirit of fellowship among the students and encouraging scholarship are the primary objectives of White Key.

Heritage Halls Council

Acting as a co-ordinator for the 24 Heritage Hall presidents, the Heritage Halls Council serves as a bridge between the girls in the halls and the administration. Each week the presidents meet with AWS leaders and members of student government to gather information to convey to their girls. Each hall sponsors activities for its residents, but the Council is in charge of special events for all members of Heritage Halls. During the year, the girls in each hall competed for excellence in housekeeping, sports, academics, and social and cultural activities. Each year a traveling trophy is awarded to the hall which has most members with a G.P.A. over 3.5, and a permanent trophy is given to the hall whose members have the highest overall G.P.A. The biggest event of the year was the Invitational in May, done this year on a Polynesian theme.

Inter-Housing Council

Re-organized from the Student Administration Council, the Inter-Housing Council was formed in the spring of 1965 to unify all of the on-campus housing. At the beginning of October the IHC sponsored a leadership day to orient all of the new officers of each dorm to their responsibilities and to share ideas for activities. Later in October, the Council hosted the IACURH Convention attended by representatives of housing councils from universities all over the country. Bob Toomer and Claudia Thompson were elected as president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the IACURH. For all on-campus students achieving a 3.5 G.P.A., a scholarship banquet was given March 10 with a trophy going to the dorm with the highest average. The Council sent representatives to the various inter-mountain and national conventions to gain insight into problems:

"The Worth of a Child" was the theme for the very striking and beautiful float entry of the Inter-Terrace Council in the Homecoming parade.

Inter-Terrace Council

Coordinating the activities of the single girls living in Wymount Terrace is the Inter-Terrace Council which has been in existence since 1962. The council is made up of the dorm presidents and executive officers of the terrace, and acts as a means of communication between the administration and the students. A watermelon bust was held September 13 to get acquainted, at which Dr. Reed Bradford spoke on the "Spirit of the Y." The girls of Wymount Terrace entered a float with the theme, "The Worth of a Child" in the Homecoming Parade and walked away with the Sweepstakes award. Fun festivities planned by the council included the annual Wymount Terrace Invitational held in the Wilkinson Center ballroom, a Christmas party at Mountain Meadow Ranch, a surprise breakfast and spiritual meetings as testimony and special-speaker firesides.

Men's Residence Halls Council

Composed of 15 members, the Men's Residence Hall Council is anxious to provide experiences for students living in the residence halls in student government and a social activities program which they could plan for themselves. Over 800 students attended the free band dance in early October at Cannon Center which was sponsored by the group. Later in the same month they and twenty other such councils from area colleges participated in the Inter-Mountain Conference. Highlighting the social year for the group was the MRHC Invitational themed "Me and My Shadow" which drew some 2,000 students. With the Women's Residence Hall Council they co-sponsored a "Strike It Rich" talent show and awarded gift certificates and trophies to the winners. Other activities included a trip to Chicago for a National Residence Halls convention and a banquet.

Women's Residence Halls Council

Members grope for ideas as they discuss plans for Invitational.

Composed of the girls' halls presidents and vice-presidents of Helaman Halls and Desert Towers, a president from the previous year's council and her executive officers, plus two advisors, the Women's Residence Hall Council serves to help the women's dorms function more smoothly. In an effort to promote a spirit of sisterhood and cooperation among the girls living in the residence halls, the council acts as a disseminating body for information concerning housing rules and to exchange ideas and work out problems which arise in housing, student government and family councils. The council sponsored a Housing Talent Night, December 10, and a Leadership Conference in October to orient dorm officers to their responsibilities. Mountain Meadow Ranch was the scene of the Christmas party and then once each semester a retreat was held for the council.

Housing: An Experiment in Living

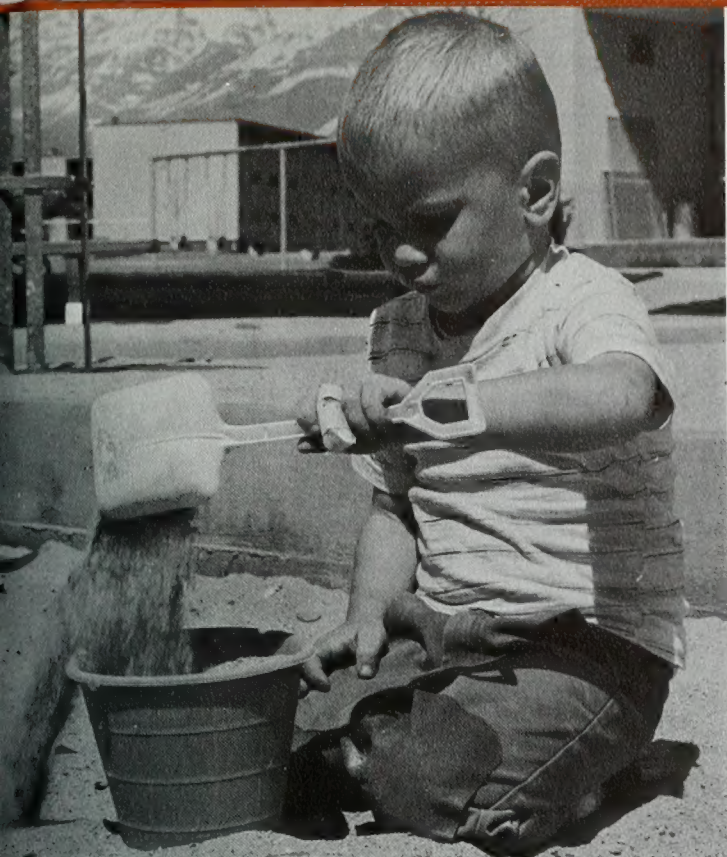

The new Deseret Towers complex, particularly the cafeteria, was never silent, despite carpeted hallways and quite elevators.

Despite the lines and noise, food was appealing after a long day.

Home life for a BYU student is an experiment in human compatibility and adjustment. Students need relief from the college rut; they seek a place to dump their books, an atmosphere conducive to study and a place where food is plentiful. They need a place to belong. The 1900 girls in Heritage and Wymount apartments strung spaghetti over the kitchen, listened to the Tijuana Brass and even read a few chapters of their botany book now and then. The 2100 boys in Deseret and Helaman, by comparison, lived a fairly care-free life. On the basis of the dubious thesis that all cafeteria meals are terrible, they complained vociferously; but any disgruntled girl babysitting a chocolate cake made from scratch would tell them to be thankful for their blessings. Off-campus housing ranged from the opulent Roman Gardens to the most pestiferous hole, and residents enjoyed freedom from the discipline and dorm parties of on-campus housing. It was assumed that married students got along with their roommates, but their children spent many tedious hours experimenting with the dynamics of sandpail-filling. But even this minor activity was a part of the kaleidoscope of housing.

For the budget-minded majority, spaghetti was a good hot meal.

Each night on dorm floors, some gathered to kneel in prayer.

Freshmen Join School Activities

In spite of being the newest class, freshmen jumped immediately into school activities. Class members added to school spirit during the Homecoming parade by entering a float with a huge trophy signifying the BYU WAC victory and a coffin labeled U of U; freshmen also triumphed in a competitive bonfire rally. In November, frosh sponsored the IBM dance. It only took two IBM 1320 and 7040 computers 35 minutes to match up the 3200 students who had filled out questionnaires, but lanky coeds waltzing awkwardly with stubby boys showed that the pairings had not always been successful. During Winter Carnival, the freshmen again gained prominence as frosh entrants were chosen as attendants for royalty Nevin Anderson and Sue Larson. For the first time this year, freshmen were able to demonstrate their artistic talent by submitting work to a new freshman literary magazine and displaying their art in a special show in the Y Center. The class also took first in Songfest and sponsored a student-body dance "Carousel", variety show and frosh formal.

At a near run, a late Freshman student tries to make it on time to an important class across the 80-acre campus.

During sophomore-sponsored hootenanny, a part of Homecoming activities, a most unusual group presents a musical comment.

During Christmas party, one of the class' activities, officers sit in a circle waiting for Santa Claus to show up.

Sophomores End Busy Year

Class of '68 members called themselves the scintillating sophomores, and a look at their year's activities might show the reason why. The first big event was the Sophomore Cotillion, entitled "Medda." Five hundred and eighty couples attended this Arabian-themed semi-formal, three times more than had come the previous year. During Homecoming, the class competed against the Freshmen in a bonfire rally, sponsored a hootenanny and also entered a float in the parade. Those who saw Skits-O-Frantic will remember the old-fashioned melodrama featuring the alluring golden-haired girl and her intrepid lover against the evil Boris Bettino, who was seeking to prevent the golden spike from being driven because it would wreck his stagecoach business. The skit took second place. Among the other activities were a class party on a Polynesian theme, a tie with the Freshmen for second place in Competition Week, a Songfest entry and a vaudeville show on Y day. The class also sponsored two firesides during the year, with Chauncey Riddle and archaeologist Thomas Ferguson.

Like a suspended jewel, the sun glints through stark, autumn-stripped trees onto dry, leaf-covered ground.

Juniors Win Class Competition

ASBYU President Bob Christiansen presents Class Competition trophy to Del Williams.

Members of the class of '67 walked off with the trophy for Class Competition Week for the second straight year, but this was only one of the many activities of the class. Juniors entered Skits-O-Frantic and made the finals in Songfest; they sponsored a studentbody fireside with Carlos G. Smith, General Superintendent of YMMIA as principal speaker, and held an awards banquet for outstanding juniors. They also entered the Homecoming parade with a float themed "Enter to learn; go forth to serve." On March 4, juniors were invited to "Join the Junior Jeneration" for class day. During this day they sponsored a display featuring the achievements of their class, including trophies the class had won and tributes to the juniors on this year's basketball team. Excitement about the Junior Prom began to build up around the third week in March, when the theme "Enchanté" was announced in the Daily Universe and ads for long formals and tuxedo rental service first appeared. But after all the excitement, the long wait and even the expense were worth it, for the concert-dance turned out to be one of the most successful activities of the year.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Karen Callister, Vice-president; Del Williams, President; Vicki Brown, Secretary.

1966 Senior Class project was this 340-pound relief world globe. The rotating globe, which cost $10,000 is over six feet tall.

Senior Project:

Senior officers have a traditional problem; most of their students have lapsed into casual cynicism. Enthusiasm seems to be a monopoly of the underclassmen, who are not as concerned with such weighty matters as those last two credits needed for graduation. Seniors have never had quite the pep of other classes. But the class this year was different in a way, yet in a way, much the same. Some things flopped; other were smashing successes. Perhaps, though, the senior class this year did have more successes than is usual. Their Homecoming float, a scene of the ocean floor entitled "Depths of Infinity," took first place for organizations. However, the freshman project was only a halfway success. The blue and white beanies were a sellout, but frosh didn't seem to be too enthused over the Class of '69 sweatshirts. As usual, the seniors had the dubious honor of receiving the least number of points in Class Competition Week; however, this total is a great improvement over the performance of last year's seniors. The class project, a huge globe costing $10,000, which was placed in the library, caused much comment within the studentbody. Class members are also proud that they were responsible for the nomination of Belle of the Y, Margot Walker. Senior Week, last activity of the class, ran May 8-14. Beginning with a fireside on Sunday, the week included recognition of outstanding seniors in each college, a guided tour through the heating tunnels which honeycomb the campus, cut-rates for seniors in the Y Center, and a final nostalgic trek to the Y.

$10,000 Globe

Graduate Enrollment Increases

According to Dean Wesley P. Lloyd, one of the major units in fostering the university's high academic reputation is the BYU Graduate Program. Conforming to the nationwide trend of increasing graduate enrollment, 1560 students are presently registered in the Graduate College. In the 1964-65 year, 322 master's degrees and 35 doctorates were given out; this year it is expected that 400 degrees will be awarded from nearly every department in the university. The graduate students have sponsored several firesides throughout the year, one of the most outstanding being a panel discussion on the role of social science in the LDS Church. At the end of the year, a dinner-dance was held at which the class was turned over to the new officers.

For most graduate students there was only time to study.

The Banyan staff would like to say thanks:

To Bob Mouritsen for his excellent theme copy.

To Provo City Power, for the use of one of their trucks to photograph the Homecoming parade.

To Bill Jones for helping us with paste-ups.

To Elvin, the nightwatchman, for night-watching us.

To Charlie, Yoyo, Al, Ben, Bill, Larry, Dale, Delvar, Frank and the rest of the guys at the press for a job well done.

To Jerry Rodgers and his crew, for class and group photographs.

To Mountain States Bindery for making and engraving the covers.

To Deseret News Press for binding the books.

To Roberts Engraving and Litho Co., for the color separation negatives.

To the Church Information Service, for photographs of the administration.

To Data Processing: Nilan and his crew, for preparing the index.

To Sports Illustrated for the photograph on page 201.

To Stan Hodge, Jaron Summers, Dave Hoover, O.D. Williams, and Dustin Huston for their outstanding photographs.

To Deseret News for photographs of the First Presidency.

To Dave Schulthess for helping us to get photographs of the NIT.

To the News Bureau for press releases.

We Will Remember,

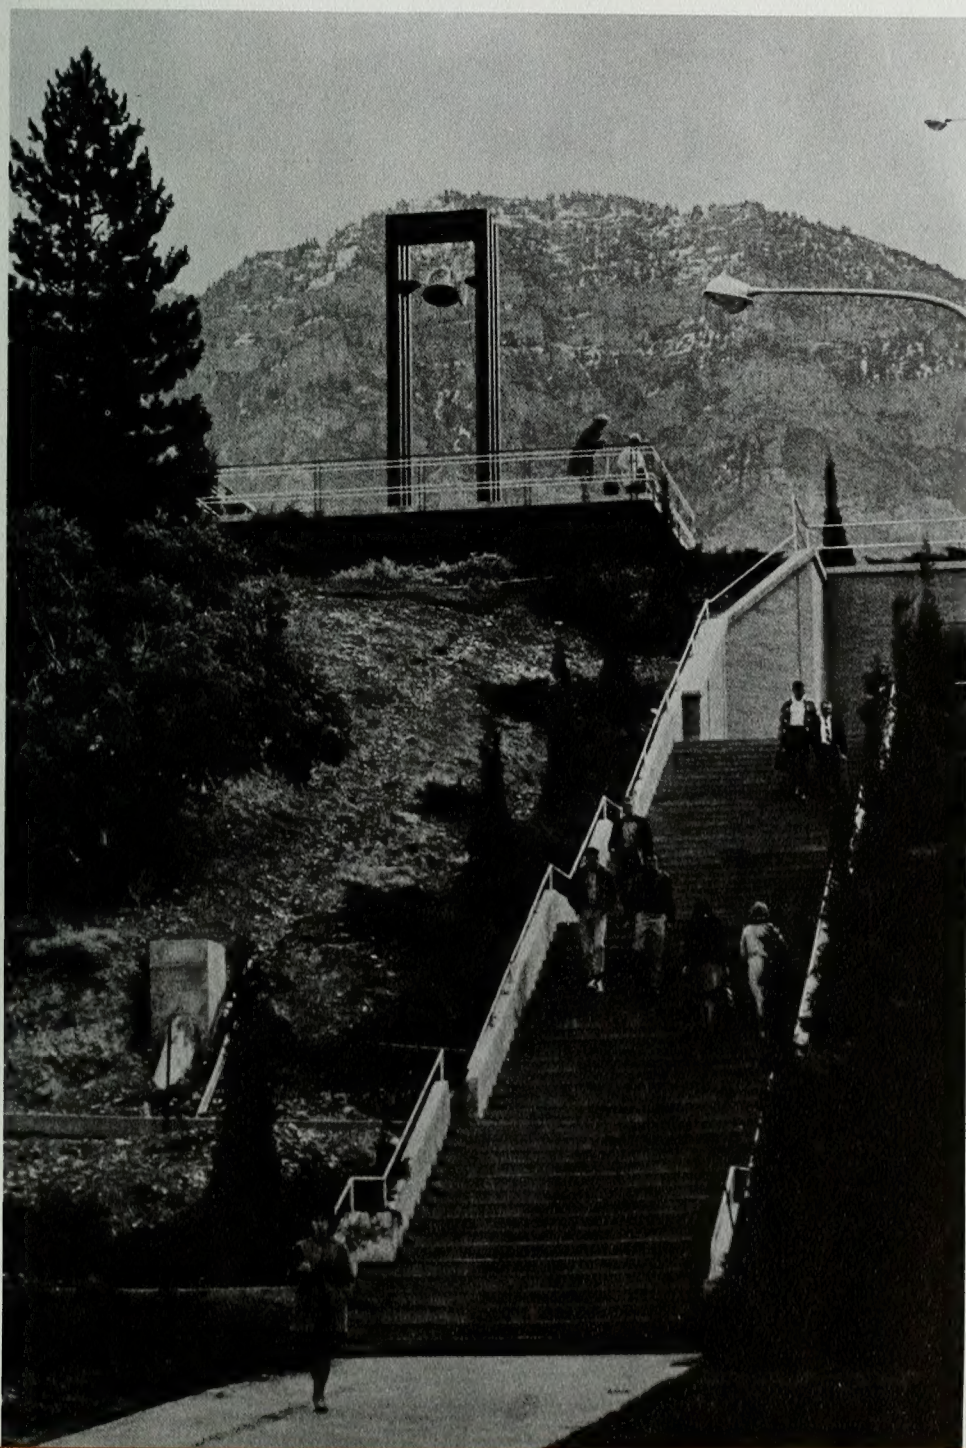

We Will Not Forget;

We Will Remember!

Editor's Last Words

Well, it was the second time around for me but it wasn't wonderful; and it certainly wasn't more comfortable; it was just as difficult as the first. Even the fact that I had a good staff did not make it easier. No, I am now convinced that there is no easy way to put out a yearbook. Of course, there were more pages to be done than there had ever been before, and then, we tried to do everything more carefully than before. This perhaps was what made our task more difficult. Anyway, it's all over but the distribution, and now I would like to thank some people for their contribution to the production of this book. First of all, my wife, for putting up with the whole thing for another year. Then, my staff — my staff, now there's a weird bunch for you. Kooks, everyone of them a kook. Crazy they had to be to spend all those hours working on this book, when they could have been out having fun, or studying, or simply sleeping. I really don't know what made them do it. I suppose each had his own reasons. —But then I wonder too, what makes people volunteer to fight in Viet Nam, or join the Peace Corps, or go on missions. —Whatever it is, it brought together a group of individualistic, temperamental, crabby, creative people, who, by the way, did an excellent job this year.
